ANTHONY P. MIELE, III,
Plaintiff,
v.
FRANKLIN RESOURCES, INC., et al.,
Defendants.

Case No. 15-cv-00199-LB

ORDER GRANTING THE DEFENDANT’S MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT AND DENYING THE PLAINTIFF’S MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT

Re: ECF Nos. 127 & 128

INTRODUCTION

The plaintiff Anthony P. Miele III sued Franklin Resources and Charles Johnson (Franklin’s former President, Chief Executive Officer, and Board Chairman) for allegedly mishandling shares of Franklin common stock that his father bought for him in 1973.<sup>1</sup> He alleges that the shares — worth more than $136,000,000 in January 2015 after stock splits — were lost, destroyed, or wrongfully transferred.<sup>2</sup> The court previously dismissed Miele III’s fraud, negligence, and fiduciary-duty claims, and so just two claims remain (both against Franklin only): (1) wrongful registration, and (2) replacement of lost, destroyed, or wrongfully taken security certificates.<sup>3</sup>

1 Miele III moves for partial summary judgment under Delaware Code section 8-405 and wants 2 Franklin to reissue (or replace) his missing shares.<sup>4</sup> Franklin moves for summary judgment on the 3 ground that both claims are barred by Miele III's unreasonable delay in bringing the case under 4 Delaware Code section 8-406 and the doctrine of laches.<sup>5</sup>

5 There is no genuine dispute of material fact that, under section 8-406, Miele III had notice that 6 his shares were wrongfully transferred (or otherwise missing) in 1992 but did not notify Franklin 7 until more than twenty years later. The court accordingly grants Franklin's summary-judgment 8 motion and denies Miele III's motion.

9 10 STATEMENT

11 In 1973, Miele III's father, Anthony P. Miele Jr., bought 4,000 shares of Franklin common 12 stock.<sup>6</sup> He registered the shares (held in certificated form) in the name of "Anthony P. Miele, Jr.
13 TTEE Anthony P. Miele III."<sup>7</sup> The next year, in 1974, Miele Jr. died unexpectedly at the age of 14 thirty nine.<sup>8</sup> He died intestate and was survived by his wife, Evelyn, and three children: Miele III 15 (at the time, three years old); Veronica (two years old); and Matthew (nine months old).<sup>9</sup> Evelyn, 16 along with Julius Poppinga (a partner at McCarter & English) and J.P. Miele (an attorney and 17 Evelyn's brother-in-law), administered the estate.<sup>10</sup>

18 For some years, the Mieles held the shares and received the dividends thereon. For example, as 19 of December 1974, Miele Jr. Estate's safe deposit box contained the 4,000-share certificate.<sup>11</sup> And

1 the shares were reported on the estate’s 1975 state and federal tax returns.<sup>12</sup> Similarly, Miele III —
 2 with Evelyn acting as guardian<sup>13</sup> — reported $3,984 of Franklin dividends on his 1981, 1982, and 3 1984 tax returns.<sup>14</sup> Evelyn also received a $500 dividend check in 1983, but this amount did not 4 appear on Miele III’s tax return.<sup>15</sup> And in 1983, McCarter & English sent Evelyn a letter with two 5 stock certificates enclosed: one for 4,000 shares and one for 1,000 shares.<sup>16</sup> Evelyn acknowledged 6 receipt of the letter and the certificates.<sup>17</sup> At this time, the Bank of New York (“BoNY”) — 7 Franklin’s transfer agent — showed the address of record as 160 S. Livingston Street, Livingston, 8 N.J., which was the address for J.P. Miele’s law firm.<sup>18</sup>

9 In 1983 or 1984, J.P. Miele moved, but BoNY’s and Franklin’s records do not reflect any 10 updated address of record.<sup>19</sup> As a result, mail to that address — including proxy cards, dividend 11 checks, and other materials — were returned as undeliverable.<sup>20</sup> By March 4, 1991, BoNY’s 12 records show a total stock position of 140,625 shares: 12,500 shares released to the shareholder 13 (which represents the original 4,000 shares plus shares issued after stock splits through 1984) and 14 128,125 shares in the BoNY vault.<sup>21</sup> Returned dividend checks from January 13, 1984 to January 15 15, 1991 totaled $186,496.88.<sup>22</sup>

1 1. The Status of the Franklin Shares in 1991–92

2 The critical years in this story — and, more precisely, the years critical to Franklin’s 3 affirmative defenses — are 1991 and 1992: two years during which family friend Gene Mulvihill 4 paid the Mieles approximately $3 million and sold an equivalent number of Franklin shares, and 5 during which Miele III received an IRS notice regarding $41,250 in Franklin dividends that he did 6 not receive.

8 1.1 Mr. Mulvihill Pays the Miele Family At Least $3 Million

9 In 1991, “out of the blue,” Gene Mulvihill — Miele Jr.’s former friend and business partner — 10 called the Mieles.<sup>23</sup> Mr. Mulvihill first spoke to Evelyn and said “I think I can get you some 11 money.”<sup>24</sup> But Evelyn said she was not interested and hung up.<sup>25</sup> Mr. Mulvihill called back, 12 however, and this time spoke to Miele III.<sup>26</sup> The conversation lasted only three to four minutes, 13 and Mr. Mulvihill said that he was a friend of his father’s, his father “did some deals in the past,”
14 and he could “get [Miele III] some money.”<sup>27</sup>

15 So Miele III and his sister, Veronica, met Mr. Mulvihill for lunch.<sup>28</sup> The three ate, caught up, 16 and discussed the money that Mr. Mulvihill mentioned on the phone.<sup>29</sup> He told them that the 17 amount was around $2 million — a sum that Miele III considered “a lot” and that “could change 18 [his] life.”<sup>30</sup> Mr. Mulvihill did not say where the money came from, but explained that Miele Jr.

1 “did a lot of deals with a lot of guys” and that he died young.<sup>31</sup> The lunch ended and Mr. Mulvihill 2 said he would be in touch.<sup>32</sup>

3 Two or three weeks later, Mr. Mulvihill, along with accountant Albert Passanante, went to 4 Evelyn’s house.<sup>33</sup> Messrs. Mulvihill and Passanante, Miele III, and Evelyn met in the kitchen.<sup>34</sup>
5 Mr. Mulvihill brought four trust agreements in the Miele’s names: (1) The Anthony P. Miele, III
6 Trust; (2) The Evelyn Miele Trust; (3) The Veronica Miele Trust; and (4) The Matthew Miele
7 Trust.<sup>35</sup> Evelyn signed as trustee the children’s trust agreements and Veronica signed Evelyn’s 8 trust.<sup>36</sup> Mr. Mulvihill signed all four as nominee and settlor.<sup>37</sup> The trusts were intended invest the 9 $2 million in Fidelity and Vanguard accounts.<sup>38</sup>

10 And for that purpose, Mr. Mulvihill presented a $2 million dollar check, made out to Miele 11 III.<sup>39</sup> Miele III did not deposit the check (though he testified that his mother may have), and he 12 decided to “whack[] up the money four ways,” i.e. divide it equally among the family.<sup>40</sup> Again, 13 Miele III “had no idea” where the money came from: Mr. Mulvihill told him only that the money 14 came from his father’s past “deals.”<sup>41</sup> Mr. Mulvihill assured Evelyn Miele that the money was 15 “legitimate”; the group did not discuss Miele Jr.’s Franklin shares.<sup>42</sup>

16 Mr. Passanante, the accountant, testified to that effect: he does not recall — or does not 17 believe — that Mr. Mulvihill discussed the Franklin shares with Miele III.<sup>43</sup> Mr. Mulvihill did,

1 however, tell Mr. Passanante about the shares: he said that “[he] was going to put shares of 2 Franklin Resources into the trusts.”<sup>44</sup> He told Mr. Passanante “either before the meeting, after the 3 meeting, [or] during the meeting. More likely, [Mr. Passanante thought], on the way to the 4 meeting.”<sup>45</sup> Mr. Mulvihill did not mention to Mr. Passanante “the actual numbers” or “value 5 involved” — i.e. the $2 million.<sup>46</sup>

6 In the end, Mr. Mulvihill gave the Mieleles between $2 million and $4.3 million — the parties 7 dispute the total amount.<sup>47</sup> Franklin asserts that Mr. Mulvihill gave Miele III and his family “over 8 $4.3 million in cash and benefits.”<sup>48</sup> The records show $500,000 deposited into Fidelity 9 Investment accounts for each of The Anthony P. Miele III Trust, The Veronica Miele Trust, and 10 The Matthew Miele Trust.<sup>49</sup> The records also show $540,000 deposited into The Evelyn Miele
11 Trusts’ Fidelity account.<sup>50</sup> There are additionally two $40,000 checks, endorsed by Mr. Mulvihill 12 and addressed to the Vanguard Group, and corresponding Vanguard accounts for Veronica and 13 Matthew’s trusts.<sup>51</sup> Mr. Mulvihill also paid $1,015,382 in taxes for the trusts.<sup>52</sup> Franklin also points 14 to records, and its forensic expert’s findings, evidencing an additional $381,583 in investments 15 and $867,500 held for the Mieleles’ benefit.<sup>53</sup>

16 But Miele III objects to that evidence — at least the forensic expert’s findings — and asserts 17 that “the most the family received from Mulvihill was $2 million plus tax payments of 1 $1,015,382.”<sup>54</sup> Indeed, Miele III testified that “there was [$]2 million and that was it”; Mr.

2 Mulvihill did not give them any more money.<sup>55</sup> Evelyn also testified that Mr. Mulvihill — in one
3 of their initial conversations — guaranteed the Mieles only $2 million.<sup>56</sup> And Veronica said that 4 she did not know of Mr. Mulvihill giving the family any more than $2 million.<sup>57</sup> In other words, 5 according to Miele III, the most that the family received from Mr. Mulvihill was approximately $3 6 million — $2 million plus $1,015,382 in taxes.<sup>58</sup>

7 There is evidence that Mr. Mulvihill sold Franklin shares worth approximately the same 8 amount ($3 million). Franklin’s expert states that “two almost illegible account statements for an 9 F.N. Wolf & Co. account held in the name of ‘Gene Mulvihill as Nominee’” reflect the sale of 10 92,875 Franklin shares for approximately $3,382,299 between September and October 1991.<sup>59</sup> In 11 an April 30, 1992 letter, Ellen Lewis (Mr. Mulvihill’s bookkeeper), wrote a letter to Richard 12 Hanrahan (of BoNY) “RE: Anthony P. Miele, III.”<sup>60</sup> Ms. Lewis requested that Mr. Hanrahan 13 “contact [her] immediately when the dividend check is ready to be picked up.”<sup>61</sup> Ms. Lewis also 14 asked that “[w]hen transferring the 6,250 shares of Franklin Resources, please put them in the 15 name of Gene Mulvihill, Nominee and forward them to” Michael Simineri at F.N. Wolf.<sup>62</sup>

1 The first application, dated July 1991, lists four Franklin stock certificates, including the 2 original certificate for 4,000 shares, and certificates for 1,000, 2,500, and 5,000 shares, 3 respectively.<sup>63</sup> The latter three certificates represent shares issued after stock splits.<sup>64</sup> The 4 application has what is allegedly Miele III's signature (though he denies signing it),<sup>65</sup> and the 5 signature of Debra Tierney (formerly Debra Evers), a notary and Mr. Mulvihill's former 6 bookkeeper.<sup>66</sup> Ms. Tierney testified that she did not see Miele III sign the application.<sup>67</sup>

7 The second application, dated December 1991, lists a single certificate for 5,000 shares (the 8 same 5,000-share certificate listed in July).<sup>68</sup> The December application contains Miele III's 9 purported signature (again, he denies signing the application),<sup>69</sup> and was notarized by Ellen 10 Lewis.<sup>70</sup> Ms. Lewis was a notary who worked for Mr. Mulvihill as a bookkeeper from 1991–92.<sup>71</sup> 11 She testified that the "person" who signed the application was present when she notarized it, but 12 that she did not know who it was.<sup>72</sup>

13 In January 1992, BoNY issued a replacement 5,000-share certificate registered to "Anthony P.
14 Miele Jr. TTEE Anthony P. Miele, III."<sup>73</sup> (Miele III does not move for summary-judgment on 15 these shares.<sup>74</sup>)

1.3 Franklin's Records About Miele III's Shares

2 Around the same time as the Mulvihill transactions and the lost-instrument applications, Miele 3 III's Franklin position was reduced and eventually eliminated from Franklin's records.

4 Between 1974 and 1991, the Franklin shares remained registered to "Anthony P. Miele Jr.
5 TTEE Anthony P Miele III."<sup>75</sup> A letter dated March 4, 1991, from BoNY set forth the number of 6 outstanding shares and dividend checks in the account.<sup>76</sup> "Dividend checks from January 13, 1984
7 through January 15, 1991 total[ed] $186,496.88."<sup>77</sup> "Stock Certificates in [BoNY's] vaults 8 represent[ed] 128,125 shares."<sup>78</sup> BoNY's records reflected a total position of 140,625 shares, but 9 that the shareholder — "Anthony P. Miele Jr. TTEE Anthony P. Miele III" — held 12,500 10 shares.<sup>79</sup>

11 For the year 1991, an IRS Form 1099 shows dividend income of $50,096.89 paid on the shares
12 registered to "Anthony P. Miele Jr TTEE Anthony P. Miele III."<sup>80</sup> That is equivalent to dividends
13 paid on 128,125 shares for the quarters ending on December 30, 1990, March 28, 1991, and July 14 1, 1991, and dividends paid on 13,750 shares for the quarter ending September 30, 1991.<sup>81</sup> And, as 15 of December 20, 1991, Franklin's Record Stockholder List reflected only 13,750 shares registered
16 to "Anthony P Miele Jr TTEE Anthony P Miele III."<sup>82</sup> And in Franklin's December 22, 1992
17 Record Stockholder List, "Anthony P. Miele Jr TTEE Anthony P Miele III" does not appear as a 18 shareholder.<sup>83</sup> Indeed, that name does not appear "in any Record Stockholder Lists issued after

27 maximum ($7,945,312.36), and average ($5,995,605.44) value of those shares between September and 28 December of 1991. (Marois Decl., Ex. 1 ¶ 49 & Ex. C; Liddle Decl. – ECF No. 160-1, ¶ 17 & Ex. 36.).

 2 to Maria Gray, Franklin’s Corporate Secretary and Vice President, the shares held by “Anthony P 3 Miele Jr TTEE Anthony P Miele III” were “transferred between December 20, 1991 and 4 December 22, 1992.”<sup>86</sup> But, after investigation, Ms. Gray did not find evidence that the shares
 5 “were ever registered into the name of another person.”<sup>87</sup> BoNY — the transfer agent — has no 6 information about the transfer of the names; it keeps records for only 7 years.<sup>88</sup>

8 2. The 1992 IRS Notice

9 2.1 Miele III Receives a Notice from the IRS in 1992

10 Following the above events, Miele III received from the IRS a “Notice of Proposed Changes to 11 Your 1989 Tax Return,” dated May 6, 1992.<sup>89</sup> The Notice is a five-page document that shows tax 12 due attributable to taxes on taxable dividends, including dividends attributable to Franklin 13 Resources stock.<sup>90</sup> On the first page, in the first three sentences, the IRS proposed to increase his 14 1989 tax by $19,066 in taxes, interest, and penalties.<sup>91</sup> The first three lines read:

15 We are proposing changes to your 1989 tax return because the information on your 16 tax return is not the same as the information reported to us by your employers, banks, and other payers.

17 Based on your reply to our previous notice, we propose to increase your tax. As a 18 result of this change, you will owe us $19,066.<sup>92</sup>

19 The next line advised Miele III to “compare your records with the pay information shown on page 20 3 of this notice.”<sup>93</sup>

1 The next two paragraphs instructed Miele III what to do if he “agree[d] with the proposed 2 changes on page 2” and what to do “if [he] d[id] not agree with the proposed changes.”<sup>94</sup> The 3 Notice instructed him that, if he agreed with the changes, he should “[c]heck box A on the last 4 page,” “[s]ign and date the consent to the tax increase,” “[e]nclose [his] payment in full, if 5 possible,” and return the Notice’s last page along with payment.<sup>95</sup> The Notice alternatively 6 instructed that, if he disagreed with the changes, he should “[c]heck box B or C on the last page,” 7 [e]nclose a signed statement explaining why [he] disagree[d],” “[i]nclude any supporting 8 documents” that he wanted the IRS to consider, and return the Notice’s last page, his signed 9 statement and documents, and a telephone number to reach him.<sup>96</sup> The rest of page 1 contains 10 additional instructions and notices.<sup>97</sup>

11 The top of page 2 reads: “Our Proposed Changes to Your 1989 Income Tax (Detailed

Accountant, and Pays the Tax

20 The IRS sent the Notice to Evelyn’s house in Whitehouse Station, NJ.<sup>104</sup> His mother called and 21 told him that he received a piece of mail that “look[ed] like it’s from the IRS.”<sup>105</sup> Miele III,

1 twenty-one years old at the time,<sup>106</sup> drove to his mother’s house, “pulled the letter out,” and “read
2 the first two sentences, that [the IRS] [was] going to do some kind of a change to one of [his] tax 3 returns.”<sup>107</sup> He then read the third sentence, which “said that [he] owed money.”<sup>108</sup> He stopped 4 there — he did not read beyond the third sentence.<sup>109</sup> Miele III testified that he was scared and 5 “kind of freaked out.”<sup>110</sup>

6 He was scared because he “didn’t want to draw any attention to [him]self, considering what he 7 was doing in school.”<sup>111</sup> He was “running numbers,” or operating a sports-gambling business, 8 involving “[t]ens of thousands of dollars” and making profits of $30,000 to $50,000 in 1989–91, 9 and almost $100,000 in 1994 or 1995.<sup>112</sup> He was not reporting these profits to the IRS because 10 “[i]t was all cash.”<sup>113</sup>

11 So Miele III asked his mother what to do.<sup>114</sup> She told him to call Mr. Mulvihill because she 12 was “sure he kn[ew] somebody that [Miele III] could talk to.”<sup>115</sup> So he did, and Mr. Mulvihill told 13 him: “your new accountant is going to be Elliot Goldberg. Just send it over to him and he’ll take 14 care of it.”<sup>116</sup> Miele III said “okay.”<sup>117</sup>

15 Mr. Goldberg, a certified public accountant since 1965 who worked with Mr. Mulvihill, twice 16 spoke to Miele III about the IRS Notice.<sup>118</sup> In the first conversation, Miele III told Mr. Goldberg

1 about the Notice and he asked Miele III to send it to him.<sup>119</sup> After Mr. Goldberg received the 2 Notice, they talked again.<sup>120</sup>

3 Mr. Goldberg initially testified that, during this second conversation, he told Miele III about 4 the dividends on the IRS Notice and asked Miele III if he received the money.<sup>121</sup> According to Mr.
5 Goldberg, Miele III responded “I don’t know,” to which Mr. Goldberg said, “well, then you better 6 call — get copies of the 1099s and take care of it.”<sup>122</sup> He explained that Miele III should contact 7 “[w]hoever sent the 1099” and “if you didn’t get the money, then find out . . . where the 1099 is 8 and where the money is.”<sup>123</sup> Mr. Goldberg testified that he “absolutely” advised Miele III to 9 follow up on the IRS Notice.<sup>124</sup>

10 But Mr. Goldberg was not so certain in a December 2013 phone conference with private 11 investigator Patrick Timlin.<sup>125</sup> A series of notes from that conversation reflect that Mr. Goldberg 12 did not recall his conversations with Miele III, but he “speculat[ed] that he probably advised [him]

14 Goldberg “agree[d] that he probably helped [Miele III] but d[id] not remember specific details 15 from 20 years ago.”<sup>127</sup>

16 When asked about the notes at his deposition, Mr. Goldberg testified that in 2013 (the date of 17 the notes), he did not recall “specifically what [he] told [Miele III]” in 1992.<sup>128</sup> He explained that 18 “[he] speculated that [he] probably told [Miele III] to contact Franklin directly to get a copy of the

2 responded: "No, I don't recall what I told him in 1992."<sup>130</sup>

3 Miele III also recounts his conversations with Mr. Goldberg. According to him, Mr. Goldberg 4 advised: "you owe $19,066. Pay the tax. You have the money. Forget about it. You don't want to 5 get in trouble[ and] [y]ou don't want to have any problems."<sup>131</sup> Miele III says that he asked Mr.
6 Goldberg "Why am I paying this?"<sup>132</sup> But Mr. Goldberg responded: "the IRS is like the legal 7 mafia. You don't want to mess with them. Just pay it."<sup>133</sup> And so that is what Miele III did: he 8 paid the $19,066 in taxes, interest, and penalties.<sup>134</sup>

10 3. 2012–2015: Miele III Sues Franklin Resources and Charles Johnson for His Missing Shares

11 In May 2012, Charles Johnson (former Franklin President, CEO, and Chairman), wrote to 12 Veronica Miele's father-in-law.<sup>135</sup> Mr. Johnson asked if Veronica was related to Anthony Miele, 13 and, if so, said that "[he] ha[d] an interesting story for her."<sup>136</sup> Mr. Johnson believed that he had 14 prevented the Mieles' Franklin shares from escheating to the state in 1986 or 1987 and had heard 15 that the Mieles "were very grateful for what [he] had done for them."<sup>137</sup> But he found it "really 16 kind of curious why [he] hadn't heard from them" to thank him for his efforts.<sup>138</sup> Only later did the 17 Mieles tell him that "they didn't know anything about the [Franklin] stock."<sup>139</sup>

18 Miele III, Veronica, and Matthew spoke with Mr. Johnson in April or May 2013.<sup>140</sup> Mr.
19 Johnson told the Miele children about selling the 4,000 shares to their father, Miele Jr.<sup>141</sup> And he

1 told them that “the mail kept getting sent back to [him]” and he got “escheatment letters from the 2 State of New Jersey.”<sup>142</sup> Mr. Johnson explained that in 1986 or 1988 he asked Mr. Mulvihill to 3 find Miele III.<sup>143</sup> And, around that time, Mr. Mulvihill told him that he had “paid the Mieles” or 4 otherwise “taken care of [them].”<sup>144</sup> But, when the Miele children questioned Mr. Johnson about 5 the missing shares and why he did not contact them earlier, he told them to “get a lawyer and sue 6 the Mulvihill estate.”<sup>145</sup>

7 Over a year and a half later, Miele III sued Mr. Johnson and Franklin.<sup>146</sup> In his amended 8 complaint, Miele III asserted seven claims; the court dismissed five claims following Franklin’s 9 motion to dismiss; and two remain: (1) wrongful registration of securities, 6 Del. C. § 8-404; and 10 (2) replacement of lost, destroyed, or wrongfully taken security certificates, id. § 8-405.<sup>147</sup>

11 The parties filed cross-motions for summary judgment. Miele III moves for partial summary 12 judgment under section 8-405 for the replacement of his allegedly lost, destroyed, or wrongfully 13 transferred shares of Franklin stock.<sup>148</sup> Franklin moves for summary judgment on the two claims 14 based on two affirmative defenses: (1) unreasonable delay under Delaware Code section 8-406, 15 and (2) laches.<sup>149</sup> Franklin also asserts that Miele III has not carried his burden to establish his 16 claims for relief.<sup>150</sup> The court held a hearing on the matter on March 23, 2017.<sup>151</sup>

GOVERNING LAW

2 The court must grant a motion for summary judgment if the movant shows that there is no 3 genuine dispute as to any material fact and the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of 4 law. Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(a); Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 247–48 (1986). Material
5 facts are those that may affect the outcome of the case. Anderson, 477 U.S. at 248. A dispute about 6 a material fact is genuine if there is sufficient evidence for a reasonable jury to return a verdict for 7 the non-moving party. Id. at 248–49.

8 The party moving for summary judgment has the initial burden of informing the court of the 9 basis for the motion, and identifying portions of the pleadings, depositions, answers to 10 interrogatories, admissions, or affidavits that demonstrate the absence of a triable issue of material 11 fact. Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 323 (1986). To meet its burden, “the moving party 12 must either produce evidence negating an essential element of the nonmoving party’s claim or 13 defense or show that the nonmoving party does not have enough evidence of an essential element 14 to carry its ultimate burden of persuasion at trial.” Nissan Fire & Marine Ins. Co., Ltd. v. Fritz 15 Cos., Inc., 210 F.3d 1099, 1102 (9th Cir. 2000); see Devereaux v. Abbey, 263 F.3d 1070, 1076 (9th 16 Cir. 2001) (“When the nonmoving party has the burden of proof at trial, the moving party need 17 only point out ‘that there is an absence of evidence to support the nonmoving party’s case.’”) (quoting 18 Celotex, 477 U.S. at 325).

19 If the moving party meets its initial burden, the burden shifts to the non-moving party to 20 produce evidence supporting its claims or defenses. Nissan Fire & Marine, 210 F.3d at 1103. The 21 non-moving party may not rest upon mere allegations or denials of the adverse party’s evidence, 22 but instead must produce admissible evidence that shows there is a genuine issue of material fact 23 for trial. See Devereaux, 263 F.3d at 1076. If the non-moving party does not produce evidence to 24 show a genuine issue of material fact, the moving party is entitled to summary judgment. See 25 Celotex, 477 U.S. at 323.

26 In ruling on a motion for summary judgment, inferences drawn from the underlying facts are 27 viewed in the light most favorable to the non-moving party. Matsushita Elec. Indus. Co., Ltd. v.
28

1 Zenith Radio Corp., 475 U.S. 574, 587 (1986). The court does not make credibility determinations 2 or weigh conflicting evidence. Id.

4 ANALYSIS

5 Franklin contends that it is entitled to summary judgment under Delaware Code section 8-406.
6 The court grants Franklin summary judgment based on that affirmative defense.

7 Delaware Code section 8-406 provides a defense to claims for wrongful registration (section 8-8 404) and for the replacement of lost, destroyed, or wrongfully taken securities (section 8-405).

9 Section 8-406 provides:

10 If a security certificate has been lost, apparently destroyed, or wrongfully taken, 11 and the owner fails to notify the issuer of that fact within a reasonable time after 12 the owner has notice of it and the issuer registers a transfer of the security before receiving notification, the owner may not assert against the issuer a claim for registering the transfer under Section 8-404 or a claim to a new security certificate under Section 8-405.

13 6 Del. C. § 8-406. A defendant may thus defeat a plaintiff's section 8-404 and 8-405 claims if the 14 plaintiff does not notify the issuer that the security certificate has been lost, apparently destroyed, 15 or wrongfully taken "within a reasonable time" after the plaintiff learns of this fact. Id. The issuer 16 must also have registered a transfer of the security before it receives the plaintiff's notice. Id.

17 Here, under section 8-406, there are three issues: (1) did Miele III have notice in 1992 that his 18 Franklin shares were lost, destroyed, or wrongfully transferred? (2) If so, did he notify Franklin of 19 that fact within a reasonable time? (3) And, did he notify Franklin before it registered a transfer of 20 the shares to another shareholder?

21 1. Miele III Had Inquiry Notice in 1992

22 The first issue is whether the 1992 IRS Notice put Miele III on notice that he owned Franklin 23 shares and that those shares were lost, destroyed, or stolen.
24

25 "Notice" does not necessarily mean "knowledge," which is defined as "actual knowledge." 26 6 Del. Code § 1-202(a), (b). Instead, "a person has 'notice' of a fact if the person: (1) [h]as actual 27 knowledge of it; (2) [h]as received a notice or notification of it; or (3) [f]rom all the facts and 28

1 circumstances known to the person at the time in question, has reason to know that it exists.” Id.
 2 § 1-202(a); see Weller v. Am. Tel. & Tel. Co., 290 A.2d 842, 845 (Del. Ch. 1972). And so, under 3 section 8-406, a shareholder who “knows or has reason to know of the loss or theft of a security 4 certificate” but “fails to notify the issuer within a reasonable time” thereafter is estopped “from 5 asserting . . . the wrongfulness of the registration of the transfer.” U.C.C. § 8-406 cmt.

6 In similar contexts, Delaware courts also apply inquiry notice. See In re Dean Witter P’ship 7 Litig., 1998 Del. Ch. LEXIS 133, *29–*39 (Del. Ch. 1998) (applying inquiry notice to determine 8 whether a limitations period should be equitably tolled); Microsoft Corp. v. Amphus, Inc., 2013 9 WL 5899003, *19–*20 (De. Ch. 2013) (same). A plaintiff is placed on inquiry notice if, under the 10 circumstances, “persons of ordinary intelligence and prudence would have facts sufficient to put 11 them on inquiry which, if pursued, would lead to the discovery of the injury.” In re Dean Witter, 12 1998 Del. Ch. LEXIS 133 at *30 (emphasis in original). “Inquiry notice does not require actual 13 discovery of the reason for the injury” and does not “require plaintiffs’ awareness of all of the 14 aspects of the alleged wrongful conduct.” Id. at *31 (emphasis in original). Instead, ““once a 15 plaintiff is in possession of facts sufficient to make him suspicious, or that ought to make him 16 suspicious, he is deemed to be on inquiry notice.” Id. at *31 n.49 (quoting Harner v. Prudential 17 Secs. Inc., 785 F. Supp. 626, 633 (E.D. Mich. 1992)). And “whatever is notice calling for inquiry 18 is notice of everything to which such inquiry might have led.” United States Cellular Inv. Co. v.
 19 Bell Atl. Mobile Sys., 677 A.2d 497, 503 n.7 (Del. 1995).

20 In In re Dean Witter, the statute of limitations barred the plaintiff-investors’ claims because 21 “[i]nformation available to [them] long before” the lawsuit put them on inquiry notice. 1998 Del.
 22 Ch. LEXIS 133 at *1–*2. There, the plaintiffs — investors in partnership interests sold by or 23 through Dean Witter — alleged that the “defendants breached their fiduciary duties in connection 24 with the Partnerships [they] organized, sold[,] and operated.” Id. at *7. The defendants argued that 25 the plaintiffs’ supporting facts were disclosed in documents publicly available years before. Id. at 26 *26–*27. Looking to one such document, the plaintiffs “assert[ed] that they could not have known 27 that Partnership capital was being impaired, in light of the statement that the ‘distribution . . . was 28 an annualized return on investment of 7.5%.’” Id. at *33. But the court noted, in that same

1 document only three pages away, “a chart show[ed] clearly that the partners’ capital had declined 2 from the previous year.” Id. And from “even the most cursory glance” at a chart two pages later, it 3 was apparent that “the amount of cash distributions for the year 1990 far exceeded the 4 Partnerships’ net income for the same year.” Id. Reasoning that “[i]t is not too much to ask 5 investors to read beyond the first page of an annual report,” the court found that had the plaintiffs 6 read further, “they would have been alarmed.” Id. at *36–*37. And so the plaintiffs had inquiry 7 notice and equitable tolling did not save their claims, which were barred by the statute of 8 limitations. Id. at *39–*41.

9 Here, as in In re Dean Witter, Miele III had access to information that, if pursued, would have 10 led to the discovery that something was wrong with the Franklin shares. Miele III admits that he 11 received the IRS’s Notice of proposed changes to his 1989 tax return. He testified that he only 12 read the first three lines, learned that he owed $19,066 in extra taxes, and then stopped.<sup>152</sup> He 13 called his mother, Mr. Mulvihill, and his new accountant, Mr. Goldberg.<sup>153</sup> The parties dispute the 14 advice that Mr. Goldberg gave him, and, indeed, his testimony is not clear.

15 But this much is clear: a reasonable person, having learned that he owed an additional $19,066 16 in taxes — over two thirds of his reported taxable income<sup>154</sup> and approximately half of his 17 unreported sports-bookie profits of $30,000–$50,000 per year<sup>155</sup> — would have read on. (The 18 amount was so great that Miele III “freaked out.”<sup>156</sup>) And the Notice’s very next sentence reads:
19 “Please compare your records with the payer information shown on page 3 of this notice.”<sup>157</sup> Page 20 3, only four lines down and in table format, shows $41,250 in Franklin dividends.<sup>158</sup> That is over 25 <sup>154</sup> The IRS Notice shows that Miele III reported $28,540 in taxable income. (Molumphy Decl., Ex.

1 140% of the reported taxable income, and roughly equal to Miele III's claimed yearly sports-2 bookie profits.

3 Even a cursory glance at page 3's table would have revealed that he was taxed on unreceived 4 dividends issued on Franklin shares. That is sufficient to make him suspicious that (1) he might 5 own Franklin shares but (2) the dividends were being sent somewhere else (and that the shares 6 may have been lost or stolen). And, based on that information, a reasonable inquiry — i.e. a call or 7 letter to Franklin or BoNY, both of which were listed in-line with the dividends — would have 8 uncovered his injuries.

9 For example, the un rebutted evidence shows that if Miele III had contacted Franklin or BoNY
10 in May 1992, they would have seen reflected in Franklin's Record Stockholder list 13,750 shares 11 registered to "Anthony P Miele Jr TTEE Anthony P Miele III."<sup>159</sup> They would also have noticed 12 that only nine months prior, "Anthony P. Miele Jr. TTEE Anthony P. Miele III" had a total 13 position of 140,625 shares (128,125 shares held by BoNY).<sup>160</sup> They may also have noticed that 14 two Seaboard Surety applications for replacement securities had been filed in 1991 — one in July 15 and one in December — both with Anthony P. Miele III's (purported) signature.<sup>161</sup> And, at the 16 very least, BoNY would have seen the replacement 5,000-share certificate that it issued to 17 "Anthony P. Miele Jr. TTEE Anthony P. Miele, III."<sup>162</sup>

18 These facts would have shown him that, over the previous year, his (newly discovered) 19 Franklin holdings dwindled from 140,625 to 13,750 shares and that someone forged his signature 20 on two Seaboard security-replacement applications. Miele III's reasonable inquiry — i.e. a phone 21 call or letter — thus would have uncovered sufficient facts to discover the alleged injury (that his 22 Franklin shares were wrongfully taken).

23 But Miele III argues that "the 1992 IRS Notice of a tax deficiency did not and could not have 24 provided Miele III with notice that his Franklin security certificates were wrongfully taken, as

1 statutorily required by § 8-406.”<sup>163</sup> Instead, he argues, “[t]he IRS notice at most could have alerted
2 [him] to the existence of the Franklin shares.”<sup>164</sup>

3 Not so. First, the IRS Notice (if read) would plainly put Miele III on notice that he owned 4 Franklin shares and that there was something wrong with them — at the very least, that he was not 5 receiving the dividends. There is no other reasonable conclusion when asked to pay $19,066 in 6 taxes on $41,250 in Franklin dividends that he did not receive. And, as shown above, a reasonable 7 inquiry would have uncovered the injury.

8 Second, even though the Notice may not have revealed every fact necessary for Miele III to 9 state a claim under sections 8-404 or 8-405, that is not necessary for inquiry notice. Such notice 10 exists where “persons of ordinary intelligence and prudence would have facts sufficient to put 11 them on inquiry which, if pursued, would lead to the discovery of the injury,” and “does not 12 require . . . plaintiffs’ awareness of all of the aspects of the alleged wrongful conduct.” In re Dean
13 Witter, 1998 Del. Ch. LEXIS 133 at *30–*31 (emphasis in original). That standard is satisfied 14 here through un rebutted evidence.

15 Miele III also argues that “Delaware courts have ‘expressed reluctance to find inquiry notice 16 when a Plaintiff would have to piece together information from various documents.’”<sup>165</sup> See 17 Microsoft, 2013 WL 5899003 at *19. Indeed, he says, “‘there was no ‘red flag’ that clearly and 18 unmistakably would have led a prudent person of ordinary intelligence to inquire’ whether 19 securities were wrongfully taken on account of a[n] IRS notice of tax deficiency.”<sup>166</sup> See Coleman 20 v. Pricewaterhousecoopers, LLC, 854 A.2d 838, 843 (Del. 2004).

21 In Microsoft, Microsoft (an investor in the defendant) asserted, among other things, that the 22 defendant-company’s founder usurped a corporate opportunity to sell the company’s patents. 2013 23 WL 5899003 at *19. The defendants argued that Microsoft had inquiry notice of the claim “by 24 virtue of the Information Statement that was sent to [the company’s] shareholders in connection

1 with [its] restructuring and possible merger.” Id. But even if Microsoft had “exercised reasonable 2 diligence,” it would not have been “on inquiry notice that there was a corporate opportunity to sell 3 the [company’s] Patents, let alone that [the founder] had usurped that opportunity.” Id. Microsoft 4 may have had constructive notice of a patent sale six years later when the defendants filed a sale 5 agreement with the United States Patent and Trademark Office. Id. But even so, Microsoft did not 6 have inquiry notice of the founder’s usurpation of the corporate opportunity because (1) Delaware 7 courts have “expressed a reluctance to find inquiry notice when a plaintiff would have to piece 8 together information from various documents,” and (2) “[e]ven if that was not the case, it would 9 be unreasonable in this instance to expect Microsoft to draw a connection between the Information 10 Statement and a document that was filed publicly six years later.” Id. The court thus concluded 11 that it was “reasonably conceivable that Microsoft w[ould] be able to prove that it was not on 12 inquiry notice” of the usurpation claim. Id.

13 In a similar case, Weiss v. Swanson, the plaintiff’s claims were timely as pled. 948 A.2d 433, 14 450 (Del. Ch. 2008). There, the plaintiff-investor alleged that the defendant-directors granted stock 15 options in violation of the company’s option plans. See id. at 438–40. The plaintiff asserted 16 equitable tolling of the limitations period, but the defendants argued that “he could have pieced 17 together the alleged practice of timing option grants from publicly available information.” Id. at 18 451–52. “[T]he information needed to put” the plaintiff on notice, though, “did not appear in one 19 document.” Id. at 452. Instead, the plaintiff “would have had to cull through the company’s Form 20 4s each time they were filed, compare the grant dates of the options with the timing of the 21 quarterly earnings releases, and then conduct a statistical analysis in order to uncover the alleged 22 malfeasance.” Id. Noting that “[t]here [was] nothing in the Form 4s giving any indication of a 23 connection to the quarterly earnings release,” the court concluded that “[s]uch an investigation is 24 beyond ‘reasonable’ diligence.” Id. at 452 n.85.

25 Here, unlike Microsoft and Weiss, the single IRS Notice contained sufficient information to 26 put Miele III on inquiry notice. Unlike the plaintiffs in those cases, Miele III did not need to cull 27 through several, temporally distant filings to raise suspicion of the injury. Instead, the Notice 28 itself, taxing Miele III $19,066 on $41,250 in dividends that he did not receive, constitutes a “red

1 flag’ that clearly and unmistakably would have led a prudent person of ordinary intelligence to 2 inquire” whether there was a problem with his Franklin-share ownership. Cf. Coleman, 854 A.2d 3 at 843. It is true that Miele III would need to undertake further investigation to learn and prove all 4 the facts of his claim. But here, unlike Microsoft and Weiss, the single, five-page IRS Notice
 5 contained sufficient facts to put Miele III on notice such that, if pursued, would lead to discovery 6 of his injury.

7 Miele III thus had inquiry notice that his Franklin shares were lost, destroyed, or wrongfully 8 taken in 1992.

10 2. Miele III Did Not Notify Franklin Within a Reasonable Time

11 The second issue is whether Miele III notified Franklin that his shares were lost, destroyed, or 12 wrongfully taken within a reasonable time after learning that fact.

13 “A person ‘notifies’ or ‘gives’ a notice or notification to another person by taking such steps as 14 may be reasonably required to inform the other person in ordinary course, whether or not the other 15 person actually comes to know of it.” 6 Del. C. § 1-202(d). And, “[w]hether a time for taking an 16 action required by Uniform Commercial Code is reasonable depends on the nature, purpose and 17 circumstances of the action.” Id § 1-205(a); see Weller, 290 A.2d at 845 (looking to former 18 Delaware Code § 1-204, which is current Delaware Code § 1-205, to define what a “reasonable 19 time” is under former Delaware code § 8-405, which is current Delaware Code § 8-406).

20 Here, as discussed above, Miele III had inquiry notice that his shares were lost, destroyed, or 21 stolen in 1992. Yet he did not speak with Mr. Johnson until 2013, and he did not sue until January 22 2015.<sup>167</sup> Miele III thus waited over twenty years before notifying Franklin — i.e. providing it the 23 necessary information to inform it of his claims. He asserts that “the ‘reasonable time’ question 24 would be inappropriately decided on summary judgment,”<sup>168</sup> but, under the circumstances, the 25 twenty-plus year delay is plainly unreasonable.

28 <sup>168</sup> Miele III Opposition at 30.

1 3. Franklin Registered a Transfer of the Shares Before Receiving Notice

2 The third issue is whether Franklin registered a transfer of the shares before Miele III gave 3 notice.

4 Miele III argues that “Franklin cannot establish that it registered a transfer of [his] shares 5 because it has no record of a re-registration or transfer of the securities.”<sup>169</sup> Miele III points to the 6 documentation that BoNY would need to transfer his shares, including: a physical stock 7 certificate; “a stock power with a signature guarantee”; “proof of the trust”; a fiduciary release; 8 “proof of ownership,” such as a birth certificate or passport; information about the “transfer of 9 ownership” (i.e. the owners’ information); and, in the case of restricted securities, “a letter of 10 authority from the issuer” or a “legal letter from the issuer allowing” the release of the 11 restriction.<sup>170</sup> Ms. Gray, Franklin’s Corporate Secretary, testified that she found no evidence — 12 i.e. the above documentation — that the shares “were ever registered into the name of another 13 person.”<sup>171</sup>

14 This type of documentation would certainly be the best evidence of a transfer and registration, 15 but Miele III points to no authority that it is the only evidence that would suffice. In light of 16 BoNY’s record-retention policy (which is seven years, one year more than the SEC’s 17 requirement), and the delay in bringing the case, the unrebutted evidence adequately establishes 18 that Franklin registered a transfer of the shares.<sup>172</sup>

19 That evidence includes BoNY representative Peter Ward’s testimony about the share-transfer 20 process.<sup>173</sup> He testified that, when shares are transferred, it cancels one shareholder’s position (or a 21 portion thereof) and transfers that ownership to another shareholder.<sup>174</sup> So, “[t]he former owner’s 22 position would be reduced by” the transfer, and “the certificate would be canceled outright.”<sup>175</sup>

<sup>175</sup> Id.

1 Mr. Ward also testified that “[o]ther than an actual transfer taking place or escheatment” of shares 2 to the state, he could not think of a reason why a shareholder’s name would no longer appear on 3 the annual stockholder list.<sup>176</sup> Computershare’s representative (Franklin’s current transfer agent) 4 testified to the same.<sup>177</sup>

5 Here, as of March 4, 1991, Miele III had a total position of 140,625 shares — he held 12,500
6 and BoNY had 128,125 in its vault.<sup>178</sup> But in December 1991, Franklin’s records reflect only 7 13,750 shares registered to “Anthony P Miele Jr TTEE Anthony P Miele III.”<sup>179</sup> And by 8 December 1992, neither “Anthony P Miele Jr TTEE Anthony P Miele III” nor “Anthony P. Miele 9 III” appears on Franklin’s Stockholder List.<sup>180</sup> In light of the un rebutted testimony of Mr. Ward 10 and Ms. Gray’s declaration that a transfer occurred, this can only mean Miele III’s shares were 11 sold. Indeed, from all the records, the conclusion is that the restriction was removed from the 12 stock, and the stock was put into street name and sold.

13 And there is substantial evidence (whether Miele III knew it or not) that Mr. Mulvihill sold the 14 Franklin shares in 1991. Charles Johnson testified that he asked Mr. Mulvihill to find the Mieles 15 and that Mr. Mulvihill told him “he had paid the Mieles,” that “they had gotten something or 16 other,” or that he “had taken care of [them].”<sup>181</sup> Mr. Mulvihill told Mr. Passanante (his accountant)
17 that he was going to fund the Mieles’ four trusts with Franklin shares.<sup>182</sup> And it is undisputed 18 that — between 1991 and 1992 — Mr. Mulvihill paid the Mieles at least $3,135,382 and sold 19 92,875 Franklin shares from his F.N. Wolf account for approximately $3,382,299.

20 Miele III argues that the shares sold from Mr. Mulvihill’s F.N. Wolf account were not his. He 21 asserts that Mulvihill owned Franklin shares “in his own right” and points to a Franklin certificate

1 representing 134 shares, held by Flow & Company, Mr. Mulvihill's business.<sup>183</sup> He presumes that 2 Mulvihill got these shares (and possibly others) from his work on Franklin's IPO. And at the 3 summary-judgment hearing, Miele III argued that Mr. Mulvihill may have acquired his Franklin 4 shares through a "so-called VIP Program, where a VIP such as Mr. Johnson" could tell BoNY to 5 issue stock to a VIP shareholder.<sup>184</sup> These theories are not supported by the evidence, which 6 instead indicates that Mr. Mulvihill sold Miele III's shares. This includes (in addition to the above)
 7 Ms. Lewis's April 1992 letter to BoNY that describes a possible transfer of 6,250 Franklin shares
 8 from Miele III to Mr. Mulvihill's F.N. Wolf account.<sup>185</sup> And again, Franklin's stockholder list 9 shows the decline in Miele III's shares as they were sold in 1991.

10 The undisputed evidence thus shows: (1) Mr. Mulvihill paid the Mieles approximately $3 11 million; (2) Mr. Mulvihill sold approximately $3 million worth of Franklin shares; and (3) Miele 12 III's name was removed from Franklin's books during the same period. In light of Mr. Ward's 13 testimony, there is no genuine dispute that Franklin registered a transfer of Miele III's shares in 14 1991-92, the same time during which Miele III's holdings were taken off the books, and well 15 before it received notice of Miele III's claims.

 17 * * *

18 In sum, Miele III had inquiry notice that his shares were lost or wrongfully transferred in 1992, 19 but he did not notify Franklin until (at the earliest) 2013, well after Franklin registered a transfer of 20 his shares. Franklin has established its affirmative defense under Delaware Code section 8-406, 21 and it is entitled to judgment as a matter of law. This defense disposes of the remaining claims.
 22 The court thus does not reach Franklin's laches defense or the merits of Miele III's section 8-405 23 claim.

CONCLUSION

The court grants Franklin’s summary-judgment motion because there is no genuine dispute of material fact that it is entitled to judgment as a matter of law under Delaware Code section 8-406. The court denies Miele III’s motion for summary judgment.
