INSTRUCTIONS FOR ATTORNEYS COMPLETING CIVIL COVER SHEET FORM JS 44

Authority For Civil Cover Sheet

The JS 44 civil cover sheet and the information contained herein neither replaces nor supplements the filings and service of pleading or other papers as required by law, except as provided by local rules of court. This form, approved by the Judicial Conference of the United States in September 1974, is required for the use of the Clerk of Court for the purpose of initiating the civil docket sheet. Consequently, a civil cover sheet is submitted to the Clerk of Court for each civil complaint filed. The attorney filing a case should complete the form as follows:

I.(a) Plaintiffs-Defendants. Enter names (last, first, middle initial) of plaintiff and defendant. If the plaintiff or defendant is a government agency, use only the full name or standard abbreviations. If the plaintiff or defendant is an official within a government agency, identify first the agency and then the official, giving both name and title.

(b) County of Residence. For each civil case filed, except U.S. plaintiff cases, enter the name of the county where the first listed plaintiff resides at the time of filing. In U.S. plaintiff cases, enter the name of the county in which the first listed defendant resides at the time of filing. (NOTE: In land condemnation cases, the county of residence of the "defendant" is the location of the tract of land involved.)

(c) Attorneys. Enter the firm name, address, telephone number, and attorney of record. If there are several attorneys, list them on an attachment, noting in this section "(see attachment)".

II. Jurisdiction. The basis of jurisdiction is set forth under Rule 8(a), F.R.Cv.P., which requires that jurisdictions be shown in pleadings. Place an "X" in one of the boxes. If there is more than one basis of jurisdiction, precedence is given in the order shown below.
United States plaintiff. (1) Jurisdiction based on 28 U.S.C. 1345 and 1348. Suits by agencies and officers of the United States are included here.
United States defendant. (2) When the plaintiff is suing the United States, its officers or agencies, place an "X" in this box.
Federal question. (3) This refers to suits under 28 U.S.C. 1331, where jurisdiction arises under the Constitution of the United States, an amendment to the Constitution, an act of Congress or a treaty of the United States. In cases where the U.S. is a party, the U.S. plaintiff or defendant code takes precedence, and box 1 or 2 should be marked.
Diversity of citizenship. (4) This refers to suits under 28 U.S.C. 1332, where parties are citizens of different states. When Box 4 is checked, the citizenship of the different parties must be checked. (See Section III below; NOTE: federal question actions take precedence over diversity cases.)

III. Residence (citizenship) of Principal Parties. This section of the JS 44 is to be completed if diversity of citizenship was indicated above. Mark this section for each principal party.

IV. Nature of Suit. Place an "X" in the appropriate box. If there are multiple nature of suit codes associated with the case, pick the nature of suit code that is most applicable. Click here for: Nature of Suit Code Descriptions.

V. Origin. Place an "X" in one of the seven boxes.
Original Proceedings. (1) Cases which originate in the United States district courts.
Removed from State Court. (2) Proceedings initiated in state courts may be removed to the district courts under Title 28 U.S.C., Section 1441.
Remanded from Appellate Court. (3) Check this box for cases remanded to the district court for further action. Use the date of remand as the filing date.
Reinstated or Reopened. (4) Check this box for cases reinstated or reopened in the district court. Use the reopening date as the filing date.
Transferred from Another District. (5) For cases transferred under Title 28 U.S.C. Section 1404(a). Do not use this for within district transfers or multidistrict litigation transfers.
Multidistrict Litigation – Transfer. (6) Check this box when a multidistrict case is transferred into the district under authority of Title 28 U.S.C. Section 1407.
Multidistrict Litigation – Direct File. (8) Check this box when a multidistrict case is filed in the same district as the Master MDL docket.
PLEASE NOTE THAT THERE IS NOT AN ORIGIN CODE 7. Origin Code 7 was used for historical records and is no longer relevant due to changes in statute.

VI. Cause of Action. Report the civil statute directly related to the cause of action and give a brief description of the cause. Do not cite jurisdictional statutes unless diversity. Example: U.S. Civil Statute: 47 USC 553 Brief Description: Unauthorized reception of cable service.

VII. Requested in Complaint. Class Action. Place an "X" in this box if you are filing a class action under Rule 23, F.R.Cv.P.
Demand. In this space enter the actual dollar amount being demanded or indicate other demand, such as a preliminary injunction.
Jury Demand. Check the appropriate box to indicate whether or not a jury is being demanded.

VIII. Related Cases. This section of the JS 44 is used to reference related pending cases, if any. If there are related pending cases, insert the docket numbers and the corresponding judge names for such cases.

Date and Attorney Signature. Date and sign the civil cover sheet.

COURTHOUSE NEWS SERVICE, Plaintiff, v. NEW MEXICO ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICE OF THE COURTS; ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICE DIRECTOR ARTHUR W. PEPIN; NEW MEXICO FIRST JUDICIAL DISTRICT COURT CLERK'S OFFICE; and the FIRST JUDICIAL DISTRICT COURT CLERK KATHLEEN VIGIL Defendants.	)	Civil Action No. _____

ORIGINAL COMPLAINT FOR PRELIMINARY AND PERMANENT INJUNCTIVE AND DECLARATORY RELIEF

COMES NOW Plaintiff Courthouse News Service ("Courthouse News"), by and through its undersigned attorneys, and for its Original Complaint for Preliminary and Permanent Injunctive and Declaratory Relief, under the First Amendment of the United States Constitution, 42 U.S.C. § 1983 et seq. of the United States Constitution, federal common law, and the New Mexico Constitution, would show the Court as follows:

I. INTRODUCTION AND BACKGROUND

1. Since time beyond memory, the press has reviewed new civil complaints when they crossed the intake counter in American courts. That was true throughout the nation and it was true in New Mexico. During the transition from paper to electronic court records, federal courts and many state courts kept that tradition in place. But a group of state court clerks abandoned the tradition. They withheld new electronically filed ("e-filed") complaints until they were entered into the docket, delaying access and damaging the news. That group includes Defendants. Courthouse News has been asking New Mexico court officials since 2014 to return the traditional access they took away, but to no avail.

2. The means for providing traditional access in an electronic environment is kept in the palm of Defendants' hand. New Mexico leases e-filing software from a software vendor that has installed a "press review queue" for other court clients. The press review queue provides news reporters, and through them the public, with traditional access to new e-filed complaints when they are received, while they sit in a queue waiting for manual docket entry. It works very much like the box behind the clerk's counter holding the just-filed paper complaints.

3. Even so, Defendants have refused to put in place a press review queue or its functional equivalent. They continue to enforce a no-access-before-process policy and practice that delays the news. Defendants have not given a substantive reason for their policy and practice, relying instead on their governmental power to simply deny access. The result of that policy and practice is that over a recent four-month period, 30% of the new civil complaints filed in New Mexico state courts were withheld for one or more days, representing a total of 2,341 complaints withheld. Since the beginning of 2021, 59% of the new civil complaints filed in the First Judicial District were withheld for one or more days, representing a total of 506 new complaints withheld, including a highly newsworthy action against Los Alamos National Laboratory.

4. Courthouse News now challenges Defendants' policy and practice of withholding public and press access to new civil complaints e-filed with the New Mexico First District Court Clerk's Office ("Clerk's Office") and other district courts under the supervision of New Mexico's Administrative Office of the Courts ("AOC") (collectively, the "New Mexico Courts") under the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution, 42 U.S.C. § 1983, federal common law, and the New Mexico Constitution.

II. JURISDICTION AND VENUE

5. Courthouse News' claims arise under the First Amendment to the United States Constitution, the federal common law, the Civil Rights Act, 42 U.S.C. § 1983 et seq., and the New Mexico Constitution, Art. 2, Sec. 17.

6. This Court has subject matter jurisdiction over this action pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1331 (federal question), 1343 (civil rights), and 2201 (declaratory relief). Jurisdiction for declaratory relief is proper under 28 U.S.C. § 2201. The Court has supplemental jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 1367 over the state law claim brought pursuant to Article 2, Section 17 of the New Mexico Constitution. Defendants are subject to personal jurisdiction in this judicial district at the time this action is commenced.

7. Venue is proper in this judicial district under 28 U.S.C. § 1391(b) because, on information and belief, Defendants reside in New Mexico, reside in this district, and because a substantial part of the events or omissions giving rise to Courthouse News' claims occurred in this district.

III. PARTIES

8. Courthouse News, a California corporation with its principal place of business located in Pasadena, California, is a nationwide news service founded almost 30 years ago out of a belief that a great deal of news about civil litigation went unreported by traditional news media, a trend that has only increased in the last decade. Courthouse News now employs approximately 240 people, most of them editors and reporters, covering state and federal trial and appellate courts in all 50 states in the United States.

9. Defendant Arthur Pepin is the AOC Director. According to its website, the AOC fulfills its purpose in part by "[e]nsuring that the courts have and use current technology" and "[d]eveloping and implementing improved court processes …." Acting in his official capacity, Mr. Pepin and those acting under his direction and supervision are directly involved with and are responsible for the delays in access to new complaints experienced by Courthouse News and other members of the public and press, which acts reflect the official policy and practice of the AOC's office as a whole.

10. Defendant AOC's actions, as alleged in this Complaint, are under color of New Mexico law and constitute state action within the meaning of the Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution and 42 U.S.C. § 1983. Defendant AOC is a resident of Santa Fe, New Mexico and this District, and AOC's primary office is located within Santa Fe, New Mexico and this District. Absent an executed waiver of service, Defendant AOC may be served with process and summons at the principal place of business for Mr. Pepin and the AOC, located at 237 Don Gaspar, Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501, or wherever else he may be found. The AOC may also be served with process through the New Mexico Attorney General, Hector Balderas, at 408 Galisteo Street, Villagra Building, Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501.

11. Defendant New Mexico First Judicial District Court Clerk's Office, according to its website, "is the processing center through which virtually all the court and case documents flow." The Clerk's Office professes efficiency on its website, touting that "[t]he efficiency of the Clerk's office is maintained to ensure that documents are processed accurately and on a timely basis." The District Court Clerk is Kathleen Vigil, and acting in her official capacity, she is directly involved with and responsible for the delays in access to new complaints experienced by Courthouse News and other members of the public and press, which acts reflect the official policy and practice of the Clerk's Office as a whole. Defendant Clerk's Office's actions, as alleged in this Complaint, are under color of New Mexico law and constitute state action within the meaning of the Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution and 42 U.S.C. § 1983. Defendant Clerk's Office is a resident of Santa Fe, New Mexico and this District. Absent an executed waiver of service, Defendant Clerk's Office may be served with process and summons at the principal place of business for Ms. Vigil and the Clerk's Office, located at 225 Montezuma Avenue, Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501, or wherever else she may be found. The Clerk's Office may also be served with process through the New Mexico Attorney General, Hector Balderas, at 408 Galisteo Street, Villagra Building, Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501.

IV. FACTS COMMON TO ALL COUNTS

A. News Reporting Activities of Courthouse News

12. Courthouse News publishes a free public website, featuring news reports and commentary, which is read by roughly 30,000 people every weekday at courthousenews.com. The website functions much like a print daily newspaper, featuring staff-written articles from across the nation that are posted throughout each day, and rotated on and off the page on a 24-hour news cycle.

13. Courthouse News publishes a subscription-based report on appellate rulings and select trial court rulings throughout the nation called the "Daily Brief." It also publishes subscription-based reports on new civil actions called "new litigation reports." Those reports contain original, staff-written summaries of significant new civil complaints, and are sent to subscribers via e-mail each evening. The new litigation report for New Mexico is called the "New Mexico Report" and covers civil complaints filed in the U.S. District Court of New Mexico in addition to civil complaints filed in the county district courts of New Mexico.

14. Courthouse News has been credited as the original source of reporting by: ABA Journal, ABC News, The Atlantic, Black Christian News Network, California Bar Journal, CBS News, The Christian Science Monitor, Forbes, Fox News, Los Angeles Times, National Public Radio (NPR); NBC News, The New York Times, Politico, Rolling Stone, The Wall Street Journal, The Washington Post, USA Today and U.S. News and World Report.

15. Courthouse News has more than 2300 subscribers nationwide, including law firms, law schools, government offices and news outlets such as: The Associated Press, Austin American-Statesman The Atlanta Journal Constitution, The Boston Globe, CNN, The Dallas Morning News, Detroit Free Press, Fox Entertainment Group, Honolulu Civil Beat, Las Vegas Review Journal, Los Angeles Times, North Jersey Media Group, Portland Business Journal, St. Paul Business Journal, The Salt Lake Tribune, The San Jose Mercury News, San Antonio Express News, Tampa Bay Business Journal, The Wall Street Journal, Variety, Walt Disney Company and Warner Bros.

16. Among academic institutions, subscribers to Courthouse News' New Litigation Reports, with access to New Mexico reporting, include Boston College Law School, Boston University, Case Western Reserve University, Harvard Law School, Loyola Law School, MIT Sloan School of Management, Southern Illinois University School of Law, UC Hastings College of Law, and UCLA School of Law. A majority of the nation's large and mid-sized law firms also subscribe to one or more of Courthouse News' publications.

17. The new litigation reports, including the "New Mexico Report," primarily cover new civil complaints filed against business institutions and public entities. They do not cover family law, probate or criminal matters. Courthouse News does not seek to review the tiny fraction of complaints that are sealed, nor those that filed in non-public categories. To write new litigation reports and website stories, Courthouse News' reporters look through the new civil complaints filed each day. In the paper era, they and other reporters on the court beat did so by going to the clerk's office and looking through a stack of just-filed civil complaints. That was true in the state courts of New Mexico and the federal court in New Mexico. Now, in the electronic era, reporters still go to courthouses but they also cover many courts online.

18. Courthouse News has reported on new civil complaints filed in New Mexico since 2005, when it began covering the U. S. District Court in New Mexico and the state district courts in Santa Fe and Albuquerque with a reporter going in person to those courts and reviewing new paper complaints. The paper-era coverage later expanded to include the state courts in Bernalillo and Los Lunas. During those years before e-filing, Courthouse News' reporters could review new civil complaints filed in the state and federal courts after they crossed the intake counter, before docketing was completed.

19. The ability of news reporters to timely report on the day's news thus depended on their ability to see the new complaints after they crossed the intake counter, prior to docketing. Otherwise, the press and public would not know about the new complaints until after docketing was completed and new cases were placed in the court's records room, which involved clerical work that regularly took one day or two, up to a week at times, to complete.

20. New Mexico's courts moved over to e-filing between 2012 and 2015. Since then, it is no longer possible for the press and public to see new civil complaints when they are received. Instead, members of the press and public are required to wait until the new e-filed complaints are docketed or "processed." Images of those complaints can then be seen on computer terminals located within the state courthouses or remotely online.

21. Courthouse News now reports on all the state district courts in New Mexico. Before filing this action, Courthouse News tracked and compiled access data for new civil complaints filed throughout New Mexico's district courts, noting delays between the date each complaint was received and the time it was first available to press and public.

22. For the period February 23, 2021 until June 30, 2021, Courthouse News tracked new non-confidential civil complaints e-filed at each of the New Mexico district courts. This tracking shows that as a whole the New Mexico district courts withheld access to about 30% of new non-confidential civil complaints for one day or more, representing a total of 2,342 new e-filed complaints withheld as a result of Defendants' no-access-before-process policy. Focusing on Santa Fe District Court, the clerk withheld 59% of new non-confidential civil complaints during the same period, representing 506 new e-filed complaints where access was delayed as a result of the no-access-before-process policy. They included a highly newsworthy complaint against Los Alamos National Laboratory over environmental cleanup.

B. Historical Access to New Complaints

23. News coverage operates in a daily cycle where news events, such as New Mexico filing a complaint against Los Alamos National Laboratory, happen during the day and are reported that afternoon and evening, after which newsmakers and reporters sleep, only to start the cycle again the next day. Where news is delayed until the next day or longer, it is devalued by the delay. Just as day-old bread is less likely to be consumed, the news in day-old complaints is less likely to be reported and read, because it is "old news."

24. Traditionally, at courts across the country, reporters could ask for the new complaints at the clerk's counter and see the cases that had just been filed. The complaints were in the past filed in paper form, and intake clerks would set them aside for press review as they came across the counter. When paper was the filing medium in New Mexico courts, news reporters were allowed behind the counter in Santa Fe, Albuquerque, Los Lunas and Bernalillo where the reviewed new civil complaints after they were received and before docketing was completed, in the experience of Courthouse News Reporter Victoria Prieskop.

25. When she began covering the New Mexico courts in 2008, Ms. Prieskop would go to the Santa Fe County District Court on Montezuma Avenue and proceed to the clerk's office, where a member of the clerk's staff opened the door to the area behind the counter. Behind the counter, the reporter made her way to a metal file cabinet on top of which stood a shallow cardboard container, like the top of a box of paper. That container held complaints from that day, prior to their entry into the docket.

26. Ms. Prieskop followed a similar procedure in Albuquerque where the staff opened a door to the area behind the clerk's counter. Behind the counter, she proceeded to a small work carrol where a stack of new, undocketed complaints were placed. She then reviewed the complaints in that stack on the day they were filed, prior to docketing. She also had behind-the-counter access in Los Lunas and Bernalillo.

27. The access was similar in U.S. District Court in New Mexico where Ms. Prieskop visited the clerk's office, identified herself as a journalist and was handed a stack of complaints in blank folders filed that day. She reviewed them at a small table in the public area of the clerk's office.

C. The Switch to E-Filing

28. The State of New Mexico on July 1, 2015 mandated e-filing for new civil actions statewide, although some courts had started e-filing as early as 2012. An e-filed complaint is deemed filed in New Mexico when it is transmitted to the e-filing service provider, no matter what time of day or day of the week. See N.M.R. Civ. P. 1-005.2.G ("If electronic transmission of a document is received before midnight on the day preceding the next business day of the court it will be considered filed on the immediately preceding business day of the court.").

29. In that switch, New Mexico's courts broke with the age-old tradition of access. They began withholding new complaints until they were entered into the docket. The resulting delays in access vary widely among the New Mexico courts, with individual courts regularly withholding access to more than 50% of the day's new complaints. In Santa Fe's First Judicial District, since the beginning of the year, 59% of the new civil complaints have been withheld for one or more days. Overall, the state courts of New Mexico. over the last four months. withheld roughly 30% of the new civil complaints for one or more days, representing a total of 2,342 new complaints.

30. The e-filing process mimics the paper-filing process and is based on a set of common, basic elements: (1) a filer submits a new complaint through an e-file service provider (like a court runner) after filling out a set of required screens that include designating the case type and whether the case is public or non-public; (2) an electronic file manager or EFM catches the new filing (like an intake clerk); (3) the EFM automatically routes the new complaint into each court's clerk review queue (like a stack of new complaints); and (4) a human docketing clerk enters new complaints into the docket as time permits (like always).

31. Traditional access occurred when the new complaint crossed the counter, before it was entered into the docket, analogous to step 3 in the e-filing context. That timing – access upon receipt – has been carried forward into the new electronic world by many state courts, either individually or statewide, in Alabama, California, Connecticut, Georgia, Hawaii, Nevada, New York, Utah, Washington, and soon in Arizona. They give traditional access to new e-filed complaints two ways. One is they push the new complaints automatically into the docket with a permanent case number, so they immediately become public. Two is they send the new non-confidential complaints into a queue where journalists review them before they are entered into the docket, like the stack of paper complaints on top of the metal cabinet in Santa Fe.

32. The federal courts use the same two basic methods. Through the CM/ECF filing system, the great majority of federal courts push new civil complaints automatically into the docket where they can be viewed upon receipt through PACER. That is the method used by the U.S. District Court in New Mexico. Another smaller group of federal courts use method number two, providing access upon receipt, before the complaints are processed into the docket. They do this by assigning a generic number on receipt and then allowing a PACER search on that generic number.

D. New Mexico Has Alternatives to Provide On-Receipt Access

33. As with all those courts, the means for providing access on receipt are readily available to Defendants. The e-filing software used by the New Mexico courts is leased from Texas-based Tyler Technologies ("Tyler"). The multi-billion-dollar software company is the largest private provider of e-filing software for state courts. The Tyler representative in New Mexico conceded in a report prepared by Defendant Pepin that Tyler has developed a press review queue that can be put in place as soon as the administrators indicate which case designations are public.

34. Such press queues have been implemented by Tyler in a host of courts in California and around Atlanta, providing access upon receipt prior to the clerical tasks tied to processing. Clark County Superior Court in Nevada also maintained a Tyler press queue for roughly eight years before moving from the press queue system to automatic assignment of a permanent case number.

35. A common argument from clerks fighting against on-receipt access is to profess a concern with privacy. However, by law, as in those other jurisdictions, New Mexico places the sole responsibility for redacting confidential or sensitive information on the e-filer, not the court clerk. A second common argument by clerks fighting a press queue is to claim it would cost an arm and a leg. But a Tyler representative has already reported to New Mexico court officials that the press queue would be "no cost."

36. New Mexico court officials have made neither of those arguments. Nor have they articulated any reason for denying timely access. They have simply relied on the weight of their governmental power to refuse the return of what was taken away, despite vigorous and repeated requests for reinstatement of traditional access.

E. Harm Caused by No-Access-Before-Process Policy

37. Because news operates in a daily cycle, news that is held out of the day's news cycle becomes stale and is less likely to be reported. "If you don't get it when it's fresh, it's like stale bread. So I think the plaintiff's point on that is well-taken." U.S. District Court Judge Henry Coke Morgan Jr., Eastern District of Virginia, from the bench at the conclusion of a four-day trial last year over the issue of withholding access for processing.

38. In New Mexico, delays are the result of access depending on the completion of clerical tasks by court workers who have many duties. And while a clerk will often attempt to speed up clerical work in the face of a First Amendment suit, the inevitable tendency of busy workers is to return to their earlier pace of activity after a period of time.

39. Santa Fe County District Court and the New Mexico courts overall enforce a no-access-before-process that inevitably results in the withholding of new complaints outside the daily news cycle. During the period February 23, 2021 until June 30, 2021, Santa Fe County District Court has withheld 59% of the new complaints for one or more days, representing a total of 506 new complaints withheld past the day of filing, based on tracking by Ms. Prieskop. Statewide. During that same period, New Mexico district courts as a whole withheld 30`% of the new complaints for one or more days, representing a total of 2,342 new complaints.

40. Illustrating the effect of delayed access, a highly newsworthy complaint was filed at 3.32 P.M. on February 24, 2021 by the New Mexico Environment Department against the U.S. Department of Energy over delays in environmental cleanup at the Los Alamos National Laboratory. Ms. Prieskop heard about the filing through the Associated Press and checked the First District Court docket. She checked on Feb. 24th multiple times and continued to check on Feb. 25th. She checked at 2:21 p.m. on Feb. 25th and it was still not there. The complaint showed up on her next check at 4:45 p.m. on Feb. 25th. Thus, a nationally newsworthy complaint was held outside the news cycle, something that would not have occurred with traditional access in the paper filing era.

V. Roadmap to the Right of Contemporaneous Access

A. History and Logic Test

41. The road to the right of access is marked by signposts written in caselaw. The first signpost points to "history" and "logic" as requirements for a right of access in a criminal proceeding. The next leg of the journey arrives at the same right to documents in civil proceedings. A caselaw marker then points to the requirement of contemporaneous access, and, from there, the road to the right of access, in a sense, runs downhill. In order to deny contemporaneous access, the government must show an "overriding interest," and denial of the right must be "narrowly tailored."

42. The path of analysis starts at the seminal First Amendment opinion Press-

Enterprise Co. v. Superior Court), (1986) ("Press-Enterprise II"), a case over a reporter's right of access to a preliminary hearing in a notorious murder case. In deciding that a right of access attached, the Supreme Court opinion said, "First, there has been a tradition of accessibility …," Press Enterprise II, 478 U.S. 1, 10. See also United States v. Gonzales, 150 F.3d 1246, 1255 (10th Cir. 1998) (discussing two-step analysis of Press Enterprise II.) The tradition of access to new civil complaints was in place throughout the nation's courts and specifically in New Mexico's courts during the era of paper filing. The tradition continues in the modern electronic era in federal courts, including this Court, and a host of state courts including two New Mexico neighbors, Utah and within the year in Arizona. "There is no dispute that, historically, courts have openly provided the press and general public with access to civil complaints." Courthouse News Service v. Schaefer, 440 F. Supp. 3d 532, 559 (E.D. Va. 2020), aff'd, No. 20-1290, 2021 WL 2583389 (4th Cir. June 24, 2021).

43. "The second question is whether public access … plays a particularly significant positive role in the actual functioning of the process," Press Enterprise II, 478 U.S. 1, 11. The new civil complaint serves as the opening attack in a legal battle, just as this complaint does. The ability to be informed about those contests serves a significant positive role in understanding the work of the courts. "Logical considerations also support a presumption of public access," Bernstein v. Bernstein Litowitz & Grossman LLP, 814 F.3d 132, 141 (2d Cir. 2016.) The right to review new civil complaints "is an indispensable predicate to free expression about the workings of government." Courthouse News Serv. v. Planet, 750 F.3d 776, 785, 787 (9th Cir. 2014) ("Planet I"); accord, Courthouse News Service v. Schaefer, 440 F. Supp. 3d 532, 557-559 (E.D. Va. 2020) ("Thus, the Court FINDS that the logic prong is met. Accordingly, the Court FINDS that the experience and logic test is satisfied and FINDS that the public and press enjoy a qualified First Amendment right of access to newly-filed civil complaints….”). That ruling was recently affirmed by the Fourth Circuit in Courthouse News Service v. Schaefer, No. 20-1290, 2021 WL 2583389 (4th Cir. June 24, 2021).

44. The first federal judge to consider the precise issue of a no-access-before-process policy, identical to the policy challenged here, was U.S. District Court Judge Melinda Harmon in the Southern District of Texas in 2009. “The First Amendment to the United States Constitution prohibits any law ‘abridging the freedom of . . . the press.’ It requires a presumption of openness of both the courtroom and court files…. Thus, there is a presumption in favor of public access to judicial records.” Courthouse News Serv. v. Jackson, C.A. No. H-09-1844, 2009 WL 2163609, at *4-5 (S.D. Tex. July 20, 2009) (citations omitted). See also Planet III, 947 F.3d at 581, 589. (“We have long presumed a First Amendment ‘right of access to court proceedings and documents.’”).

B. Right of Access Attaches on Receipt

45. Moving to the next stop on the right of access roadmap, a broad range of federal courts have said that once the right of access attaches, it must be contemporaneous. “Because the public benefits attendant with open proceedings are compromised by delayed disclosure of documents, we … emphasize that the public and press generally have a contemporaneous right of access to court documents.” Doe v. Public Citizen, 749 F.3d 246, 272. (4th Cir. 2014). A series of decisions addressing no-access-before-process policies define contemporaneous as the time of the time of filing. Planet III, 947 F.3d at 594, which is also the time of receipt. (Qualified First Amendment right of access to civil complaints arises when the complaints are “filed with the court.”)

46. In a 2021 decision, applying this precedent to the precise policy challenged here,

U.S. District Court Judge Dolly Gee wrote: "There is a qualified First Amendment right of timely access to newly filed civil complaints" that "attaches when new complaints are received by a court, rather than after they are 'processed,' – i.e. rather than after the performance of administrative tasks that follow the court's receipt of a new complaint." Courthouse News Service v. Planet, No. 11-cv-8083, 2021 WL 1605216, Amd. Judgment for Dec. Relief and Perm. Injunction, Doc. No. 270, p. 1 (C.D. Cal., Jan. 26, 2021).

47. Examining the same no-access-before-process policy in Manhattan's state court, U.S. District Court Judge Edgardo Ramos wrote, "Accordingly, the court entered an order prohibiting the clerk from refusing to make complaints available until after they were processed and directing the clerk to make such complaints accessible to the public and the press in a timely manner from the moment they are received by the Court," Courthouse News Service v. Tingling, No. 16 Civ. 8742 (ER), 2016 WL 8739010 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 16, 2016), Transcript Proceeding, Order Reported at 16 Civ. 8742, 2016 WL 8505086 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 16, 2016). Within six weeks of that ruling, New York courts began providing on-receipt access to new e-filed civil complaints through a public website.

D. No-Access-Before-Process Policy and Practice Neither Based on Overriding Interest Nor Narrowly Tailored

48. Once the right of access attaches, denial of the right must serve an "overriding interest" and be "narrowly tailored." Press Enterprise II. In that guiding decision, the competing interest was the right to a fair trial. Here, the competing interest is clerical work. That interest does not override the First Amendment. And because the clerks of New Mexico have ample alternate means for providing access upon receipt, denial of the right of contemporaneous access is not narrowly tailored.

49. A line of federal judges, examining the identical policy at issue here, have concluded that it violates the First Amendment. Faced with Houston court clerk Loren Jackson's no-access-before-process policy, Judge Melinda Harmon wrote: "The Court finds that they have failed to demonstrate that the 24 to 72 hour delay in access is narrowly tailored to serve such an interest and that no less restrictive means of achieving that interest exists." See Courthouse News Serv. v. Jackson, C.A. No. H-09-1844, 2009 WL 2163609, at *4-5 (S.D. Tex. July 20, 2009). She enjoined Jackson from withholding access to the new civil complaints.

50. Faced with a no-access-before-process policy in Manhattan's state court, Judge Ramos wrote, "The court concluded that the clerk failed to meet its burden of demonstrating that its policy of refusing to provide public and press access to newly filed complaints until they are processed is either essential to preserve higher values or is narrowly tailored to serve a substantial government interest." Courthouse News Service v. Tingling, No. 16-cv-08742, 2016 WL 8739010, at *19 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 16, 2016) (transcript of bench ruling).

51. Considering the same policy enforced by Virginia clerks in a paper context, U.S. District Court Judge Henry Coke Morgan Jr. wrote: "Defendants have failed to prove that their practices and customs that lead to the substantial delays in this case were narrowly tailored to serve those government interests." Courthouse News Service v. Schaefer, 440 F. Supp. 3d 532, 559 (E.D. Va. 2020). The Fourth Circuit recently affirmed, concluding at p. 12 of the opinion: "The press and public enjoy a First Amendment right of access to newly filed civil complaints. This right requires courts to make newly filed civil complaints available as expeditiously as possible." Courthouse News Service v. Schaefer, No. 20-1290, 2021 WL 2583389, at *8 (4th Cir. June 24, 2021).

52. The Ninth Circuit panel in Planet III wrote, "This case pits the urgency of reporting on, and the public interest in obtaining, contemporaneous news about filings in our courts against administrative interests in the fair and orderly processing of those filings…. Ventura County has not shown a 'substantial probability' that more contemporaneous access to the newly filed complaints would impair its interest in orderly administration." Planet III, 947 F.3d at 585.

E. Alternatives for Access Allow Clerk to Continue Clerical Work

53. It is highly practicable to provide the same access under an e-filing system as existed under a paper filing system, as demonstrated by the many different courts using a multiplicity of e-filing systems that provide access on receipt. Instead of basic intake work being done by clerks at an intake window, that work is now done by e-filing software that requires the filer to complete entries identifying court, case type, payment, and much more. Based on the case type designated by the filer, the e-file manager automatically sorts the new, non-confidential complaints into a review queue that serves the same function as the stack of new complaints on top of the cabinet behind the clerk's counter. That way the press can report on new complaints when they are filed as busy clerks complete their clerical duties when time permits.

54. In a 2018 email from Tyler Technologies executive Colleen Reilly, attached to a report by Defendant Pepin on the feasibility of a press queue, she wrote: "We did build a configuration for Las Vegas, Nevada to see filings before they are accepted by the Court. Since that time, there are a few counties in Georgia who are using the same approach. The configuration is in our database, so it is something Tyler would need to do. There is no cost associated with this work." Defendant Pepin is thus aware that the current denial of contemporary access to new civil complaints filed in New Mexico's courts is not narrowly tailored.

55. Courthouse News seeks declaratory relief and an injunction prohibiting the Defendants' current no-access-before-process policy and practice.

VI. COUNT ONE

(Violation of U.S. Const. Amend. I and 42 U.S.C. § 1983)

56. Courthouse News incorporates the allegations of Paragraphs 1-55 herein.

48. Defendants' actions under color of state law, including without limitation their policy and practice of withholding newly filed civil complaints from press and public view until after administrative processing, and the resulting denial of timely access to new civil complaints upon receipt for filing, deprives Courthouse News, and by extension its subscribers, of their right of timely access to public court records secured by the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

57. The presumption of access to new civil complaints, which arises when those complaints are filed in New Mexico's state district courts may be restricted only if closure is essential to preserve higher values and is narrowly tailored to serve those interests. Press-Enterprise II). Defendants cannot satisfy this test.

58. Courthouse News has no adequate and speedy remedy at law to prevent or redress Defendant's unconstitutional actions, and will suffer irreparable harm as a result of Defendant's violation of its First Amendment rights. Courthouse News is therefore entitled to a declaratory judgment and a preliminary and permanent injunction to prevent further deprivation of the First Amendment rights guaranteed to it and its subscribers.

VI. COUNT TWO

(Violation of Federal Common Law and 42 U.S.C. § 1983)

59. Courthouse News incorporates the allegations of Paragraphs 1-58.

60. Defendants' actions under color of state law, including without limitation their denial of timely access to new civil court complaints deprive members of the press, including

Courthouse News and by extension its subscribers, of their right of access to public court records guaranteed by federal common law.

61. There is no legitimate justification for withholding new complaints that is sufficient to overcome the common law right of Courthouse News and its subscribers to be able to timely review new case-initiating documents.

62. Courthouse News has no adequate and speedy remedy at law to prevent or redress Defendants' unconstitutional actions, and will suffer irreparable First Amendment harm as a result of Defendants' violation of its common law right of access. Courthouse News is therefore entitled to declaratory and permanent injunctive relief to prevent further deprivation of the rights guaranteed to it and its subscribers under the common law.

VII. COUNT THREE

(Violation of New Mexico Const. Art. 2, Sec. 17)

63. Courthouse News incorporates the allegations of Paragraphs 1-62 herein.

64. Defendants' actions under color of state law, including without limitation the denial of timely access to new civil court complaints and Defendants' elevation of themselves above the news media to a favored position with respect to the publication of public court records, in order to extract income from them, deprive members of the press, including Courthouse News and by extension its subscribers, of their right of access to public court records secured by the free press provision of Article 2, Section 17 of the New Mexico Constitution.

65. There is no compelling or overriding interest or other justification sufficient to overcome Defendants actions in violation of the New Mexico Constitution. And even if an overriding interest did exist, there are less restrictive means of achieving any such interest, and the procedures implemented by Defendants are not narrowly tailored to serve any overriding interest.

66. Courthouse News has no adequate and speedy remedy at law to prevent or redress Defendants' unconstitutional actions, and will suffer irreparable harm as a result of Defendants' violation of its rights under Article 2, Section 17 of the New Mexico Constitution. Courthouse News is therefore entitled to declaratory and permanent injunctive relief to prevent further deprivation of the rights guaranteed to it and its subscribers under the New Mexico Constitution.

X. PRAYER FOR RELIEF

WHEREFORE, Plaintiff Courthouse News Service prays for judgment against Defendants as follows:

A. For preliminary and permanent injunctions against Defendants, including their agents, assistants, successors, employees, and all persons acting in concert or cooperation with them, or at their direction or under their control, prohibiting them from denying Courthouse News access to new civil court, case-initiating complaints until after administrative processing.

B. For a declaratory judgment pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2201 declaring the denial of access to new civil court, case-initiating complaints until after administrative processing as unconstitutional under the First and Fourteenth Amendments to the United States Constitution and Article 2, Section 17 of the New Mexico Constitution, for the reason that it constitutes an effective denial of timely access to court records.

C. For an award of costs and reasonable attorneys' fees pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1988; and

D. For all other relief the Court deems just and proper.

EXHIBIT A

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE DISTRICT OF NEW MEXICO

COURTHOUSE NEWS SERVICE, Plaintiff, v. NEW MEXICO ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICE OF THE COURTS; ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICE DIRECTOR ARTHUR W. PEPIN; NEW MEXICO FIRST JUDICIAL DISTRICT COURT CLERK'S OFFICE; and the FIRST JUDICIAL DISTRICT COURT CLERK KATHLEEN VIGIL Defendants.	)	Civil Action No. _____

DECLARATION OF WILLIAM GIRDNER IN SUPPORT OF PLAINTIFF COURTHOUSE NEWS SERVICE'S MOTION FOR PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION

I, William Girdner, declare and state as follows:

I am the publisher of Courthouse News Service ("Courthouse News"), the plaintiff in the above-captioned action. I make this declaration in support of Courthouse News' Motion for Preliminary Injunction. I have personal knowledge of the following facts and would and could testify to them if called as a witness.

I. Introduction

1. Since time beyond memory in America courts, the press has reviewed new civil complaints when they crossed the clerk's intake counter. This was true as well throughout the Southwest. In the transition from paper to electronic filing, federal courts and many state courts continued that tradition of access. But another group of court clerks took it away when they switched. They began withholding access to the new e-filed complaints (or petitions) until after they were docketed by court staff, which often took days or even weeks, thereby impeding news coverage of the courts. For more than a decade, Courthouse News has fought against those access take-aways. The objective of that campaign is simply stated: "Please return the access you took away." This is the precise relief sought by this action.

II. Courthouse News Publications and Subscribers

2. Courthouse News is now a nationwide news service with a network of reporters based across the nation. Courthouse News currently employs approximately 240 people, most of them editors and reporters, covering state and federal trial and appellate courts in all 50 states in the United States. We provide reports on appellate rulings, legislation, and new civil cases from federal and state courts around the country. We also cover news from courts in the European Union and general news that ranges from politics to the environment and science and just about any topic that might interest readers.

3. I began Courthouse News in 1990 out of a belief that the traditional news media failed to cover much of the important business of the courts. At the time, I was working in the press room at the federal court in Los Angeles. Towards the end of the workday, journalists working in the press room trooped down to the clerk's office and looked through a stack of new complaints handed to us by the longtime intake clerk. We were looking for news.

4. As Courthouse News expanded beyond California, I handled all the initial scouting of access and the hiring of local reporters. I found the same tradition in all the courts I visited. The clerks gave journalists access to the new paper complaints filed that day, in a box of some kind, wood, plastic or cardboard. This remained true as our coverage expanded to every region of the United States, including Seattle, Portland, Phoenix, Albuquerque, Houston, Dallas, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Indianapolis, Chicago, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Boston, New York, Atlanta, Miami, New Orleans and courts in between.

5. Courthouse News now publishes an open, public website for daily news – courthousenews.com – as well as subscription-based reports on new appellate and some trial court rulings, and subscription-based reports on new civil litigation through its New Litigation Reports. The New Litigation Reports feature original, staff-written summaries of newsworthy civil actions filed in federal and state courts within a jurisdiction such as New Mexico, primarily those against business and public entities, and they are sent to subscribers every weeknight. The reports do not cover criminal, domestic or probate matters. Around the nation, Courthouse News publishes 127 new litigation reports. In New Mexico courts, reporter Victoria Prieskop writes articles for the Courthouse News website and also writes a daily New Litigation report that covers civil actions filed in the U.S. District Court of New Mexico and 13 state judicial districts covering 33 county courts in New Mexico. The New Mexico Report counts 42 subscribing institutions.

6. Courthouse News has more than 2,300 subscribers, including law firms, law schools, libraries, nonprofits, government entities and businesses. A substantial number of news and entertainment outlets are also subscribers, including The Associated Press, The Boston Globe, Buzzfeed, Chicago Tribune, CNN, Fox Corporation, Los Angeles Times, The Wall Street Journal, and Warner Bros. Within the nation's press corps, Courthouse News has been credited as the original source of reporting by many news outlets, such as The New York Times, The Wall Street Journal, New York Magazine, U.S. News and World Report, ABC News, Fox News, The Daily Beast, Politico and NPR.

7. The Courthouse News' website (www.courthousenews.com) features news reports and commentary read by hundreds of thousands of readers each month. The website functions much like a daily print newspaper, posting staff-written articles from throughout the nation that are published and rotate off the page in a 24-hour cycle. It regularly includes articles written by Ms. Prieskop, our New Mexico reporter.

III. The Importance of Contemporaneous Access

8. From my experience covering civil litigation for more than three decades, my own in-person visits to many state and federal courts, discussions with court officials, as well as the supervision of Courthouse News' reporters and bureau chiefs around the country, I have developed extensive personal knowledge of the procedures used by courts to give press access to new complaints. I have also developed extensive personal knowledge of how delays in access to new complaints affect news coverage. This knowledge is based on my experience as the editor of Courthouse News as well as my personal observations of competing media coverage.

9. A new civil complaint is "the gong of war," as I put it, announcing a legal conflict. The ensuing battle can be one of great public interest, concerning civil rights, free speech, dangerous products, financial manipulation, environmental harm, development projects, horrific accidents and natural cataclysms. Obtaining complaints directly from the court is the only way for reporters to provide the public with consistent and reliable information about new civil actions at the court. There is no alternative unless the filing party issues a press release, which happens only once in a great while.

10. The creation and consumption of news operates in a daily cycle where events happen, reporters report on them, people see or read the stories, and then everybody goes to sleep. The cycle then starts all over again the next morning. A delay of even one day in obtaining access to new civil complaints means that news is delayed by at least a full news cycle, making it much less likely to be reported. New is comparable to bread, fresh on the day it's made, stale the next.

11. In order to prepare new litigation reports, Courthouse News reporters visit their courts, or court websites, and check for the latest civil complaints, including a final check made just before reports are published usually between 6:00 and 7:00 P.M. local times. They write summaries of the newsworthy complaints and include them in their daily report. Given the nature of the coverage in the New Litigation Reports and its other news publications, any delay in the ability of a reporter to obtain and review new petitions necessarily holds up the reporting on the new actions for subscribers and readers. A delay of even a single day means that news is delayed by at least one full news cycle. Especially in today's digital age, the newsworthiness of new civil actions declines with time. Civil actions not reported on when they are received by a court are effectively suppressed, less likely to prompt news coverage, and thus less likely to come to the public's attention as the days pass.

IV. Advent of E-Filing in New Mexico

12. Courthouse News has reported on new complaints filed in New Mexico courts since 2005. Until approximately 2011, the Courthouse News reporter was allowed behind the counter to review new civil complaints on the day they were filed in Bernalillo, Santa Fe, Sandoval and Valencia counties, before docketing was completed. That was the tradition, and the New Mexico courts were strong examples of traditional press access to paper filings.

13. Around 2012, the New Mexico courts began switching from paper to electronic filing, using a single vendor for all its district courts, Texas-based software giant Tyler Technologies. Access began to deteriorate some time after that, and in 2015, I wrote to officials in Albuquerque, asking for a return to the previous status quo and suggesting an inbox similar to what the court in Las Vegas was providing, using the same Tyler software used by New Mexico. No change resulted. In response to another request from me for a press review queue, Defendant

Pepin prepared a memorandum dated Nov. 30, 2018 addressed to members of the New Mexico Supreme Court. He wrote, "I confirmed that Nevada, Georgia and California have had Tyler install at no cost to the courts a press queue as Mr. Girdner requests of New Mexico." See Exhibit A-1 (attached hereto and incorporated by reference).

14. In that same memorandum, Defendant Pepin attached an email from the Tyler representative for New Mexico, Colleen Reilly, in which she said, "The Court would tell us the location and case types that would be made accessible, and we do the configuration." See id. at Attachment F (p. 47 of PDF). Defendant Pepin then presented an administrative choice: "Two options for responding to the CNS letter are to have Tyler install the press queue or deny the request and await litigation in federal court." See Exhibit A-1 at p. 3.

15. Following that memorandum, Courthouse News was directed to make its bid for a press queue by proceeding within the byzantine committee system of the Administrative Office of the Courts, which it did by letter dated October 9, 2019 to Supreme Court Clerk Joey Moya. Exhibit A-2 (attached hereto and incorporated by reference). That bid resulted in nothing more than a letter dated May 29, 2020, from Clerk of Court Joey Moya, who said his referral of Courthouse News to the Online Access Subcommittee was "in error." See Exhibit A-3 (attached hereto and incorporated by reference). In fact, as his letter informed, the decision to deny the Courthouse News request had been made some time earlier.

16. I subsequently wrote a letter to former Chief Justice Judith Nakamura dated July 6, 2020, explaining the capricious nature of the committee process and the complete lack of reasoning for the denial of our request, a letter which has not been answered. See Exhibit A-4 (attached hereto and incorporated herein by reference). Subsequently, on July 1, 2021, I wrote to Kathleen Vigil, District Court Clerk of the New Mexico First Judicial District Court, requesting pre-processing access to new complaints. See Exhibit A-5 (attached hereto and incorporated herein by reference). No response was received by the date of this filing. These responses (or non-responses), left me with the second option set out in Defendant Pepin's memorandum – litigation in federal court.

V. Ten Different E-Filing Systems Provide On-Receipt Access

17. In 2010, Clark County District Court in Las Vegas, Nevada, switched to e-filing, using software by a small company called Wiznet. Reporters covering the court had long had access to copies of new paper complaints when they crossed the counter. Within roughly a year after the court moved to e-filing, an icon appeared on the public access terminals titled "Court Daily." Through the Court Daily, reporters saw new complaints as they were electronically received, before clerical processing. That timing matched the traditional access reporters previously had to paper complaints in Clark County Superior. The new complaints in the "Court Daily" queue did not have permanent case numbers, only electronic transaction numbers. This was the first state court example of what is now called a "press queue."

18. Wiznet was bought around 2012 by software giant Tyler Technologies, the company that now leases e-filing software to New Mexico. Tyler thus inherited the Las Vegas "Court Daily." Since then, at the request of local court officials, Tyler has set up press queues in six courts in Georgia and five in California, including the superior courts for the counties of Fresno, Kern, Santa Clara, Monterey and Santa Barbara. Three more California courts, relying on Tyler software, have recently agreed to settle litigation by installing Tyler press queues in San Mateo, Sonoma and Santa Cruz superior courts.

19. But Tyler is far from the only system that provides the press with access at the time a new civil complaint is received. At least 10 state court e-filing software systems now provide the press or press and public with access on receipt. Those 10 include e-file systems that are vendor-provided and home-grown. Los Angeles Superior (which handles the greatest volume of cases of any court in the nation) provides on receipt access through its Media Access Portal programmed by Journal Technologies. San Francisco Superior owns its own E-file Manager, or EFM, and provides on-receipt access through File & ServeXpress. Orange County Superior uses a home-grown e-filing system, called CCMS, and has promised on-receipt access through an "Electronic Media Inbox" within roughly two months.

20. Using different home-grown systems, Hawaii, Connecticut and New York provide statewide access on-receipt. In Washington, courts in Seattle and Tacoma also give on-receipt access through home-grown systems. Arizona has promised the same through its vendor Granicus. Utah relies on vendor Tybera to give on-receipt access. Alabama uses Online Information Services to give on-receipt access. Finally, on the federal side, PACER was developed by the federal government and it also provides on-receipt access.

21. Those e-file systems provide on-receipt access through two basic methods. Some of them provide on-receipt access through a press or public queue before a permanent case number is assigned by a human clerk – generally referred to as a press queue system. Others automatically assign a permanent case number and send the new filing into the public docket – generally called an auto-accept system. The U.S. District of New Mexico uses the latter system, automatically assigning a case number and sending the new complaint into the public docket whenever it is filed, including after hours and on weekends. That is the method used by most federal courts, but a few use a press queue equivalent by automatically assigning a temporary number and allowing searches on that temporary number.

22. The number and variety of e-filing systems that provide access on receipt illustrate the simple truth that it is highly practicable to give reporters access to new e-filed civil action as they are received, just as it was with paper filings. Defendants have alternatives through which they can provide traditional, on-receipt access in the electronic environment. Most federal courts and many state courts provide press and public with on-receipt access through at least ten different e-file systems. One of them is the e-filing system leased by New Mexico state courts from Texas-based Tyler Technologies. Other courts using Tyler's e-file system, in California, Nevada and Georgia, give on-receipt access through Tyler's "press review queue." But New Mexico has refused to direct Tyler to put a press queue in place or provide on-receipt access by any other alternative.

VI. Common Components to an E-Filing System

1. E-filing systems use the following common components: (i) an e-file service provider (essentially an attorney service) presents an interface to the e-filer that requires the filer to enter information such as court, document type, case type and more, before the filer attaches a document and presses "submit"; (ii) the main engine of the e-file system, the e-file manager or EFM, catches the submission and sends it to a clerk work queue; (iii) the filings sit in that work queue until the clerk's staff does its clerical work and pushes the new filing into the "case management system," (CMS) or docket. The amount of time the new filing sits in the queue is estimated by the New Mexico courts to be "24 – 48 hours for clerk office processing" in an email sent to filers after a complaint is filed.

2. Intake work that was previously done by a clerk sitting at the counter is now done by the software screens that require the e-filer to complete information. Those screens, including those used by filers in New Mexico, require that the e-filer designate the type of case being filed by choosing from a drop-down menu.. Based on the case type designation, the EFM automatically sorts the non-confidential complaints into a press review queue. That queue, with all its different names, Media Access Portal, Electronic Media Inbox and Press Review Queue, serves the same function as the physical box that sat at the physical counter and held the just-filed paper complaints. That is the electronic access New Mexico will not allow.

VII. The Necessity for Injunctive Relief

3. In the decade-long campaign to take back the access that was taken away, I have observed that it is common for state courts to speed up the clerical tasks associated with docketing after being served with a First Amendment complaint based on a no-access-before-process policy. The defending clerks use that defensive tactic to undercut the claim of First Amendment harm. The tactic is generally used only so long as the wolf of litigation is at the clerk's door. For example, prior to the complaint against the clerk in Orange County, California, in Courthouse News v. Yamasaki, 8:17-cv-00126 AG, the delays in access were running between one and two days. After the complaint was filed, the delays dropped dramatically to one day or less. But once the clerk obtained a favorable ruling, which was later reversed, the delays reverted to the previous levels and were often greater, as much as three or four days behind filing. I testified to this phenomenon before U.S. Judge Henry Coke Morgan Jr. during a trial in early 2020 on a similar policy holding up access until scanning and indexing enforced by two court clerks in Virginia. Judge Morgan ultimately issued a declaratory judgment finding that on-receipt access was required, and his decision was recently affirmed on June 24, 2021 by the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals. See Courthouse News Service v. Schaefer, No. 20-1290, 2021 WL 2583389 (4th Cir. June 243, 2021 (affirming declaratory relief and rejecting abstention defense).

4. That common tactic of temporarily speeding up clerical work in response to a First Amendment action demonstrates why a court order in the form of an injunction is needed to return to the former, longtime status quo of traditional, contemporaneous access to new civil complaints when they cross the counter.

VIII. Prior Cases and Injunctions

5. The conversion from paper to electronic filings has taken place in sporadic fashion among state courts over roughly the last two decades, starting first with scanning programs, then voluntary e-filing, then mandatory e-filing. In some states, such as New Mexico, the changeover was centrally directed and in others, such as California, it was locally directed by courts using an assortment of different vendors and home-grown systems.

6. In that process, many states voluntarily provided electronic access on receipt just as they had to paper. Hawaii, for example, had a long tradition in each island court of putting the new, paper-filed civil complaints out for public view in the clerk's office as soon as they crossed the counter, a public policy I witnessed in each island's courthouse. When Hawaii moved to e-filing in 2019, the courts provided public, on-receipt access to the new e-filings, just as it had with paper filings, in all seven island courts. Utah also gave public, on-receipt access to new e-filings on its own initiative. And the federal courts, in the switch to e-filing, also provided public, on-receipt access voluntarily, on their own initiative.

7. Another group of state courts have provided press review queues based on a simple request from the press. The original press queue court in Las Vegas, the behemoth superior court in Los Angeles, the courts around Atlanta -- all put press queues in place based on a request. New Mexico's neighbor, Arizona, has also promised to install a statewide press queue shortly, based simply on a letter requesting it.

8. A third group of state courts have promptly agreed to provide on-receipt access at the outset of litigation. They include four courts in California, in the counties of Santa Clara, Sonoma, San Mateo and Santa Cruz.

9. But a large cohort of state court clerks have fought First Amendment access with every tactic at their disposal, including, in Virginia, repeatedly denying the existence of evidence of delay until it was revealed during a deposition of the IT director for Virginia's Office of the Executive Secretary, the equivalent of state court administrative offices in other states. In California, the ten-year war of litigation between opposing law firms representing this news service and the Judicial Council demonstrates the ferocity of the opposition by some clerks to access on-receipt.

IX. Time-Line of Litigation Against Hard-Core Clerks

10. As a result of those die-hard positions, Courthouse News has filed a series of First Amendment complaints against state court clerks, but only when it became absolutely necessary. The first complaint was filed in 2009 in federal court in Houston, Courthouse News v. Jackson, Case No. 09-cv-1844. After a tradition of behind-the-counter, on-receipt access to new paper complaints, that I witnessed myself in establishing our Houston coverage, a new clerk came into office with the slogan, "Get online, not in line." Clerk Loren Jackson promptly kicked all reporters out from behind the counter and required that they wait to see new complaints until they were scanned and docketed. After a half-day hearing before U.S. District Court Judge Melinda Harmon, where I testified, the judge enjoined the clerk's policy in Courthouse News v. Jackson, 2009 WL 2163609 (S.D. Tex. July 20, 2009). The case was then settled with the clerk agreeing to provide access to all new complaints filed before the clerk's office closed. That settlement came before I realized that an electronic press queue, first seen in Las Vegas two years later, was feasible.

11. Following on that win, Courthouse News in 2011 filed a First Amendment action against the clerk in Ventura Superior Court in California, Michael Planet. The tradition of access had long existed in that court where a plastic, white, media bin still stood on the counter. But the media bin had been rendered useless by the clerk's policy of holding back new complaints until they were docketed, with the result that a seemingly random assortment of new complaints ended up in the media bin long after they had been filed. That litigation resulted in a summary judgment decision on May 26, 2016 by U.S. District Court Judge James Otero in Courthouse News v. Planet, 2016 WL 4157210 (C.D. Cal. May 26, 2016). He found that the right of access attaches upon receipt and enjoined the clerk's no-access-before-process policy.

12. Not long after that win, Courthouse News filed an action in November 2016 in the Southern District of New York against Manhattan's state court clerk in Courthouse News Service v. Milton Tingling, 1:16-cv-08742-ER. I had established coverage in that trial court, New York County Supreme Court, where the press was allowed behind the counter to check the new paper complaints. We could stay after the filing window closed in order to see every last complaint filed that day. A new clerk was elected and moved the court to mandatory e-filing, while imposing a no-access-before-process policy. Major cases were then missed on the day of filing, such as then-candidate Donald Trump's 2015 complaint over Latin network Univision's cancellation of his beauty pageant because of his anti-Mexican remarks. I watched a segment about the complaint that evening on BBC but we could not see the case at the courthouse because it had not been processed. U.S. District Court Judge Edgardo Ramos enjoined the clerk's policy in Courthouse News v. Tingling, 2016 WL 8739010 (S.D.N.Y. Dec. 16, 2016). Within six weeks New York's court administration had put in place a public queue to see new civil complaints on receipt, which now gives access to 60 e-filing courts in New York.

13. A year later, in December 2017, Courthouse News filed a First Amendment action against the clerk in Chicago's Cook County Circuit Court, Dorothy Brown. I had established coverage in that court where journalists worked in a press room one floor below the clerk's office. We would go upstairs towards the end of the day and, based on recognition, push through a wood gate into the area behind the clerk's counter. We reviewed the new paper complaints placed in a black, plastic tray next to the intake clerk's window, made copies on the court's photocopy machine, and could stay until the last supervisor left. As she switched over to voluntary e-filing, the clerk delayed access to new complaints until after processing. U.S. District Court Judge Matthew Kennelly enjoined that policy, writing: "Brown has made no effort to explain why it is not feasible for her to adopt any one of the various methods that numerous other state and federal courts currently use to provide public access to e-filed complaints before they have been fully processed." Courthouse News Serv. v. Brown, 2018 WL 318485, at *6 (N.D. Ill. Jan. 8, 2018). But the clerk successfully appealed to the Seventh Circuit. Courthouse News Serv. v. Brown, 908 F.3d 1063, 1069 (7th Cir. 2018), cert. denied, 140 S. Ct. 384 (2019) (mem.). I attended the argument in person and watched as a brand-new appointee to the court, Judge Michael Scudder, sat on the bench nodding vigorously in apparent agreement with arguments against abstention, and then joined in the decision to abstain.

14. That same year, 2018, Courthouse News filed a First Amendment action against two Virginia court clerks who, in paper courts, had adopted no-access-before-scan-and-index policies. U.S. District Court Judge Henry Coke Morgan Jr. rejected the Seventh Circuit's Brown abstention ruling. Courthouse News Service v. Schaeffer, 2019 WL 8062550, *9-10 (E.D. Va. Mar. 18, 2019). Then, two events unfolded in quick sequence. In January 2020, the Ninth Circuit ruled in Planet III, rejecting Brown's abstention holding and finding the right of access attached on receipt. Judge Morgan then presided over a four-day trial in February 2020, which culminated in his declaratory order in Courthouse News Service v. Schaefer, 440 F. Supp.3d 532 (E.D. Va. 2020), where he found the press and public enjoyed a qualified right of access to newly-filed civil complaints "contemporaneous with the filing of the complaint." Id. at 559. The court clerks appealed, but the Fourth Circuit recently rejected the appeal on June 24, 2021, holding that declaratory relief was proper and rejecting the abstention argument advanced by the clerks. See Courthouse News Service v. Schaefer, No. 20-1290, 2021 WL 2583389 (4th Cir. June 243, 2021).

15. In early 2021, the merits portion of the decade of litigation between Courthouse News and the California Judicial Council came to an end, Courthouse News v. Planet, No. 11-cv-8083, 2021 WL 1605216 (C.D. Cal., Jan 26, 2021) (Amended Judgment). U.S. District Court Judge Dorothy Gee again enjoined Ventura clerk Planet's no-access-before-process-policy, ruling unequivocally that the right of access attaches on receipt, before processing. Id. at *1.

16. I have pursued these cases over the years, at great expense and as a last resort, driven by a fundamental conviction that our nation's founding principles form the core of a democratic ideal that is worth fighting for, and should be fought for. The public officials I have challenged have used their public position and the public's power and assets to diminish, chip away at, and undermine those founding principles, and the traditions kept under their aegis. Because it is not their money, but instead the public's money, those public officials have been willing to risk a multi-million dollar sanction in the form of attorney fees in order to force their claim on public documents over that of the public itself and the journalists who act as the people's surrogates, their ambassadors. Showing the depth of their intransigence and the strength of their sinecures, court clerks and administrators, clothed in the mantle of the people, have defied the string of federal rulings that directly address and prohibit no-access-before-process policies, even within the Ninth Circuit, and continue to brazenly enforce such policies in violation of the First Amendment. That is why I have authorized the prosecution of these cases and spent a great share of our news service's income in defending the tradition of open courts.

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States of America that the foregoing is true and correct.

Executed in Pasadena, California on this 22nd day of July, 2021.

MEMORANDUM

TO: Chief Justice Judith Nakamura, Justice Petra Jimenez Maes, Justice Barbara Vigil, Justice Charles Daniels, and Justice Gary L. Clingman
FROM: Artie Pepin
DATE: November 30, 2018
RE: COURTHOUSE NEWS SERVICE REQUEST FOR ACCESS TO COURT FILINGS

On Wednesday, November 26, 2018, Chief Justice Nakamura received a letter from Bill Girdner, Editor for Courthouse News Service (CNS) requesting that New Mexico courts establish a "press queue" to provide immediate access "to newly efiled complaints and subsequent filings upon receipt, at the same time as the filing." A copy of the letter is attached as A. CNS wants to get copied on everything submitted for efiling before it is entered in a court queue and reviewed by the court to be accepted or rejected. Among possible responses to the letter are (1) the requested access will be granted as soon as we can arrange for Tyler to install the press queue, or (2) no. If the latter it seems very likely CNS will soon litigate the matter in federal court.

Litigation Addressing the CNS Claim to a Constitutional Right to Immediate Access to Documents Sent to a Court for Electronic Filing

Litigation in California and Illinois makes it clear that CNS places a high monetary value on immediate access to pleadings even before they are accepted by a court and without waiting until the court accepts the filing. I did not research the issue fully and there may be other cases. In a California case that has gone to the Ninth Circuit and back to district court at least twice, CNS v. Planet, CV-08083 SJO (2016 WL 4157354), and recently in the Northern District of Illinois, CNS v. Brown, 17C 7933 (2018 WL 318485), CNS argued it has a constitutional right to access when a document is presented to the court electronically to be filed.

The Conference of Chief Justices filed an amicus curiae brief in CNS v. Planet, Nos. 16-55977 and 16-56714 (9th Cir., May 1, 2017). The Table of Contents states the arguments are "I. Access to Pre-Judgment Court Records in Civil Cases Is Not Compelled by the First Amendment" and "II. Creating a Constitutional Right to Immediate Or Even Same-Day Access to Pre-Judgment Court Records Would Trammel Existing, Well-Recognized Rights of Litigants and Unduly Burden the State Courts in the Performance of Their Duties."[1] I did not track down the ultimate outcome of Planet but I did confirm that California courts that use Odyssey had Tyler install a press queue for CNS so the matter may have been settled. Attached at B is a string of email responses (some of which linked to more detailed replies) from states in response to a series of questions I sent as COSCA President to State court Administrators in October 2016 to provide court data in support of the CCJ amicus brief. They detail how these states provided media access to filings two years ago and what issues or challenges it would pose if their courts had to provide immediate, same-day access to the press.

A recent opinion in CNS v. Brown, No. 18-1230 (7th Cir., November 13, 2018) reversed the district court's grant of an injunction and dismissed the case under the abstention doctrine articulated in Younger v. Harris, 401 U.S.37 (1971). The Seventh Circuit held that the CNS claims had to be litigated in state court first although the court recognized that this created a conflict with the Ninth circuit's ruling in Planet which rejected abstention and remanded for additional litigation on the merits. Brown at page 26, note 6.[2] Although the court did not reach the merits of the CNS claims, the opinion discusses reasons why the type of immediate access requested by CNS might not be constitutionally required.

CNS Actions before the Odyssey Access Subcommittee

Mr. Girdner from CNS sent a letter dated July 26, 2016, to the Odyssey Access Subcommittee (OAS) of JIFFY making a request similar to the one in his recent letter to Chief Justice Nakamura. It is attached as C. Attorney Pat Rogers appeared before OAS at its September 15, 2016 meeting resulting in an invitation to return for the meeting on October 19, 2016, as stated in the email attached as D. Minutes from the October meeting, attached as E, reflect a discussion of the CNS request with Mr. Rogers. Also attached as F is an email marked "confidential" dated October 26, 2016, stating CEO Jim Noel's opposition to a CNS request for immediate electronic access at the Second Judicial District Court and from Colleen Reilly at Tyler confirming they did build an access portal for CNS in Clark County, Nevada and in Georgia at no cost to the courts.

I am searching for any additional correspondence between OAS and CNS or relevant OAS minutes. I will provide them as soon as I have any such documents. I attended some but not all of the OAS meetings that included CNS. I believe OAS eventually denied the CNS request. Senior Justice Maes attend the OAS meetings more regularly than I and may have been present for additional discussions of the CNS request. She may recall other OAS discussions or actions in this matter.

Response to CNS Letter

The email from Mr. Noel (attachment F) reports a CNS threat to litigate its right of access in federal court. CNS has done so in California and Illinois and perhaps in other cases. I confirmed that Nevada, Georgia, and California have had Tyler install at no cost to the courts a press queue as Mr. Girdner requests of New Mexico. Two options for responding to the CNS letter are to have Tyler install the press queue or deny the request and await litigation in federal court.

Judith Nakamura
Chief Justice
New Mexico Supreme Court
237 Don Gaspar Ave.
Santa Fe, NM 87501

Honorable Chief Justice Nakamura,

I am writing to respectfully ask that the courts of New Mexico return the traditional access to newly filed civil actions that was once used by journalists to cover the state's biggest trial court.

The advent of a new technology for filing court documents has worked at times in a way that retains and even improves on traditional press access to paper filings – and at times worked to slow down and undercut press access.

In the 2d Judicial District journalists formerly had access to the stack of new civil complaints on the day they were filed, in time to report on them in the same news cycle as the filing itself. The access came just after the new actions crossed the counter, before docketing.

That speed of access – sufficient to allow reporting for next morning's newspaper – has been carried forward in the efiling era by the federal district courts, including the U.S. District of New Mexico. They provide access to newly efiled complaints and subsequent filings upon receipt, at the same time as the filing.

In a similar manner, an increasing number of state courts have set up a press queue that provides the same speed of access, as soon as the document clears the automated efile manager. Using Odyssey software by Tyler Technologies, courts in Nevada, California and Georgia provide journalists with a "press review queue," with access granted through a user name and password.

Outside of the Odyssey courts, Los Angeles Superior with the highest volume of civil filings in the nation is set to launch mandatory efiling for complex cases in one week. With that launch, the court is providing a "media access portal" that works just like the Tyler press review queue.

Mandatory efiling of general civil cases in that behemoth of a court will follow on the first court day of the New Year. And those filings will also flow immediately upon receipt into the media access portal.

In addition, Alabama, Connecticut, Utah and all the efiling courts in New York provide access upon receipt, in keeping with the federal model.

In contrast to that trend, and very much in contrast to their excellent tradition on press access, the state courts of New Mexico are currently holding back new efilings until they are processed. Processing requires a series of administrative steps by a clerk and is analogous to docketing for paper filings. It inherently takes time.

By putting the work of court clerks ahead of press access, that court policy in New Mexico delays the news contained in the new filings well past the current news cycle and ultimately washes all the news value out of them.

In the 2d Judicial District, for example, less than one out of three new civil actions can be reviewed by the press on the same days as the filing. Our tracking shows that only 28% of the new civil complaints can be reviewed on the day of filing, while 51% are withheld for one day and 21% are withheld for two or more days – by which time the news is stale indeed.

Because the New Mexico state courts employ Tyler's Odyssey efiling system, I would very respectfully ask that the Chief Justice request that Tyler provide a press review queue for new civil complaints and subsequent filings. Such a press queue would greatly support the ability of the New Mexico press corps to report on new matters flowing into the courts of New Mexico.

Thank you very much any consideration Your Honor can give to this important matter of press access to court proceedings.

Shelley - Attached is a document that includes several questions I would like to send out on the COSCA list. Please let me know if I need to do anything to follow up on this request in order for that to happen. The text of the document can be formatted in whatever way is usual or easiest to insert it into the email sent to COSCA members. I do not intend for it to be a separate attached document unless that is easier than just putting the questions into the email. Let me know if you have any questions. Thank you! - Artie

Inquiry on CNS v. Planet

2 messages

Michael Henderson <mhenderson@idcourts.net> Thu, Nov 10, 2016 at 11:27 AM
To: "aocawp@nmcourts.gov" <aocawp@nmcourts.gov>

Sara Thomas, our Administrative Director of the Courts, has asked me to respond to your inquiry. First, by way of general explanation, we are not aware of any special access that has been given to the media in any of our 44 counties, except for Ada County, which is by far the most populous county in Idaho. For some time, it has been the practice to make civil filings available on the day they are filed. CNS in particular has checked these filings on a daily basis. (Some lawyers have also been looking at these new filings at the courthouse.) However, we are in the process of transitioning to a new court management system, Odyssey, through our contract with Tyler Technologies. So far the Odyssey system has been implemented in two counties, Twin Falls and Ada. Mandatory e-filing has also been instituted in these counties. At this point we some lag time between the filing of complaints and the time when we can make them available, amounting to no more than a few days. We are working toward reducing that lag time, but it is our intent to allow for review of the complaints by the clerks before the files become available to the public, including the media. We anticipate that at some time in the near future we will be able to provide same-day access. So, with that, the answers to your questions:

1. How do your courts provide media access to documents provided to the court (on paper and/or electronically) for filing?
With few exceptions for certain types of cases, access is provided upon request under Rule 32 of the Idaho Court Administrative Rules. http://www.isc.idaho.gov/icar32 In the two counties where we have e-filing, we do not yet have online access to documents.

a. What is the timing; are documents provided upon submission or after acceptance or in some other time frame? Documents are generally provided after they have been viewed and file stamped by the clerk. Rule 32 provides that requests for records must be responded to within three working days. It also states, "Efforts should be made to respond promptly to requests for records." ICAR 32 (j)(4). In most instances documents are provided at the clerk's office immediately upon request.

b. Is there a charge to the media for access and if so, how much and how is it assessed? There are no charges for access. When online access becomes available we may institute a charge for such access. There are costs for copying if a large amount of documents are involved.

2. How, if at all, does the access provided to the media differ from access by the general public? There is no difference.

a. If media access differs from general public access, what criteria are used to define "media" entitled to media access? N/A b. Is there a charge to the public for access to documents? Same as the answer for media given above.

3. If your courts were required to provide same-day access to civil complaints and all exhibits and other attachments when filed (before any review or acceptance process by the court) on paper or electronically, could your courts do so? Where we are dealing with electronic documents, we are not able to always provide same day access at this time.

a. What challenges would this pose? We simply need more time to adapt to the technological challenges. In addition, certain types of complaints might require review by a the clerk or by a judge before deciding whether we could provide access, or whether the complaint falls into one of the categories of records that are exempt from disclosure under ICAR 32(g). In such cases, the delay to make such a determination would not be long, but it might prevent same day access.

b. What would be required to meet these challenges? As indicated above, we could in time provide same-day access in most cases, but in others we would need more time before deciding whether we could provide the record.

4. What measures are used by your courts to protect personal identifying information (home addresses, social security numbers, birthdays) from access by the media or public when there is a request for documents submitted to the court for filing? Under Rule 2.6 of the Idaho Rules of Civil Procedure, persons filing documents in civil cases are required to redact all but the last three numbers of SSNs, the names of minor children, dates of birth other than the year of birth, and financial account numbers. http://www.isc.idaho.gov/ircp2.6-new The clerks have no obligation to review documents for compliance with this rule. Failure to comply with the rule is grounds for contempt. In addition, the court may redact identifying information from documents that have been requested if it becomes aware that such information has been improperly included in the document.

As this decision potentially could have an impact on state courts all over the country, the Conference of Chief Justices is filing a brief amicus curiae in the Ninth Circuit and needs factual information from us. Please answer the following questions as promptly and completely as possible as this information is needed for preparation of the CCJ brief. We will also discuss these issues at our December meeting. Please email your response to aocawp@nmcourts.gov Thank you - Artie

1. How do your courts provide media access to documents provided to the court (on paper and/or electronically) for filing? Supreme Court – everything available electronically real time; trial courts are still on paper filing – anyone can request the information; some larger clerks's office have a the court case management system on a public computer, which is searchable in the office by anyone. The current case management system in deployed on a separate servers and is not searchable in a web version.

a. What is the timing; are documents provided upon submission or after acceptance or in some other time frame? Supreme Court – available generally real time; trial courts – public can request to look at the paper file at any time; clerks also – as time permits – scan documents, which can be e-mailed but it's a hand process – in some busy courts it could be a week before a document scanned; the paper file would be available.

b. Is there a charge to the media for access and if so, how much and how is it assessed? Supreme Court – electronic copies are download for free; trial courts – statute governing costs is below.

2. How, if at all, does the access provided to the media differ from access by the general public?
a. If media access differs from general public access, what criteria are used to define "media" entitled to media access? No difference – public information is public information.

b. Is there a charge to the public for access to documents? Supreme Court no; trial court – generally no as well to pull a file and review; costs do exists for name searches and copies.

3. If your courts were required to provide same-day access to civil complaints and all exhibits and other attachments when filed (before any review or acceptance process by the court) on paper or electronically, could your courts do so? At the trial court level, Montana could likely comply with paper access in each of the 200 courts but not with electronic access. However, that means media would be in the clerk's office requesting the paper. Any person can request files at a clerk's office and receive the paper file for review. Electronic access on a statewide basis not possible with the current case filing system used in all Montana trial courts.

a. What challenges would this pose? Montana is at the start of two large IT projects – an upgrade to a web-case management system and electronic filing in all courts. Montana can likely comply with same day access within the next three-five years (with most case types) assuming the technology projects are not delayed and assuming the Branch is able to deploy a public facing website with the existing budget. The deployment of e-filing for self-represented litigants is much more complicated and it is unlikely to be in place in five years.

b. What would be required to meet these challenges? Montana will need to deliver the two large projects within budget, which is a significant challenges. If the projects need additional funding to be fully operational the Branch is dependent on receiving that funding from the Legislature, which meets every other year in Montana. Schedule creep is a very real issue with large IT projects so delay is possible.

4. What measures are used by your courts to protect personal identifying information (home addresses, social security numbers, birthdays) from access by the media or public when there is a request for documents submitted to the court for filing? Parties are required to file private information requests to secure private information. Beyond the sealed case types (child abuse, commitment, adoption) parties are responsible for protecting their information. This will likely change when Montana deploys a public facing data – we have not addressed this yet but assume it will involve reduction software of some type.

(l) for issuing a marriage license, $53;

(m) on the filing of an application for informal, formal, or supervised probate or for the appointment of a personal representative or the filing of a petition for the appointment of a guardian or conservator, from the applicant or petitioner, $70, which includes the fee for filing a will for probate;

(n) on the filing of the items required in 72-4-303 by a domiciliary foreign personal representative of the estate of a nonresident decedent, $55;

(o) for filing a declaration of marriage without solemnization, $53;

(p) for filing a motion for substitution of a judge, $100;

(q) for filing a petition for adoption, $75;

(r) for filing a pleading by facsimile or e-mail in all criminal and civil proceedings, 50 cents per page.

(2) Except as provided in subsections (3) and (5) through (7), fees collected by the clerk of district court must be deposited in the state general fund as specified by the supreme court administrator.

(3) (a) Of the fee for filing a petition for dissolution of marriage, $5 must be deposited in the children's trust fund account established in 52-7-102, $19 must be deposited in the civil legal assistance for indigent victims of domestic violence account established in 3-2-714, and $30 must be deposited in the partner and family member assault intervention and treatment fund established in 40-15-110.

(b) Of the fee for filing a petition for legal separation, $5 must be deposited in the children's trust fund account established in 52-7-102 and $30 must be deposited in the partner and family member assault intervention and treatment fund established in 40-15-110.

(4) If the moving party files a statement signed by the nonmoving party agreeing not to contest an amendment of a final parenting plan at the time the petition for amendment is filed, the clerk of district court may not collect from the moving party the fee for filing a petition for a contested amendment of a parenting plan under subsection (1)(a).

(5) Of the fee for filing an action or proceeding, except a petition for dissolution of marriage, $9 must be deposited in the civil legal assistance for indigent victims of domestic violence account established in 3-2-714.

(6) The fees collected under subsections (1)(d), (1)(g), (1)(j), and (1)(r) must be deposited in the county district court fund. If a district court fund does not exist, the fees must be deposited in the county general fund to be used for district court operations.

(7) Of the fee for issuance of a marriage license and the fee for filing a declaration of marriage without solemnization, $13 must be deposited in the domestic violence intervention account established by 44-4-310 and $10 must be deposited in the county district court fund. If a district court fund does not exist, the fees must be deposited in the county general fund to be used for district court operations.

(8) Any filing fees, fines, penalties, or awards collected by the district court or district court clerk not otherwise specifically allocated must be deposited in the state general fund.

Litigation that is now before the Ninth Circuit may have an impact on how states provide public access to documents and specifically how access is provided to "news" organizations. In Courthouse News Service v. Planet, a federal district court ordered a state court to provide a news organization with "immediate" (i.e., same day) access to civil complaints filed. CNS argues it is entitled to be provided with civil complaints (including all exhibits and other attachments)as the same day it arrives at the court on paper or electronically.

1. How do your courts provide media access to documents provided to the court (on paper and/or electronically) for filing? Both, electronically they are only available at terminals at the courthouse right now and can also be requested in paper format. We charge .20 per page for printing.

   a. What is the timing; are documents provided upon submission or after acceptance or in some other time frame? Documents are available after accepted into the court file. So they have to be reviewed by the clerk and accepted into the case.

   b. Is there a charge to the media for access and if so, how much and how is it assessed? .20 per page for copies.

2. How, if at all, does the access provided to the media differ from access by the general public?
   a. If media access differs from general public access, what criteria are used to define "media" entitled to media access? There is no distinction.

   b. Is there a charge to the public for access to documents? Same as the media, and the only charge is to have copies- not to view the documents.

3. If your courts were required to provide same-day access to civil complaints and all exhibits and other attachments when filed (before any review or acceptance process by the court) on paper or electronically, could your courts do so? There would be no way to ensure those documents are complete or associated with the correct case. Documents can be rejected for a number of reasons and to make documents available that ultimately do not end up in the court file would be confusing at worst and misleading to anyone viewing case information.

a. What challenges would this pose? It would create a break in the process and would probably lead to more delay and inaccurate information being represented as being in the court file that could ultimately be rejected and never considered by the court.

b. What would be required to meet these challenges? We would have to reconfigure our case filing process and perhaps add more staff to meet this time requirement.

4. What measures are used by your courts to protect personal identifying information (home addresses, social security numbers, birthdays) from access by the media or public when there is a request for documents submitted to the court for filing? The burden is on the filing party to redact any sensitive or protected information. With that said though the Clerks of Court try to catch any obvious items that should have been redacted. We are also exploring redaction software to catch these items, but that is estimated at a 1million dollar cost. The existence of unredacted personal identifiers in court filings is one of the largest limitations we have on the ability to offer web based public access.

1. How do your courts provide media access to documents provided to the court (on paper and/or electronically) for filing?

Electronically primarily.

a. What is the timing; are documents provided upon submission or after acceptance or in some other time frame?

Public documents are available upon filing.

b. Is there a charge to the media for access and if so, how much and how is it assessed?

Online access to public case information and documents is available to media (and the public) through a subscription service. The base fee is $30.00 per month for any portion of a calendar month; and $.10 for each search over 200 during a billing cycle fee.

2. How, if at all, does the access provided to the media differ from access by the general public?

The $.10/search for each search over 200 is waived for media accounts. The document fee of $.50/document is the same for the media and the public.

a. If media access differs from general public access, what criteria are used to define "media" entitled to media access?

Media is defined in the Code of Judicial Administration 4-101(1)(D)
... a publisher, editor, reporter or other similar person who gathers, records, photographs, reports, or publishes information for the primary purpose of disseminating news to the public, and any newspaper, magazine, or other periodical publication, press association or wire service, radio station, television station, satellite broadcast, cable system or other organization with whom that person is connected.

b. Is there a charge to the public for access to documents?

The charge for documents is the same for the public as for the media. Public documents are available online for $ .50/document. Copies of documents may also be accessed at the court for $.25/page if the time required to retrieve the documents is less than 15 minutes.

3. If your courts were required to provide same-day access to civil complaints and all exhibits and other attachments when filed (before any review or acceptance process by the court) on paper or electronically, could your courts do so?

Yes

a. What challenges would this pose?

None

b. What would be required to meet these challenges?

NA

4. What measures are used by your courts to protect personal identifying information (home addresses, social security numbers, birthdays) from access by the media or public when there is a request for documents submitted to the court for filing?

Redaction of non-public information in public documents is the responsibility of the filer. Documents that require non-public information, such as SSNs, are filed as document type classified as private. Documents classified as private are not made available to media or the public.

A filer may request the court classify a specific document as private. That request along with the document in question is electronically filed as private and changed to public only if the judge denies the motion to classify as private.

To: "aocawp@nmcourts.gov" <aocawp@nmcourts.gov>

Artie,

Here are the answers from Michigan.

Milt

1. How do your courts provide media access to documents provided to the court (on paper and/or electronically) for filing?

   a. What is the timing; are documents provided upon submission or after acceptance or in some other time frame?

   b. Is there a charge to the media for access and if so, how much and how is it assessed?

Access to public court case records is provided to the media and the public immediately upon filing with the court. Courts may charge for copies of documents in case files up to a maximum of $2.00 per page. There is no charge for access to public court case records.

2. How, if at all, does the access provided to the media differ from access by the general public?
   a. If media access differs from general public access, what criteria are used to define "media" entitled to media access?

   b. Is there a charge to the public for access to documents?

The access provided to the media is no different than the access provided to the general public.

3. If your courts were required to provide same-day access to civil complaints and all exhibits and other attachments when filed (before any review or acceptance process by the court) on paper or electronically, could your courts do so?

   a. What challenges would this pose?

   b. What would be required to meet these challenges?

Many courts could provide same-day access as long as the documents have been properly filed, time stamped, and placed in a file jacket. In larger jurisdictions, this could pose a problem because of the volume of pleadings and the inability of clerks to create file jackets the day of filing. Additional staff would be required to assure that all courts could meet that same-day standard.

4. What measures are used by your courts to protect personal identifying information (home addresses, social security numbers, birthdays) from access by the media or public when there is a request for documents submitted to the court for filing?

Michigan courts are not permitted by Michigan Supreme Court Order 2006-2 to maintain social security numbers in their entirety on documents filed with the court. They are limited to the last four digits. If a document is filed with a social security number after March 1, 2006, the person whose social security number is contained in the document may file a motion asking the court to direct the clerk to:

a. redact the number on any document that does not require or allow a social security number pursuant to statute, court rule, court order, or for purposes of collection activity when it is required for identification; or

b. file a document that requires or allows a social security number pursuant to statute, court rule, court order, or for purposes of collection activity when it is required for identification, in a separate nonpublic file.

Dissemination is restricted to the purposes for which they were intended.

Good morning,

As per your request, here are the answers to the questions you posed that are being submitted on behalf of the CT Judicial Branch.

1. How do your courts provide media access to documents provided to the court (on paper and/or electronically) for filing? The Connecticut Judicial Branch provides media access to documents on paper and electronically.

   a. What is the timing? Are documents provided upon submission or after acceptance or in some other time frame? Documents are provided to the media as soon as they are publicly disclosable and available.

   b. Is there a charge to the media for access and if so, how much and how is it assessed?

      There is a statutory $1 per page charge for paper copies.

2. How, if at all, does the access provided to the media differ from access by the general public? There is no difference between the access that the media and the general public receives.

   a. If media access differs from general public access, what criteria are used to define "media" entitled to media access?

   b. Is there a charge to the public for access to documents?

3. If your courts were required to provide same-day access to civil complaints and all exhibits and other attachments when filed (before any review or acceptance process by the court) on paper or electronically, could your courts do so?

   a. What challenges would this pose?

   b. What would be required to meet these challenges?

   When civil documents are e-filed, there is no acceptance process. They are immediately part of the record. In other states, when a document is e-filed, the court has to first approve it, but that is not the situation with the Connecticut Judicial Branch. The Connecticut Judicial Branch already provides same day access for most civil cases. The public can view them immediately.

   These are the exceptions:

   a. Asset forfeitures;

b. Firearm Safety Hearings (C.G.S. §29-38c)

c. Foreign civil judgments (C.G.S. §§ 52-604, 52-605);

d. Foreign protective orders;

e. Habeas cases;

f. Lottery Assignment cases;

g. Summary Process and housing civil matters in the Bantam, Danielson, Derby and New London geographical areas.

h. Vehicle forfeitures (pursuant to C.G.S. 22a-250 and 250a).

The Summary Process and Housing Civil matters are scheduled to become electronic over the next few months.

4. What measures are used by your courts to protect personal identifying information (home addresses, social security numbers, birthdays) from access by the media or public when there is a request for documents submitted to the court for filing?

Pursuant to Section 4-7 of the Connecticut Practice Book, "The responsibility for omitting or redacting personal identifying information rests solely with the person filing the document. The clerk of the court need not review any filed document for compliance with this rule."

Artie,

Please see the answers below in BOLD CAPS from our communications division for the NC AOC.

Best Regards,

Roberta Titchener

1. How do your courts provide media access to documents provided to the court (on paper and/or electronically) for filing? WHEN POSSIBLE, DOCUMENTS ARE PROVIDED ELECTRONICALLY VIA EMAIL OR COMPACT DISC. OTHERWISE, HARD COPIES ARE PROVIDED BY THE CUSTODIAN OF THE DOCUEMENTS OR THE CUSTODIAN'S DESIGNEE.

a. What is the timing; are documents provided upon submission or after acceptance or in some other time frame? DOCUMENTS ARE PROVIDED IN AS TIMELY A FASHION AS POSSIBLE. IF DOCUMENTS ARE ON FILE WITH THE CLERK OF SUPERIOR COURT, THEN THEY MAY BE OBTAINED THROUGH THAT OFFICE. DOCUMENTS USED AS EVIDENCE IN COURT MAY NOT BE IMMEDIATELY AVAILABLE, BUT WOULD BE MADE AVAILABLE AS SOON AS POSSIBLE.

b. Is there a charge to the media for access and if so, how much and how is it assessed? THERE IS GENERALLY NO COST ASSOCIATED WHEN DOCUMENTS ARE SUBMITTED VIA EMAIL. THE COST TO MAKE COPIES OF DOCUMENTS MADE AVAILABLE TO THE MEDIA VIA THE CLERK OF SUPERIOR COURT IS $.25 PER PAGE. HOWEVER, BY STATUTE, WE CAN ASSESS FEES FOR IT PROGRAMMING THAT MAY BE NEEDED TO PRODUCE THE REQUESTED MATERIAL.

2. How, if at all, does the access provided to the media differ from access by the general public? GENERALLY SPEAKING, THE PROCESS IS THE SAME UNLESS DOCUMENTS ARE READILY AVAILABLE ELECTRONICALLY AND CAN BE EMAILED. ONE DISTINCTION IS THAT MEDIA INQUIRIES ARE MANAGED BY THE COMMUNICATIONS OFFICE FOR MEDIA RELATIONS PURPOSES. RECORD REQUESTS FROM THE PUBLIC ARE SUBMITTED ONLINE AT http://nccourts.org/Citizens/JData/NewPRR/PubRequest.asp; THESE REQUESTED ARE MANAGED BY OUR OFFICE OF GENERAL SERVICES.

a. If media access differs from general public access, what criteria are used to define "media" entitled to media access? "MEDIA" IS CONSIDERED TO BE THE TRADE OR MAINSTREAM MEDIA OR ANYONE WITH MEDIA CREDENTIALS; BLOGGERS ARE ALSO CONSIDERED TO BE MEDIA.

b. Is there a charge to the public for access to documents? THERE IS NO CHARGE TO VIEW DOCUMENTS. THERE ARE CHARGES ASSOCIATED WITH MAKING COPIES OF DOCUMENTS.

3. If your courts were required to provide same-day access to civil complaints and all exhibits and other attachments when filed (before any review or acceptance process by the court) on paper or electronically, could your courts do so?

DOCUMENTS ON FILE WITH THE CLERK OF SUPERIOR COURT ARE AVAILABLE FOR SAME-DAY ACCESS. EXHIBITS AND/OR EVIDENCE CONSIDERED TO BE TRAIL PREPARATION MATERIALS AND/OR THOSE EXHIBITS SUBMITTED DURING TRIAL MAY NOT BE IMMEDIATELY AVAILABLE FOR PUBLIC CONSUMPTION, BUT WOULD BE MADE SO AS SOON AS POSSIBLE.(SEE NCGS § 132-1.9. TRIAL PREPARATION MATERIALS.)

a. What challenges would this pose? ASSUMING THE RQUESTED INFORMATION IS CONSIDERED PUBLIC RECORD AND NOT TRIAL PREPARATION MATERIAL, REQUEST FOR EXHIBITS AND EVIDENCE SUBMITTED DURING TRIAL REQUIRE THE COURTROOM CLERK TO MAKE COPIES AVAILABLE. THERE IS OFTEN NOT ENOUGH TIME TO DO THIS WITHOUT DISRUPTION OR DELAY TO THE TRIAL.

b. What would be required to meet these challenges? A RECCESS OR ALOTTED TIME WOULD HAVE TO BE PREARRANGED TO ALLOW TIME FOR THE COURTOOM CLERK TO MAKE AND DISTRIBUTE COPIES.

4. What measures are used by your courts to protect personal identifying information (home addresses, social security numbers, birthdays) from access by the media or public when there is a request for documents submitted to the court for filing? SEE NCGS § 132-1.10. SOCIAL SECURITY NUMBERS AND OTHER PERSONAL IDENTIFYING INFORMATION.

Litigation that is now before the Ninth Circuit may have an impact on how states provide public access to documents and specifically how access is provided to "news" organizations. In Courthouse News Service v. Planet, a federal district court ordered a state court to provide a news organization with "immediate" (i.e., same day) access to civil complaints filed. CNS argues it is entitled to be provided with civil complaints (including all exhibits and other attachments)as the same day it arrives at the court on paper or electronically.

As this decision potentially could have an impact on state courts all over the country, the Conference of Chief Justices is filing a brief amicus curiae in the Ninth Circuit and needs factual information from us. Please answer the following questions as promptly and completely as possible as this information is needed for preparation of the CCJ brief. We will also discuss these issues at our December meeting. Please email your response to aocawp@nmcourts.gov Thank you - Artie

1. How do your courts provide media access to documents provided to the court (on paper and/or electronically) for filing?

For trial courts – this is handled at the local court level. Some provide access via automated program interfaces (APIs) and others provide no electronic access. For those without electronic access, most trial courts provide access to paper copies of documents in clerks' offices.

For the intermediate appellate and high courts – documents filed in paper are scanned, then both paper and electronic documents get posted to the courts' website.

a. What is the timing; are documents provided upon submission or after acceptance or in some other time frame?

For the trial courts – this is a local preference on timing, but no electronic documents are provided prior to acceptance. Access to the documents after acceptance may be electronic (uploaded to public access site at the local court preference or in paper files).

For the intermediate appellate and high courts – documents and docket entries are posted between 6pm and midnight (specific time chosen by the court) after the documents have been accepted by the clerk. The reasoning is that during business hours, this allows the clerk staff to correct mistakes made when determining if a document is eligible to post to the website.

b. Is there a charge to the media for access and if so, how much and how is it assessed?

For trial courts – courts are authorized to charge for electronic access systems and this varies by local court; no charges are allowed to view paper or electronic documents in the courthouse.

For the intermediate appellate and high courts – no charge for anyone to use the website to look at docket entries and documents. Access is direct from the web.

2. How, if at all, does the access provided to the media differ from access by the general public?

Access is the same for public as it is media.

a. If media access differs from general public access, what criteria are used to define "media" entitled to media access?

b. Is there a charge to the public for access to documents? For the trial courts – there may be fees for electronic access. For the intermediate appellate and high courts – No, it's free for all.

3. If your courts were required to provide same-day access to civil complaints and all exhibits and other attachments when filed (before any review or acceptance process by the court) on paper or electronically, could your courts do so? For all courts – electronically filed documents could be posted before any review. It should be noted that in our mandatory eFiling environment, 60% of filed documents are reviewed by the clerk and accepted within 4 hours, 91.2% within 24 hours.

a. What challenges would this pose? Posting of confidential/sensitive information – for example, in certain cases, unfounded allegations can be made, attorneys may mistakenly include names, social security numbers, DOBs, account numbers, etc. Documents that are improperly filed would be made public prior to proper review.

b. What would be required to meet these challenges? Redaction software (expensive) and staff to review every document (also expensive if it needs to be same day)

4. What measures are used by your courts to protect personal identifying information (home addresses, social security numbers, birthdays) from access by the media or public when there is a request for documents submitted to the court for filing? By court rule, filers are tasked with redacting sensitive information from documents filed with the court. If the information is required to be there by statute, the filer must label the document as containing sensitive data. The document then cannot be posted on a website. If the clerk's staff notices unmarked sensitive data, they're required to take it down from the website. Clerks may also return documents for correction when sensitive data is included in documents erroneously.

1. How do your courts provide media access to documents provided to the court (on paper and/or electronically) for filing?

a. What is the timing; are documents provided upon submission or after acceptance or in some other time frame?

The clerks make electronic documents available, after they have been docketed, in accordance with AOSC16-14 and the Access Security Matrix incorporated therein. Availability of court records online is established pursuant to the role of the requester wishing to accessing the record. With regard to records designated as View on Request (VOR), additional time may be associated with reviewing the document for personal or confidential information that must be redacted before being disclosed. If paper copies are requested, further additional time may be required to produce such records, but there is no specific delay simply because of the format requested.

b. Is there a charge to the media for access and if so, how much and how is it assessed?

There is no charge for public access to non-bulk electronic document requests unless the records are designated VOR and must be reviewed and redacted before disclosure. If paper copies are requested, requisite fees provided by statute may be charged.

2. How, if at all, does the access provided to the media differ from access by the general public?

NONE

a. If media access differs from general public access, what criteria are used to define "media" entitled to media access?

N/A

b. Is there a charge to the public for access to documents?

There is no charge for electronic access to non-VOR records for the general public or the media. If paper copies are requested, requisite fees provided by statute may be charged. These fees would be the same for the media as for the general public. According to the time and resources necessary, there may be a charge for the review and redaction process for VOR records. These fees would be the same for the media as for the general public.

3. If your courts were required to provide same-day access to civil complaints and all exhibits and other attachments when filed (before any review or acceptance process by the court) on paper or electronically, could your courts do so?

This question would need to be answered by the individual clerks' offices since their individual abilities to meet this hypothetical requirement would be based on each clerk's current resources and business practices.

a. What challenges would this pose?

This is a workload, resource availability and business process issue for the individual clerks' offices.

b. What would be required to meet these challenges?

This question would need to be answered by the individual clerks' offices since their individual abilities to meet this hypothetical requirement would be based on each clerk's current resources and business practices.

4. What measures are used by your courts to protect personal identifying information (home addresses, social security numbers, birthdays) from access by the media or public when there is a request for documents submitted to the court for filing?

To limit sensitive information in court documents, pursuant to Florida Rule of Administrative Procedures 2.425, designated sensitive information filed with a state court in Florida is limited to the specific formats outlined in the rule. The Access Security Matrix, incorporated in AOSC16-14, was developed to protect sensitive personal information and incorporates the items identified by law as sensitive or confidential. This matrix is reviewed as necessary to maintain compliance with any changes made to the governing law.

Mr. Kavangh:

Pursuant to your quest please find responses from the New Jersey Judiciary to the questions posed in your email. I hope you find the information helpful.

Best of luck,

Judge Glenn Grant

Administrative Director of the New Jersey Courts

1. How do your courts provide media access to documents provided to the court (on paper and/or electronically) for filing?

On paper or by email. Email is only available for smaller requests.

a. What is the timing; are documents provided upon submission or after acceptance or in some other time frame? Timing varies, depending on the requested documents. Before any files are produced, they must be reviewed to ensure that any information needed to be redacted was redacted. In the vicinages, requests for files that have been archived (and as such, are usually stored in a different location) take at least a few days to retrieve and then go through the review/redact process. However, generally, the documents are provided as soon as possible, regardless of the requestor. High profile cases are centralized at the Administrative Office of the Courts for a response by the Office of Communications or the Office of the Superior Court Clerk.

b. Is there a charge to the media for access and if so, how much and how is it assessed?

There is no charge for "access" but there is a charge if copies of documents are requested - $.05 per page for paper; no charge if by email. Again, the charge is assessed the same whether the requestor is a member of the media or not. Payment may be made by check, money order or collateral account. All fees must be paid in advance of the release of the records.

1. How, if at all, does the access provided to the media differ from access by the general public?

These requests are handled in the same manner as all other requests. High profile cases are centralized with the Office of Communications or Office of the Superior Court Clerk.

a. If media access differs from general public access, what criteria are used to define "media" entitled to media access?

N/A

b. Is there a charge to the public for access to documents?

As indicated above, there is no charge for "access" but there is a charge if copies of documents are requested - $.05 per page for paper; no charge if by email. Again, the charge is assessed the same whether the requestor is a member of the media or not. Payment may be made by check, money order or collateral account. All fees must be paid in advance of the release of the records.

2. If your courts were required to provide same-day access to civil complaints and all exhibits and other attachments when filed (before any review or acceptance process by the court) on paper or electronically, could your courts do so?

No.

a. What challenges would this pose?

Based on the sheer volume of civil records from 21 counties, the NJ Judiciary lacks to resources to provide copies of the images on a daily basis. We lack the staff resources required to review and redact the necessary documents prior to releasing them to the public.

b. What would be required to meet these challenges?

We would need additional technological resources and staff. To meet this requirements, we would need to automate some of our current practices which requires revenue and technical staff.

3. What measures are used by your courts to protect personal identifying information (home addresses, social security numbers, birthdays) from access by the media or public when there is a request for documents submitted to the court for filing?

New Jersey Court Rule 1:38 addresses public access to court records and administrative records, and details many of the steps that the Judiciary is taking in an effort to protect personal identifying information. For example, in 2009, the Court Rule was amended to include 1:38-7 which sets forth the "Prohibition on Submission of Confidential Personal Identifiers to the Court . . . unless otherwise required by statute, rule, administrative directive, or court order; provided, however, that an active financial account number may be identified by the last four digits when the financial account is the subject of the litigation and cannot otherwise be identified." (R.1:38-7(b)). As to Social Security numbers, where requested, only the last four digits are stored. While the court rule amendment requiring redaction by the parties covers all filings subsequent to the effective date of the amendment, the decades of records filed prior to that date would still include all personal identifiers, requiring redaction before access. Nevertheless, all records (regardless of filing date) are manually reviewed by staff for the existence and redaction of confidential personal identifiers, prior to releasing them pursuant to any records request.

The challenge facing the modern Judiciary regarding the dissemination of information to the media and public is how to handle and balance the demand for ease of access while protecting the personal and confidential information in the digital age.

July 27, 2016

James A. Noel
Court Executive Officer
Second Judicial District Court
Bernalillo County Courthouse
400 Lomas Blvd., NW
Albuquerque, NM 87102

Hello Mr. Noel,

It has been some time since we talked about press access in your court. Press access has unfortunately not improved since then. I would like to renew our request for an in-box -- access upon receipt -- as journalists currently have in federal courts and in a number of state courts with Odyssey case management systems.

I have attached our tracking sheets from the last two full weeks in July showing a same-day access rate of 39% and 37%, which are typical rates in Benalillo County in recent months. That means that on the day of receipt, access is being withheld for a majority of the new, general-jurisdiction complaints filed in Bernalillo County Second Judicial District Court.

I have also attached a judgment and order from U.S. District Court in the Central District of California, ruling that under the First Amendment press access attaches upon receipt. In the judgment and order, Judge James Otero also finds that the press has a First Amendment right to access before processing.

In addition, while I realize your court is in the Tenth Circuit, I have attached a Ninth Circuit opinion which confirms that the access I am requesting falls squarely under the First Amendment.

While your office had in the past provided access to paper-filed complaints upon receipt, it is now withholding access to e-filed complaints until after processing, in violation, I would respectfully argue, of the First Amendment.

More than a year ago, I wrote a letter on this issue to the Honorable Chief Judge Nan Nash, which I have also attached for convenience. In your follow-up phone call, which was indeed cordial and helpful, you said the matter was not in your control. Through an exchange of emails, I argued that the matter is indeed within the Court's control. And I am renewing that argument here. In order to process a new complaint, processing clerks in Bernalillo County are per force reviewing the newly filed civil complaints in an intake queue as they come in – otherwise the clerks could not process the new complaints. We are asking for that same view.

There are now a number of Odyssey courts where the press has access upon receipt, on a court-by-court basis. We have found that the Tyler Technology employees are quite amenable to requests from individual clerks to provide a press-box or in-box, as it is variously called.

C

In Georgia, for example, a number of individual courts employ the Odyssey e-filing and case management systems. The vendor has responded to individual requests from individual clerks to provide access upon receipt for the public and press. In response to a request from the clerk in DeKalb County, for example, we obtained access to that county's new filings as they came in. In other words, the access is not system-wide, for all Odyssey courts in Georgia. Rather, it is granted court by court. We are making such a court-specific request here.

So I would respectfully urge your office to ask your vendor to provide the press with access to an in-box, the same type of view that your office's docketing clerks currently have in order to begin processing the newly filed actions. Through an in-box for the press, we can review the new actions as they come in, rather than seeing access withheld while the court's processing clerks go about their tasks, or not, when they are absent. Screen shots of what this looks like in practice, using the Odyssey system, are included in the attached "tour" of the in box in the State Court of Fulton County, Georgia.

There is a greater point that I wanted to move to, and that is the tradition of press access in your office.

As you graciously conceded in our talk, the press's past access in Bernalillo Superior was just about perfect. We saw cases in a press bin as they crossed the counter – in other words, upon receipt. It is not right that because the Court moves to what is considered a more advanced system of filing, then press access goes backwards and access upon receipt is now denied.

That is not the promise of progress in technology, that the public business of the Court should become less transparent, that the Court should become more difficult to report on, that the Court's matters should become more shrouded.

Nor need it be. There is perfectly feasible technical solution to the access issue, and I respectfully urge the Court to employ it.

Thank you for your time and consideration,

Good afternoon OAS members.

Pat Rogers, counsel for Courthouse News Service ("CNS"), attended the Sept. 15 JIFFY meeting, requesting time to speak regarding the online case access proposal and impending Supreme Court order and distributing the attached material. After his brief position statement and exchange with JIFFY members, I invited Mr. Rogers to present to OAS on Oct. 19th to further clarify his client's position.

In addition, please look for a poll from Annie to secure an earlier date than Nov. 18 for our November meeting where we will be requesting more public comment from the news media. We are targeting Nov. 1, 2, 3, and 7 in order to compile information prior to the Nov. 9 Supreme Court conference. Please do not remove the Nov. 18 OAS meeting from your calendars just yet. We may need it.

A draft meeting agenda is forthcoming wherein you will see discussion of recent developments since JIFFY.

Thank you.

Call to order; agenda. Brenda Castello called the meeting to order at 1:40 p.m. The subcommittee approved the agenda and agreed to begin the meeting with a discussion of agenda item 3.

Agenda Item #3. Court kiosks update. (Magistrate court kiosks and district court kiosks)

Agenda Item #3(a). Magistrate court kiosks: PCI-DSS compliance.

Tim Elsbrock presented a preliminary analysis of how many times the magistrate court kiosks were used for payment. The results show that over a period of ten days, people used the e-pay function of the kiosks a total of 151 times, which is less than 1% of the payments received by the magistrate courts during the ten-day period. 13 of the magistrate courts did not use the kiosks at all for e-pay. Given these results and the PCI non-compliance fines that will be assessed for use of e-pay, JID would like to recommend disabling the e-pay function from the magistrate court kiosks. Disabling the e-pay function will considerably reduce the scope of violations found in the PCI audit and allow JID to focus on the remaining issues. The subcommittee agrees that the magistrate courts should be notified of the results of the analysis and of JID's intention to disable this function.

Artie Pepin moved that the subcommittee recommend to JIFFY that the e-pay function be disabled from the magistrate court kiosks; and that magistrate courts be notified of the subcommittee's recommendation. Judge Alaniz seconded the motion, and it passed on a unanimous vote.

Following the vote, the subcommittee discussed the logistics and timing of notification to the magistrate courts, including that the notification will provide the reasoning behind the decision and the statistics regarding use of the kiosks for e-pay, and signage for courts to notify the public that payments still can be made electronically through computers that do not belong to the courts.

Agenda Item #3(b). District court kiosks: JIFFY update.

Brenda advised the subcommittee that the CEOC recommendation regarding file access and redaction, which the subcommittee adopted, was adopted by JIFFY with the exception of the third component regarding removal of PPIs. That component was tabled.

Agenda Item #1. Finalize online case access policy to prepare for public comment forum.

1(b). News media definition and access consideration.

The subcommittee turned its attention to defining "news media," and whether it wanted to create that definition at this time. After initial discussion, the subcommittee determined that it was important to define "news media" before the public comment forum and undertook to do so. Important considerations were the competing factors of the right of the public, including the media, to access to public information, and the statutory requirement that the judiciary protect protected personal identifiers ("PPIs"). The judiciary's lack of resources to redact PPIs creates a tension between the news media's First Amendment right to public information and the judiciary's obligation to protect PPIs. The subcommittee's current draft Online Case Access Policy gives the public, which includes news media, view and print access to "redacted public records," with the caveat that redaction technology is not currently available. The news media is seeking broader and more immediate access to court records. The subcommittee focused its discussion on how to balance the competing needs by creating a clear definition of "news media," separate from the "public," and then creating an application that will subject members of the news media who disclose any PPIs to sanctions, including withdrawing their access. Joey suggested that the subcommittee consider Iowa's definition, which is:

> "News media" includes any person who regularly gathers, prepares, photographs, records, writes, edits, reports, or publishes news or information about matters of public interest in any medium and who successfully applies to participate in expanded news media coverage and agrees to comply with all court rules.

If we have this definition of "news media" in our Online Case Access Policy, we can then create an application that limits media's access to SSOPA to people who fall within the definition, and bind those applicants to the same obligation to protect PPIs that attorneys and their staff are bound by. Oregon's application was suggested as an example. Enforcement of any violation could be addressed through a rule amendment. Enforcement would be handled by JID. Artie suggested that enforcement will increase the burden on an already over-taxed JID, but Greg said that he and his staff have looked at this possibility and they do not believe it will be a problem.

Sr. Justice Maes expressed her ongoing concern that disclosure of PPIs may subject the judiciary to liability. The advanced technology has created a demand for instant access to public records, but we also know that PPIs are increasingly used for improper, illegal purposes. Artie and Barry voiced their concern that limiting access will subject the judiciary to claims of violations of the First Amendment. The subcommittee continued its discussion about how to adequately address these competing concerns through the application. Jim Noel suggested that creating a distinction between the press and the public will create problems, because at some point the public will want the same access that the press has. Jim is concerned that we are looking at other states, such as Iowa and Oregon, that already have redaction technology, so those states are not in a comparable position with New Mexico.

Jim moved to adopt a recommendation that the press and the public have the same access, and that both must come to courthouses to obtain access; further, the recommendation will be not to define "news media" or provide differential access to the press and the public. Ian seconded the motion. After discussion by the subcommittee, the motion failed on a vote of five opposed, being Greg, Judge Mitchell, Barry, Joey, and Weldon, to three in favor, being Jim, Ian, and Judge Alaniz.

Joey moved to create a definition for "news media" based on Iowa's definition, with one change. The recommended definition is: " 'News media' includes any person who regularly gathers, prepares, photographs, records, writes, edits, reports, or publishes news or information about matters of public interest in any medium and who successfully applies to participate in online access and agrees to comply with all court rules." Barry seconded the motion. After Judge Mitchell clarified that the definition was just for the Online Case Access Policy, the motion passed on a voice vote with Jim Noel abstaining.

Having approved a definition of "news media" that includes a requirement that the news media agent successfully applies to participate in online access and agrees to comply with all court rules, the subcommittee agreed that the requirements included in Oregon's Request for Document Access provide an appropriately narrow scope for who would be given news media access. Oregon requires applicants seeking news media access to provide documentation to support their application, as follows:

> News Media – Submit one of the following: (1) A letter from the news media organization you represent confirming your representation of the organization; (2) a copy of your contract with a news media organization; or (3) for radio or television organizations, a copy of the valid FCC license for the organization you represent.

Barry moved that we create a separate line on the Online Case Access Policy for the news media, using the approved definition and granting the same access to the news media that is given to attorneys. Joey seconded the motion. The motion passed on a voice vote with Jim Noel abstaining.

Artie suggested that we use the term "press" instead of "news media" or "media" to be consistent with that term as used in the United States and New Mexico Constitutions.

Greg moved to change "news media" or "media" to "press" throughout the Online Case Access Policy and all related applications and documents. Joey seconded the motion, and the motion passed on a voice vote with Jim Noel abstaining.

Brenda reviewed the changes the subcommittee agreed to make to the draft Online Case Access Policy, as follows: Delete the column for "Filing Access"; add this new sentence in the "" footnote: "Appellate court cases are unavailable under current technology and funding"; insert "Press" between "Justice Partners" and "Self-Represented Litigants"; change "View Access" in the heading to "View/Print Access"; and delete "including public media" from the definition of "Public."

Agenda Item #1(c)-(e). Other access groups, access policies and applications, and additional applications.

The subcommittee next discussed the criteria that justice partners must meet to be granted access, and whether new employees for justice partners have access now or need to submit new applications. New employees have access based on their justice partner employer's access. Generally, justice partners need access to criminal case information, but sometimes will also need access to SOPA. The subcommittee agreed, however, that the current view access given to justice partners is sufficient. Given the subcommittee's decision to provide individual access codes rather than have codes shared among agency employees, the subcommittee agreed that in addition to the changes to the Online Case Access Policy discussed earlier, the last parenthetical sentence in the definition of "Justice Partners" should be deleted. With that change and the other agreed-upon changes, the subcommittee agreed that the draft Online Case Access Policy is in final form to be presented to JIFFY. Regarding the applications, Greg advised that JID currently has applications for attorneys, justice partners, and pro hac vice attorneys, and will prepare an application for the press based on the approved motions defining press and press access and the subcommittee's agreement regarding the language for the application. Additionally, JID will create new applications for attorney staff and self-represented litigants. The subcommittee did not identify any other access groups at this time, and continues to agree that no bulk access is to be provided.

Next, the subcommittee discussed the issue of attorney access to juvenile cases. Some attorneys, such as certain attorneys working for CYFD, public defenders, and district attorneys working on juvenile cases, need that access, while others in those agencies do not. JID needs the subcommittee to define the criteria so that it can be consistent in granting or denying access to juvenile cases. After discussion, Greg suggested that the initial approach would be for JID to narrowly grant access to juvenile cases based on very specific criteria. Any applications for this access that are denied could be appealed to JIFFY, and where appropriate the criteria for granting this type of access to attorneys might be broadened. The subcommittee discussed adding a box for access to juvenile cases to the attorney application, and the concern that doing so may lead to blanket requests for access to all records identified on the application. An alternative that may reduce this tendency is to have a separate addendum or separate application specifically for attorneys seeking access to juvenile cases.

JID will internally determine the best mechanism to allow attorneys to apply for access to juvenile cases.

Because of time constraints of some subcommittee members, the subcommittee moved ahead to agenda item 2, as discussed next.

Agenda Item #2. Tyler "Press Review Site" and CNS request.

This portion of the meeting began with an update from JID regarding the press review site that Tyler created for the Georgia courts. That site allows authorized members of the press to view entries showing new, opening petitions that have been submitted but not yet accepted for filing. The viewer can only see the entry; the document itself is not available for viewing. Once a petition is accepted, the entry is dropped from the queue. Pleadings submitted in existing cases do not appear on this site pending acceptance or rejection for filing. Tyler informed JID staff that this site is available in Georgia and Florida; Tyler does not intend to roll this out elsewhere.

It appeared to the subcommittee that the information available on Georgia's press review site was different from what Patrick Rogers, attorney for CNS, had indicated his client was seeking. When asked to clarify, Mr. Rogers said he did not previously have these details about the Georgia site, but that he believed his client would be satisfied with that access on an interim basis. Mr. Rogers also stated his understanding that states can require Tyler to provide a press review site. Sr. Justice Maes suggested that Mr. Rogers get better direction and clarification from his client before he next addresses the subcommittee.

Once JIFFY has approved the definition of "press" and the view/print access, we can offer more expanded access to documents that have been filed, but not to documents submitted but not filed. Judge Mitchell pointed out that Tyler, not the individual courts, maintain Tyler's documents so we do not have the capability to provide access to pre-filed documents that CNS is seeking. Jim Noel discussed the lag time between submission and acceptance or rejection of a pleading, which is generally 48 hours. Sr. Justice Maes reiterated that at this point, the subcommittee does not have all the information it needs from Mr. Rogers to consider his client's request, and suggested that the subcommittee table this issue pending receipt of the additional information needed. This agenda item was then tabled by the subcommittee.

After this agenda item was tabled, the subcommittee returned to the remaining items within agenda item 1, Finalize online case access policy to prepare for public comment forum.

Agenda Item #1(f). Public comment forum invitation, remote A/V locations, etc.

Brenda asked the subcommittee to think about the logistics and staging for the public comment forum. The in-person meeting will be at JID, with remote audio and video access available at Metro Court and the First, Third, Fifth, Eighth, and Eleventh District Courts. The draft schedule allows public comment from 10:00 a.m. until 12:00 noon, then has the subcommittee adjourning until 1:30 p.m., at which time it will reconvene to consider the comments and make a recommendation to JIFFY regarding the Online Case Access Policy. Barry offered the subcommittee a detailed explanation of how the public forum would be advertised. After JIFFY has approved the draft Online Case Access Policy adopted earlier in the meeting, Barry will prepare a press release that explains the policy and provides a roadmap for presenting comments at the meeting. In addition, Joey will send an email "blast" to members of the Bench and Bar. The Supreme Court and the individual district courts also can put notices of the forum on their respective websites, and the subcommittee can send e-newsletters and also place a notice in the Bar Bulletin.

The subcommittee discussed the mechanics of receiving input from the six remote locations and those appearing at JID, and how to balance the time constraints with the desire to hear from the public. Sr. Justice Maes suggested that requiring written comments in advance would facilitate an efficient flow of the comment period, and that the subcommittee could require people to register and deliver their comments by 9:45. The concern with this, however, is that some people may not be able to be at their respective locations by that time because of work or other constraints, and this may prevent them from providing their input. The subcommittee will encourage people to sign in early, but will take comments for the duration of the comment time period. The subcommittee agrees that this forum will not be for dialog between the subcommittee and the public, but rather for the subcommittee to hear the public's comments and concerns. The subcommittee will be able to ask questions. Comments should be limited to two minutes each.

The meeting room at JID will be configured so that the subcommittee members are at the head table, or seated as close to it as possible, the remaining side and back tables will be removed, and the podium will be facing the head table.

Given the possibility of numerous commenters and the availability of audio and video participation from other locations around the State, thus alleviating the concern about people having to travel long distances to Santa Fe, the subcommittee agreed to convene the meeting at 9:00 a.m. and to take comments until 12:30 p.m. The subcommittee agreed that it is necessary to record the comments, and that an actual transcript of the meeting, rather than minutes, will be useful. Sr. Justice Maes said that she will ask her paralegal Margie Lueras, who has an extensive background in court reporting, to be available for this purpose.

Brenda and Barry will work together to determine the final logistics for the public forum and will advise the subcommittee in advance of those logistics.

Agenda Item #4. Determine if November 18, 2016 OAS meeting needed prior to public forum. The subcommittee agreed to reserve November 18 for its next meeting, if necessary.

There being no further business, Brenda adjourned the meeting at 4:45 p.m.

CONFIDENTIAL COMMUNICAITON: Attorney-Client Privileged- Fwd: Access to E Filing Queues

Good morning Liz, Ari and Celina:

As you may know, Courthouse News Service (CNS) hired a local attorney, Pat Rogers, to handle its request to the SJDC to have access to SJDC/statewide attorney civil filings as they sit in the E-file and Serve queue, prior to actually being filed by the court. CNS hired Mr. Rogers after I indicated to CNS that they would have to take such a request to JIFFY. I had a lengthy conversation with Mr. Rogers about this, and then subsequently he scheduled a meeting with me and Greg Saunders (a meeting I was unfortunately unable to attend), after which Mr. Rogers made a presentation to a subcommittee of Jiffy last week, the Online Access Subcommittee (OAS), during which he suggested that once an attorney submitted a document to E-file and Serve, it became a public record subject to inspection. At that time, it was not clear to OAS whether it was even possible to allow "view-only access" to documents sitting in the queue in E-file and Serve, but as you can see by the email below from Colleen, our Tyler Rep, Tyler has provided such access in at least two other states.

I disagree with Mr. Rogers' conclusion that such documents are subject to inspection. I also am concerned that CNS will have access to documents that may never actually be filed with the court, but that they may represent to their subscribers that such documents are filed with the court.

I also think it is important to know in this context that CNS made direct representations to me (prior to hiring Mr. Rogers), and in fact sent me what they considered to be successful first amendments claims they had against California district courts in the 9th Circuit, that they have no problem taking the SJDC to federal court claiming we are infringing on their first amendment right to access to court records by not providing them "immediate" (his word not mine) access to attorney filings sitting in the E-file and Serve queue.

I am reluctant (if not adamantly opposed) to such access by CNS. I think this should be discussed further before the matter appears again before OAS, or appears before Jiffy.

Do any one of the three of you have any suggestions?

Thanks very much.

Jim

Good morning Colleen - Thank you very much for the follow-up, and I appreciate the fact that it does not appear Greg's team would have any additional work to do in order to support such access. I assume there is no great security risk by allowing Kiosk access to E-file and Serve than we already have with allowing Kiosk access to Odyssey. Please confirm or indicate otherwise. Thanks again.

The Court would tell us the location and case types that would be made accessible, and we do the configuration. We do recommend that this access be available only through a courthouse kiosk or computer. They would have to come to the courthouse to get access to the kiosk to look at the documents. That way you can maintain control over who is looking and when. If you give out a user name and password, there is no way to guarantee that the user name and password are not shared.

I hope that helps. Please let me know if you have any questions.

New Mexico Supreme Court
Chief Clerk Joey Moya
supjdm@nmcourts.gov

New Mexico Supreme Court
Deputy Clerk Joy Scott
supjls@nmcourts.gov

Dear Mr. Moya and Ms. Scott:

Thank you for your time last week discussing press access to new court filings and Tyler's "press review queue."

Courthouse News Service operates in all 50 states, and in the past few years CNS has been successful in working with Tyler on a press review queue that continues the traditional day-of-receipt access when pleadings were filed in hard copy. In almost every big jurisdiction prior to e-filing, like Bernalillo County, access to hard copies was provided as soon as the pleading crossed the clerk's counter.

Such timely press access could, and we believe should, be provided for e-filed documents.

Courts in California, Alabama, Georgia, Connecticut, Nevada, Utah, and New York are now providing access to e-filings as soon as they are received. Hawaii is in the process of implementing this access. The functionality is readily included in Tyler's software. In the states that have adopted this on-receipt access, the information I have is that no contract amendment or revision was required and no additional charges were imposed. This access is essentially the same for the (federal) District Court in New Mexico (and the vast majority of all federal courts).

I promised contact information for the Chief Clerk in Florida, John Tomasino, where the courts are considering these same issues. His email is tomasino@flcourts.org.

Attachment 1 is a dated sample from the Tyler system showing when a complaint was filed ("Submitted") and when it was "Accepted". The time lag on this particular complaint from November 2018 was almost three business days. The time lag from a successful submission to "acceptance" and availability can be lengthy.

20 First Plaza Center, N.W., Suite 725, Albuquerque, NM 87102
505-938-3335 PATROGERS@PATROGERSLAW.COM WWW.PATROGERSLAW.COM

When I began investigating this access issue, I met several times with the Chief Clerk of the Second Judicial District and eventually provided Mr. Noel with the a summary of my personal experience with the time lag in Bernalillo County compared to other districts. Attachment 2 is a copy of that study from late last year. Mr. Noel has taken significant steps to reduce that delay.

Attachment 3 is a current analysis of the time lag, between "Date/Time Submitted" and "Date/Time Accepted" in Bernalillo County. I have the entire 800 pages of the report, case by case if you are interested. As you can see, the times for Bernalillo County show that, while the access has improved significantly pursuant to Mr. Noel's efforts , close to half the cases continue to be unavailable on the day of filing (56.8% same day, 35.3% next day, 5.77% two days delay, and 3.38% three or more days).

There are two significant reference points in that regard. The first is the previous access to paper-filed cases in Bernalillo County, which was essentially perfect, where the stack of new complaints was made available to journalists on the day of filing, as Mr. Noel has acknowledged. The second is the state court in Manhattan which was providing better access than Bernalillo County, withholding only one third of the new cases and was nevertheless enjoined by a federal judge on First Amendment grounds.

In contrast to the current post-"acceptance" access in Bernalillo County, the Tyler "press review queue" provides access upon the complaint's receipt by the clerk. Any time lag would disappear.

Attachment 4 is a copy of the first page from a California filing under this "press review queue" system available with the Tyler software. It does not have the stamp or the judge assignment, but without a doubt, it is a public document. In response to one of your concerns, I asked the CNS people if there have been any problems resulting from access to the "unstamped" version of a filed complaint and they have not heard of any. It stands to reason because in the few instances where a filer omits some element of an e-filing, the filer will promptly correct the problem.

For these reasons, we are asking for this same "press review queue" in New Mexico to receive pleadings more timely as provided in many courts in California, Alabama, Georgia, Connecticut, Nevada, Utah, and New York . I am at your service if you have additional questions.

Best regards,

Pat Rogers

RE: Courthouse News Service Request for Press Queue

Dear Mr. Rogers:

At the request of the Chief Justice, I am writing with apologies for failing to inform you sooner that the Court previously considered the request for a press queue submitted by Courthouse News Service Request and decided to deny it. My referral of the request back to the Online Access Subcommittee was in error. The Court will of course continue to provide public access to pleadings upon filing as required by law through the current online and courthouse venues operated by the New Mexico Judiciary.

Sincerely,

Joey D. Moya
Clerk of Court

cc: Hon. James A. Noel, chair, Online Access Subcommittee

Hello Chief Justice Nakamura,

I am writing in response to the Supreme Court's decision to decline our request for a press queue on behalf of the media. I believe the process through which that decision was made was unfair. More specifically, we were sandbagged.

I would respectfully ask Your Honor to hear me out and consider whether our petition was dealt with in good faith and whether the outcome is fair and just.

For a storyteller, where to start is a big decision. I will start with the March 2 OAS meeting.

Good Faith

In late January, after a series of instructive conversations with our lawyer Pat Rogers, Chief Clerk Joey Moya steered him to the Online Access Subcommittee where the chair is Jim Noel, a longstanding opponent of the access we seek. Unfolding events can be best seen through the emails that follow.

Feb. 13, 2020: Rogers emails Moya and Noel with a letter asking for a press queue and repeats an earlier offer to "meet at your convenience to address any additional questions."

Feb. 14: 8:32 AM: Moya emails Noel, Judge Karen Mitchell, Odyssey business manager Suzanne Winsor and others, "I suggest we schedule Mr. Rogers to appear before OAS at our April meeting and use the interim to investigate further with Tyler. I also think we should discuss the issue and options at least once before we ask him to attend a meeting. I would want the right person or persons from Tyler to be available when we discuss this at an OAS meeting. … I suggest at a minimum that we schedule a conference call or informal meeting to discuss this in more detail and hear what Suzanne hears from Tyler."

This email foreshadows a procedure for making a recommendation to the Supreme Court where Tyler will be invited to the table for the press queue discussion and the representative for the press will be sidelined.

8:51 AM: Noel replies to Moya, Mitchell, Winsor and IT project manager Laura Orchard, "I'm good with April. So let's discuss at the March meeting. Laura – could we put an item on the agenda to discuss this and let's try to address the points that Joey put in his email along with a couple others."

8:54 AM: Orchard emails Rogers, "I have relayed your request to the OAS chair, Jim Noel, and he recommends that you plan to attend the Monday, April 6, 2020 meeting."

To be clear, the plan was to discuss the substance of our petition without our advocate being able to hear the discussion – or answer questions raised – while at the same time sending him to a different meeting. He was intentionally being kept out of the loop.

As part of my daily routine, I take a swim every morning and evening, and that is often when I try to solve the day's dilemmas. During my swim a couple days ago, I was trying to figure what words would best describe the subcommittee's plan. Was it a game of hide-and-seek, a run-around or something closer to the French expression, "Do you take me for a pigeon?"

As I finished my swim, I settled on the concept of good faith. And here the lack of it.

Materials To Be Gathered

Despite their efforts to steer him to the later meeting in April, Rogers showed up at the March meeting. I had asked him to attend to get a sense of the players.

Beforehand he emailed Orchard on Feb. 24, "Is there an OAS website somewhere? The SC site has minutes from 2016, no agendas, etc. Can you send the notice and agenda for the March meeting?"

The simple question prompted a flurry of emails within the subcommittee, but the end result was that the agenda was not sent to Rogers. When seen much later, it included the item, "Press Review Queue Discussion."

The same day Rogers asked for the agenda, Noel approached him outside a courtroom where he was arguing motions. Noel said he wanted to talk. As Rogers reported to me, Noel sounded out his arguments and the two men had a cordial discussion over the merits of the press queue. Noel failed to tell him that the press queue was on the OAS agenda six days hence.

On March 2, at 1:30, Rogers walked into the JID building and into the meeting. As he put it: "They looked at me like I had a third eye in the middle of my forehead." He discovered that the press issue was in fact on the agenda, but he told the subcommittee he was willing to consider the whole thing "a mistake."

There followed a roughly 30-minute discussion that, according to Rogers' notes, included Noel expressing his theory that the word "filed" really means "accepted;" a question from former AP reporter Barry Massey about how the federal system works with Rogers explaining that the federal courts provide access on receipt; a comment from Bar representative Ian Bezpalko about the Schaefer ruling in the Eastern District of Virginia; and frequent references to "information from Tyler."

Rogers left the meeting with contact information for the local Tyler representative. But the following morning IT director Wilkinson emailed him to say Reilly would not talk to him and Rogers should "lobby the Tyler Technologies Headquarters." Tyler headquarters has no duty to provide Rogers with information and in fact has a financial interest in opposing the press queue.

After the meeting, the subcommittee began collecting an extensive list of materials for consideration, including a set of answers from Tyler which was given to the subcommittee members in mid-March. The answers, which eminently deserved a challenge, were withheld from Rogers until two months later, when it was too late.

That tactic does not represent good faith by New Mexico officials in considering a press petition for better access.

Request for the Materials

We are the point in this tale where the table is being set for the April 6 OAS meeting, with JIFFY members to be invited, a Tyler representative to be invited, a long list of press queue related topics to be discussed and an extensive set of materials already circulated.

April 6, 9:49 AM: Rogers emails Orchard, "Do you have a copy of the draft minutes I can review? I want to make sure we address all the questions/issues raised last month."

10:06: Orchard replies, "Attached are the draft minutes from the Mar 2, 2020 meeting."

11:06 : Rogers replies, "Ms. Orchard, the draft minutes concerning the CNS request reflect directions to provide a number of documents before the meeting. Could you send copies of any documents that have been forwarded to you for distribution for the meeting today?"

11:08: Orchard emails Winsor," I don't know how much of this information I'm supposed to make available to Pat Rogers – do you?"

11:13: Winsor replies, "I think you need to ask Judge Noel about this."

11:16: Orchard emails Noel and copies Mitchell, Winsor and IT chief Dick Wilkinson: "I've received a request from Pat Rogers for the backup documents for the Press Review Queue discussion. What do you recommend?

With that question, the written record falls silent.

Pausing the narrative, normally, in any committee that was acting in good faith, the materials would have been provided without our asking. We were invited to the meeting and expected to address the press access issue under consideration. We should be able to respond to any materials considered by the subcommittee. Without them, we would go into the meeting entirely unprepared and ignorant of the information already circulated and considered by everyone else in the room.

That is not good faith. It's more like taking us for a pigeon.

Press Queue Abruptly Tabled

The meeting began at 1:30 that afternoon and the much prepared for agenda item – "Discuss Draft Recommendation for JIFFY/Supreme Court" – was promptly aborted.

I attended the meeting via zoom. At the outset, Noel said the matter was being taken off the agenda because of the Covid pandemic without elaboration. Rogers asked that the matter be rescheduled. Noel abruptly rejected that request, saying he would not entertain any new matters until the Supreme Court issued instructions.

The minutes of the meeting say that both Rogers and I were "dismissed" at that point. In fact, neither of us was dismissed. Based on comments made during the meeting, the chair was able to see how many were participating. I stayed on until the bitter end at 4:00 and said thanks to all still assembled.

More importantly, the remaining agenda and attendant discussion had nothing to do with Covid. The pandemic only came up in a tangential manner, as it related to a travel budget. Covid was a pretext for what amounted to an arbitrary tabling of our petition.

After all the build up, the circulation of materials, the call for attendance by JIFFY members – this was clearly a big deal – why was all that work and preparation suddenly tossed in the air on a pretext.

In an alternative world, where a good faith process was underway, where the circulated materials were provided to us in advance of the meeting – then the ensuing discussion could have led to a judicious examination of a press access issue and possibly a favorable recommendation to the Supreme Court.

But, unfortunately, those were not the rules of the game.

There is a straight line between the effort to exclude our voice from the press queue discussion at the March meeting and the abrupt and pretextual tabling of the issue at the April meeting. They both show a steady determination to undercut any ability by Rogers to fairly respond to questions and issues raised by our petition. They show an equal determination to provide a recommendation to the Supreme Court – without including the voice of the press.

That is not good faith.

Materials Held Back

Rogers then continued on his quest to see the circulated materials.

April 6, 5:54 PM: Rogers emails to Orchard, "I heard or misheard a reference to a meeting of some sort, tomorrow? The last Jiffy minutes indicated the next Jiffy meeting is May 2? And the OAS will meet May 4? Lastly would you send any documents your received concerning the CNS request for access?"

April 7, 8:13 AM: Orchard emails, "Jim, Pat Rogers has made a second request for the backup documentation put together for the OAS agenda item that was not discussed yesterday. I don't know how long Pat stayed on the call but I believe the only meeting mentioned for today was in reference to the Supreme Court deadline for materials at the April conference."

8:37 AM: Noel replies, "Will get back to you when I have a break."

2:10 PM: Orchard emails Rogers, "Please submit your request for documents as an IPRA request to ipra@nmcourts.com."

He was being sent down the slow road. What was the reason. Why not simply provide the materials. Based on subsequent events, it is apparent that it was to allow a recommendation to be formulated and delivered to the Supreme Court before we could respond.

We finally received the materials on Friday May 22, a little over six weeks after Rogers requested them and two months after they were circulated to subcommittee. We had no time to react to the materials which contain information that is startling, and misleading, before the Supreme Court considered the matter the following week.

Fait Accompli

But by the end of that next week, on Friday May 29, Mr. Moya sent a letter delivering the coup de grace to the press queue. He said his referral of our petition to the subcommittee was "in error" and that the Supreme Court had declined our request. So we were presented with a fait accompli. Our ship was sunk.

Ah, but was it an error. Is that right. Were we sent down to the subcommittee and run through months of rigamarole because of a mistaken recommendation, a simple "error." Or was there in fact a recommendation made to the Supreme Court that we could not see or respond to.

There had to be. There are repeated references within the subcommittee minutes to drafting a recommendation for the Supreme Court. The materials circulated to the subcommittee even include an early draft of such a recommendation. The aborted agenda item specifically refers to a "Draft Recommendation for JIFFY/Supreme Court."

So I believe some recommendation was made. It belies credibility that the Court would consider and reject our petition with no report, no recommendation, no material whatsoever to consider. If there was such a recommendation, we were kept in the dark. We had no chance to answer or clarify points made in any recommendation to the Court.

Separately, it also seems that part of the subcommittee's gamesmanship most likely included an informal, off-the-record meeting among OAS members or JIFFY members, or both, in order to come up with a recommendation. Given the circumstances, the past efforts to keep the matter outside our view, the emails from Moya and others calling for just such an informal meeting, the many documents gathered in the buildup to the April meeting, the April agenda item, "Discuss Draft Recommendation for JIFFY/Supreme Court," followed by the abrupt tabling of that item, given all those events, it seems likely that there was a non-public, in essence secret, meeting.

A meeting where we were not present, could not hear, could not answer, could not speak. As with the entire course of these events, that does not represent good faith. Not close.

The Materials

Moving past the subcommittee's procedural gamesmanship and on to the heart of the matter, the materials most likely formed the foundation for a recommendation to the Court. That foundation is very shaky and, in my view, quite concerning. And it should concern the Court.

I have always believed that facts, more than theory, drive judicial decisions. I suspect the Court approached our request with an open mind and that two factual issues determined the outcome: cost and practicability. The main document addressing those core issues is Artie Pepin's Nov. 30, 2018 memo to the Court which confirms that Tyler has set up the press queue without cost in other states and that courts in those states have been successfully operating press queues.

The memo also contained a survey that was revealing. As a reporter, I always looked forward to reporting on surveys, lists and polls. Because the skill in making those stories interesting is in finding the gems within the statistics, the details that are funny, or telling, or unusual. And the survey attached to the memo includes a couple of those gems – answers that stand out because they are hearteningly clear in saying on-receipt access is doable, practicable. The red color is from the original.

Survey question: What is the timing: are documents provided upon submission or after acceptance.

Answer from Dan Becker, Utah's state court administrator: Public documents are available upon filing.

Q: If you were required to provide same-day access to civil complaints and all exhibits and other attachments when filed (before any review or acceptance process by the court) on paper or electronically, could you do so?

A: Yes.

Q: What challenges would this pose?

A: None.

Q: What would be required to meet these challenges?

A: NA

The answers from Connecticut are less crisp. But they get to the same point. They are bolded in the original.

Survey question: If your courts were required to provide same-day access to civil complaint… What would be required to meet these challenges?

Answer from Melissa Farley, a divisional director within the Connecticut Judicial Branch: When civil documents are e-filed, there is no acceptance process. They are immediately part of the record. In other states, when a document e-filed, the court has to first approve it, but that is not the situation with the Connecticut Judicial Branch. The Connecticut Judicial Branch already provides same day access for most civil cases. The public can view them immediately.

I learned journalism on the job at the Los Angeles Daily Journal before moving on to write for the Boston Globe and the New York Times. When in my reporting I would find something that was funny or contradictory, I was taught to not say it that way, but rather to use the aloof term "ironic."

But I preach to our reporters that they should write as they would tell a story to a family member in the kitchen. So I will say, it's kinda funny that this survey, intended to support a brief saying on-receipt access was impracticable, in fact brought out testimony from two high-level state administrators saying it was no problem.

Eight States Provide On-Receipt Access

In his memo and attachments, Pepin shows that Utah and Connecticut have no difficulty providing on-receipt access. He also shows through his questions that he well understands the difference between filing and acceptance. "If you were required to provide same-day access … when filed (before any review or acceptance process by the court) on paper or electronically, could you do so?" He does not conflate the concept "filed" and the later "acceptance."

That understanding is important because opponents of on-receipt access often try to redefine filing to mean acceptance.

Eight states, in addition to nearly all federal courts, now provide on-receipt access to efiled documents. They do so through either press queues which precede acceptance or through automatic acceptance where filing and acceptance occur at the same time. Press queues are in place in California, Nevada, Georgia and New York. Auto-acceptance is in place in Connecticut, Alabama, Utah and, most recently, Hawaii.

Much of that is verified in the 2018 memo. He writes, "I confirmed that Nevada, Georgia, and California have had Tyler install at no cost to the courts a press queue."

The memo also includes as its final attachment an email from Tyler representative Colleen Reilly: "We did build a configuration for Clark County, Nevada to see filings before they are accepted by the court. Since that time, there are a few counties in Georgia who are using the same approach. The configuration is in our database."

As far as cost, Pepin and Reilly are straight-forward. Pepin says the press queues have been installed "at no cost to the courts." Reilly says, "There is no cost associated with this work."

The subtext to her email is not immediately apparent. But the reason Tyler has provided the press queue for free is because Tyler's policy is not to charge a second time for work already done for another court. The executive summary for Tyler's contract with Vermont spells the policy out, "As customizations requested by clients become part of the Odyssey code base, all clients have the option of enabling these options once incorporated as part of an Odyssey release."

All this leads to a simple conclusion. Tyler has put the press queue in place in three states and it's free. It's also simple to install. Says Reilly on last page of the Pepin memo, "The court would tell us the location and the case types that would be made accessible, and we do the configuration."

Press Queue Is Practicable

From the conclusion that a press queue is practicable, it follows that a press queue should be put in place.

The January Ninth Circuit opinion in Courthouse News v. Planet affirmed a First Amendment injunction against Ventura Superior which was enforcing a no-access-before-process policy. "The record shows that Ventura County's no-access-before-process policy bears no real relationship to the County's legitimate administrative concerns about privacy and confidentiality, accounting protocols, quality control and accuracy, efficient court administration, or the 'integrity' of court records," said the opinion.

As I was working on this letter in late June, the Ninth Circuit sent out a brief order regarding our fee application, saying we had prevailed: "Significantly, however, through this litigation, Courthouse News Service (CNS) established that a First Amendment right of access to civil complaints at the time of filing exists, and that this right is reviewed under the Press Enterprise II standard."

In a separate opinion on the opposite side of the nation, Judge Henry Coke Morgan Jr. in the Eastern District of Virginia ruled in February, after a four-day trial, that access must be provided on the day of filing where it can be done. "The First Amendment requires that such documents be made available contemporaneously with their filing. Contemporaneously means the same day unless that's not practicable," he ruled from the bench.

Contrary to those two opinions, New Mexico's courts are currently pursuing a no-access-before-process policy and they have a practicable alternative that provides same-day access through a press queue.

Over the course of my efforts to reinstate traditional press access in the New Mexico courts, I have respectfully pointed to the First Amendment precedent and implored New Mexico officials to respect that precedent. Since my first letter to Judge Nan Nash in 2015, I have described the deterioration in access in New Mexico with the advent of efiling and asked for a return to the tradition of excellent press access provided by New Mexico before efiling.

As I wrote to the judge at the time, "We would greatly and respectfully appreciate any help the Court can provide in returning press review of new civil actions filed in New Mexico's principal trial court to the traditional status quo of first-class public access."

Five years on, I am still asking for that help.

Public Access in New Mexico Courts

The evolution in New Mexico courts away from a strong endorsement of public access towards a more restrictive policy roughly matches up with a wave of interest in privacy from court administrators around the U.S. The movement crystallized in a set of conferences in Williamsburg from 2013 to 2016 called "Privacy and Public Access," sponsored by the Conference of State Court Administrators and attended by state clerks and administrators from all parts of the nation.

While the intellectual dust storm from those conferences has largely dissipated, the idea of "practical obscurity" has lingered. The notion is that public access should not apply to online records because they are fundamentally different from paper records, which in practice were obscure. The overriding philosophy is that online access to public records should be restricted.

Before that philosophy took hold, New Mexico's Public Access Subcommittee posted the minutes of its meetings. The concerns of the press, including a records request from a reporter for the Albuquerque Journal, were fairly noted, considered and accommodated during that period.

Minutes from the April 2009 meeting include the following entry: "Mr. Mead read the sixth paragraph on page 4, as follows: III. Background on the Public Availability of Electronic Court Records. 'A citizen has a fundamental right to have access to public records. The citizen's right to know is the rule and secrecy is the exception.'"

The upshot is that the subcommittee was committed to public access and its minutes are informative. They give a reader a sense of what was discussed, what decisions were made and how the votes went. But the attitude appears to have changed when the Public Access Subcommittee left the scene and the Online Access Subcommittee took over. The following email exchange illustrates the new attitude.

Feb. 24, 4:43 PM: Rogers emails Orchard, "Is there an OAS website somewhere?"

Feb 25, 8:28 AM: Orchard emails seven officials, "I need some guidance on how to respond to Mr. Rogers."

8:53 AM: Wilkinson, the chief tech officer, emails all seven, "I prefer that no JID staff has continued contact with Mr. Rogers or his client outside of the public meeting setting. … This seems to be at an Artie level."

11:44 AM: Mitchell to the group, "I thought our agendas and minutes were posted, but in looking at the inside and outside website I found: Inside: I could not find a link to OAS under Committees at all. Outside: Under Court Administration, I found 1) a link to PAS (Public Access Committee in 2008-2010 material) 2) OAS line but all that is posted there is the public hearing transcript from the Dec. 8, 2016 meeting.

Two weeks later, Orchard emails Rogers to say the 2020 agendas are posted. But not the minutes. The agendas are limited to what the committee plans to discuss. The minutes are much more substantive. They describe the debates within the committee, what motions were made and passed, and how members voted. The failure to make them public confirms that the new "access" subcommittee takes a very different view of public access than its predecessor.

Appearance of Justice

Even though the OAS minutes are not posted, one set of minutes did make its way into the materials. Included in Pepin's memo are the November 2016 OAS minutes. In reference to Noel they say, "Jim moved to adopt a recommendation that the press and the public have the same access and that both must come to the courthouse to obtain access; the recommendation will be not to define 'news media' or provide differential access to press and public.... The motion failed on a vote of five opposed, being Greg, Judge Mitchell, Barry, Joe, and Weldon, to three in favor, being Jim, Ian, and Judge Alaniz."

The minutes are telling because the press queue sought by Courthouse News in 2020 includes precisely both elements that Mr. Noel opposed back in 2016 – online access to court records by the media.

The minutes go on to illustrate his diehard stance on the issue: "Barry moved that we create a separate line on the Online Case Access Policy for the news media, using the approved definition and granting the same access to the news media that is given to attorneys. Joey seconded the motion. The motion passed on a voice vote with Jim Noel abstaining."

Pepin in his own words also describes "an email ... stating CEO Jim Noel's opposition to CNS' request for immediate electronic access in the Second Judicial District." Attached to his memo as exhibit F is a 2016 email in which Noel acknowledges that Reilly, the Tyler representative, has confirmed press queues in other states. But Noel goes on to argue, "I disagree with Mr. Rogers' conclusion that such documents are subject to public inspection." He adds, "I am reluctant (if not adamantly opposed) to such access by CNS."

Of much lesser importance but nevertheless necessary to rebut, the email then characterizes a talk with me, saying I asked for "immediate" access. My written letters, which parallel my many conversations on the topic, ask for a return to traditional access, which was on the day of filing. As described, the conversation sounds confrontational, but my notes made immediately after the call reflect a conversation that was cordial and engaging where Noel disagreed but said he was a supporter of public access. He also said the matter was not in his hands but resided with the JIFFY committee.

My point here is a limited one. The appearance of justice is not served by leaving an official with a history of strong opposition to the press queue in charge of making a fresh and evenhanded recommendation to the Court, on the very same issue.

Tradition of Access

Overall Courthouse News has had to fight to hang on to traditional access in state courts in all corners of the nation, even within states that have strong traditions of press access like California. The state court opposition is truly myriad. It pervades individual bureaucracies and national organizations.

As a point of comparison, that opposition is almost entirely absent from federal courts. The absence naturally leads to the question: what is so terrible about on-receipt access, if the federal courts have no difficulty with it.

Among their familiar tactics, opponents of on-receipt access resort to denigration of the press. I expect judges to see through these small calumnies, but I am also compelled to answer attacks on our news service's motivation or credibility. In his memo, Pepin says our news service "places a high monetary value on immediate access to pleadings."

I will let Judge Morgan answer that one: "I think that the point the plaintiff's making is that it has its news value as soon as it happens. If you don't get it when it's fresh, it's like stale bread. So I think the plaintiff's point on that is well-taken."

Morgan's comments were forged in the fires of a four-day trial where he was looking at me from about ten feet away while I testified under oath. I think he had a good idea of why I pursue First Amendment access, in the face of just about the entire administrative apparatus of state courts in America.

Because of the role in filing the Ninth Circuit amicus brief played by the Conference of State Court Administrators, where Pepin was president, as well as the National Center for State Courts, I went back to find the brief. I note that Pepin says in his memo he was not able to get a hold of it because he was going through Westlaw which is controlled by Thomson Reuters, another multi-billion-dollar publisher. But the brief is available on the federal courts PACER site.

The brief takes the now defunct position that there is no constitutional right to pre-judgment civil records. And it ends on a note of denigration, reflecting what I heard at the Williamsburg conferences, saying press access serves as "an open invitation for those who would use such records to gratify private spite or promote public scandal."

I laughed a bit when I saw that. One look at the Courthouse News website should be enough to show that we are very much pursuing the news in its traditional sense. Morgan in the Eastern District correctly described the traditional access we seek: "Plaintiff, and other members of the press and public, have historically enjoyed a tradition of court clerks making most newly filed civil complaints publicly available on the day that they are filed."

Ghost of Williamsburg

On the substance of our request for on-receipt access through a press queue, the Pepin memo says, "CNS wants to get copies on everything for efiling before it is entered in a court queue." That statement is incorrect in two ways.

We are not simply asking to "get copies" -- as though we were a copy service – but we are instead seeking to review the new filings and report on them. That box of new filings in Albuquerque was a traditional source of news for local newspapers. "When manual filing was the norm, copies of filed documents were physically set aside in a box for CNS, and they had access to those filed documents the day they were filed," said Noel in his tentative recommendation to the Supreme Court, contained in the materials circulated to the subcommittee. He then conflated efiling and later acceptance.

The second mistake, where the memo says we want access "before it is entered in a court queue," is more basic. In order to submit a complaint, a lawyer enters information in a form that asks for jurisdiction, nature of suit, fee payment and electronic signature, similar to what a paper intake clerk looks for. The lawyer then submits that form and the complaint through Tyler's efiling software. The submitted document is at that point filed and it goes automatically into the docketing clerk's queue. When the clerk gets to it, the new complaint is docketed, or in modern terms, "accepted into the case management system" or "processed."

Through the press queue, reporters get a filtered look at the new complaints that have been filed and are now sitting in the clerk's queue waiting to be processed. So it is incorrect to say we want to see the new case "before it is entered in a court queue."

The discordant aspect of that statement is that while it conflates filing and acceptance, the old survey by Pepin does not. The survey questions demonstrate instead an accurate understanding of the filing sequence – "when filed (before any review or acceptance process by the court)."

Further New Mexico's civil procedure rules are unequivocal on this point: "For purposes of electronic filing only, the date and time that the filer submits the electronic filing envelope will serve as the filing date and time for purposes of meeting statute of limitations or any other filing deadlines, notwithstanding rejection of the attempted filing or its placement into an error queue for additional processing."

While that should be a sufficient explanation, it is important to understand that this argument against press access works off a recurring analogy. It first cropped up at the Williamsburg conference and has been repeated by administrators ever since. The analogy goes like this: 'You reporters want to go up to people waiting in line at the paper filing window, and ask them what they are about to file.'

The analogy is not well considered. We ask to see the new e-filed cases after they have been submitted by the filer, in other words, after they have been filed, after they have crossed over the virtual counter and are sitting in the clerk's processing queue. Tyler's own user manual illustrates the flow accurately by drawing a filer followed by a courthouse followed by a processing clerk. We want to see the new cases at the point where they have reached the courthouse, where the illustration says, "Court receives."

Despite the inaccuracies, minor insults and false analogies, the simplest arguments are the most powerful and they should rule the debate. The fact is that courts in eight states and throughout the federal system provide press access at the time of the efiling's receipt and have done so for years. So it is practicable.

Two Toll Booths

When trying to analyze these conflicts over access, I often say to our lawyers, "Follow the money." Tyler's recent behavior at first mystified me. They have in the past been agnostic about press queues. But then I considered my own advice.

Late in April, when we were still operating in the dark and asking that the press queue be put back on the agenda, I took a look at the May OAS agenda. I noted, with true irony, that one of the items involved Re:SearchNM.

A vendor's dream is to control the bridge to the courthouse. In that dream, the vendor reaches paradise when it sets up two toll booths, one for the documents going into the courthouse and one for the documents coming out. Lexis Nexis achieved vendor nirvana in Colorado a decade ago.

Colorado became the first state in the nation to mandate efiling statewide by turning the whole operation over to Lexis, a division of multi-billion-dollar Anglo-Dutch corporation Reed Elsevier. Lexis controlled the filing mechanism, the docket system and access to the records. They charged the filer to file the case, they charged the state to run the docket, and they charged lawyers and journalists to look at records. We had a reporter go the Colorado Springs courthouse and ask to review the new complaints. The clerk showed him a manila folder containing a Lexis cover sheet and nothing more. The reporter had to go to Lexis, and of course pay, to see those public records.

Colorado's IT director at the time was in close touch with Lexis and he told us in the presence of a Supreme Court justice that Lexis viewed Colorado as "a cash cow." Largely as a result of our lobbying effort, the Colorado legislature discovered it could save millions of dollars by running the system itself, which the state now does. Paradoxically, Colorado left public access in the hands of Lexis and a second smaller company. Even so, at the intercession of the Supreme Court, the press has been able to view new filings on computers in the Supreme Court Library. That access was cut off earlier this year because of the pandemic, but we are set to very shortly to receive online access equivalent to what we had in the library.

A decade after Lexis's monopoly over Colorado's public record was broken, Tyler has established a similar monopoly over the public record in New Mexico. It controls the virtual bridge over which new filings are delivered to the courthouse. It controls the efile manager that receives those filings and puts them in the clerk's docketing queue. It controls the docket. And it controls public access.

The blueprint for putting up a second toll booth on courthouse bridge is not new. It was drafted by Lexis in Colorado a decade ago, and it amounts to a sale of public access. The vendor charges lawyers and journalists and the public for access to court records and sends all or most of that income to the courts. The vendor then sells "special services" to lawyers and keeps that income for itself. But for many years, Tyler showed no interest in the second toll booth. It sold a public access "module" as part of its Odyssey suite, and the court took it from there.

That has changed in the last couple years after Tyler launched the "re:Search" sites. Like any $13 billion corporation would, it was going after another market. In Texas and Georgia where re:search sites have been running for a while, Tyler follows the blueprint. Money generated from fees charged for viewing public documents goes to the courts themselves. Tyler then charges law firms for special services such as alerts on litigation in fields of interest.

Those services can be purchased on a piecemeal basis or as part of a subscription that, for medium to large firms, costs $900 a year. Tyler has recently started offering the same subscriptions in New Mexico. Their selling point is the various alerts and reports that a lawyer can generate from the filings that run through the Tyler system. That is the second toll booth.

Private Control of the Public Record

The problem with this kind of control over the public record manifests itself in different ways. During the Covid crisis, for example, we were not allowed into the courthouse in Austin. That court does not put documents online, so our only choice was to go to re:SearchTX and pay Tyler to see the records.

Total control of the filing system also allows the vendor to charge lawyers above market rates. Tyler in New Mexico charges a toll of $13 per efiling, I understand from Rogers, whereas competing vendors in California charge a toll around $5.50. Among the myriad ways to leverage the toll booths, the vendor can also charge interest rates on credit card payments well above the wholesale rate.

In the past, Courthouse News was in competition with Lexis on some of its publications, and now, with the launch of the re:search sites, we are in competition with Tyler. The re:search subscriptions allow a law firm to track its clients as well as create reports on new litigation from individual courts. That is what we do. Tyler's market is also the same as our market, the nation's law firms.

As a result, Tyler now has a strong financial interest in preventing a press queue. The press queue interferes with their monopoly on the ability to alert automatically and immediately upon acceptance -- the selling point of their subscriptions. The situation was exactly the same in Colorado a decade ago when I and lawyers from Bryan Cave met with the Supreme Court Chief Justice and other members of the court to explain the monopoly that Lexis was exploiting.

The publisher was alerting on new filings before they were published on the public docket. After we pointed that out, the court's former IT director, Bob Roper, told Lexis they had to wait until the docket was made public. So Lexis began alerting, through automated software, precisely when the new cases hit the docket. That was long before we could check the dockets for the whole state and report on the new cases ourselves. They had an iron-clad advantage. We could not compete.

The courts of New Mexico have set up the same type of system, allowing a private vendor to exploit the public record. Like Lexis in Colorado, Tyler in New Mexico is on the inside. Its agents work hand in glove with state court administrators, a symbiosis demonstrated here by the subcommittee's reliance on Tyler representatives in considering the press queue. Our small news service, on the other hand, is made up of journalists whose salaries are paid through the law firm subscriptions, the very subscriptions Tyler is now directly competing with.

In sum Tyler has a clear financial interest in the matter the press queue. In New Mexico, unfortunately, that financial interest works hand-in-hand with the restrictive philosophy of officials who, based on their historic opposition to on-receipt access, are also looking to sink the press queue.

During another swim, I was thinking about this combination of circumstances, and an old Right Guard commercial with Hulk Hogan came to mind. He is posing like a French painter on the beach in front of an easel with palette in hand. And with panache, he urges his audience to avoid "odiferous emanations."

The teaming up between court officials hostile to the press queue and representatives of a $13 billion corporation with a parallel financial interest – that deal needs a whole lot of Right Guard.

Tyler's Answers

Faced in 2016 with a district court ruling in Courthouse News v. Planet that said the right of access attaches on receipt, Pepin sent a questionnaire to administrators eliciting answers about the dangers of on-receipt access. Faced in 2020 with evidence showing on-receipt access through a press queue is both free and practicable, the subcommittee designed a similar questionnaire for, as Moya said in the Feb. 24 email, "the right person from Tyler."

Q. "What are the court processes in those other states that make this possible?"

A: "Upon submission, a copy of the document is sent to this separate tool and provided to participants in that tool. They have the ability view the documents until the clerk picks it up for review. It is important to note that while the request is from Courthouse News Service, the local media will demand the same access particularly if you call it Press Review Queue," answers a Texas manager for Tyler.

Like that occasional gem in the old COSCA survey, this is one such gem. The answer is correct. The press queue allows the press to see the new cases after they have arrived at the courthouse, and indeed are filed, but before a clerk puts them into the docket. And the press queue is aptly named. It is for members of the press corps so they can review the new filings once they are filed, as the press has done since time out of mind.

Q: "How documents are dealt with (motion to seal, redactions, etc.)?

A: "Any motion to seal would take place AFTER the filing has been accepted by the Court so one would assume this means that if you provide early availability, the media would have access documents before the motion to seal has been considered."

That answer is incorrect. As any competent lawyer will observe, the procedure for filing a sealed document is to file the motion and lodge the sealed document. It is not to first file the sealed document and then file the motion, as the manager claims.

New Mexico's civil procedure rules are clear: "The movant shall lodge the court record with the court … when the motion is made. … The movant shall label the envelope or container lodged with the court 'CONDITIONALLY UNDER SEAL.'… the clerk shall … retain but not file the court record unless the court orders it filed."

In addition, a press queue has been operating for ten years in Clark County, Nevada. If there had ever been this kind of problem, it would have resulted in a shut-down of the press queue, as is true in all the other courts that operate press queues. Rather than relying on any instance of fact, the Tyler manager engages in mistaken guesswork.

Q: "Any opinions about going in this direction?"

A: "This tool opens up the filer, the court and Tyler to the liability of sensitive documents unlawfully getting out to the public."

The legal opinion of Tyler's e-solutions manager is incorrect. New Mexico, like Virginia and nearly all states, places responsibility for the contents of a filed document on the filer and not on the clerk.

In his ruling in Virginia, Judge Morgan addressed a related argument by the Virginia clerks: "Defendants claim that their interests in the orderly administration of their office and protecting confidential information outweigh the public's First Amendment right to contemporaneous access. The Court first observes that under Virginia law, the filer is responsible for redacting confidential information."

The same is true in New Mexico, as set out in its civil procedure rules: "Any attorney ... shall be responsible for taking all reasonable precautions to ensure that the protected personal identifier information is not unlawfully disclosed ... The court clerk is not required to review documents for compliance with this paragraph and shall not refuse for filing any document that does not comply. The court clerk is not required to screen court records released to the public."

Williamsburg Ghost Returns

Q: "How are they making electronic access equivalent to paper access?"

A: "In the paper world this tool is essentially the same as providing the authorized participants (like Courthouse News, local media) the ability to stand between the clerk's desk and the filers/runners and view the filers' documents while they wait in line to file their documents with the clerk."

This is the ghost of Williamsburg that will not go away. It stays around, in my view, because it has a purpose. It suggests the access sought by journalists through the press queue is something new and crazy – while they wait in line! Outrageous!

Tyler's own user manual contradicts the analogy. We are asking to see the new filings where the manual has drawn a miniature courthouse next to the words, "Court receives." It is there the journalists seek access, like they had with the wooden box, after the filer pushes the new filing across the virtual counter, not, as the old ghost says, before.

Q: "Cost of delivering solution?"

A: "There will be a cost to the State of New Mexico because it is an add-on service."

The answer deserves a challenge. It runs counter to the overall Tyler policy of not charging a second time for software that has already been developed. And it runs counter to the experience in three other states that use Tyler's Odyssey software.

It also flatly conflicts the Pepin 2018 memo that installation of the press queue is without cost.

In considering this issue, it is important to stay on the terra firma of local Tyler representative Colleen Reilly's initial, candid, matter-of-fact account of the cost-free ease with which a press queue can be set up here in New Mexico. "The court would tell us the location and case types that would be made accessible, and we would do the configuration," she wrote. And she confirmed that, "There is no cost associated with this work."

That is information this Court can and should rely upon. The deceptively contrived catalogue of dangers interjected privately and belatedly is not. It serves Tyler which now has a financial interest in shooting down the press queue. It also serves the interest of officials inside the administration who follow a restrictive philosophy on press access. This very questionable information was circulated to members of the subcommittee who were in the process of preparing a "Draft Recommendation for JIFFY/Supreme Court."

The answers were kept away from us until it was too late. So we did not have a chance to challenge them. They are the expression of two intertwined interests, that of a private corporation seeking to advance its financial interests, and that of court officials pursuing their opposition to on-receipt access. The answers poisoned the process of making a recommendation to the Court.

I believe that should be a matter of substantial concern to the Court.

A Little Help

My continuing question, as we fight these battles for press access, is how court administrators can with impunity refuse access on the day of filing where it is practicable. New Mexico is certainly not alone in this respect. As shown by the coordination between the members of COSCA and the National Center for State Courts, state court administrators fight against same-day access at an institutional level as if the press were taking away something they owned. The entire administrative superstructure of the state courts, all supported by public funds, is battling this one news service over First Amendment access. It does feel at times like a David v. Goliath struggle

After many years observing that tenacious opposition, I have come to believe it continues because state court clerks and administrators are indeed powerful agents of the state and thus are able to insulate themselves from any repercussions for denying First Amendment access to public records. They can pay for their resistance with a huge bank account, the one that belongs to the public. And in some instances, that is simply how it ends up. I can't afford to fight every clerk who refuses to give the press traditional access. Nor can any news outlet, today more than ever.

But when that state power is combined with the interests of a mega-rich private software company that has its fingers in so many public pies, the forces on the other side become almost overwhelming. So I could use a little help. I would ask that Your Honor and the Supreme Court appoint a member of the Bar or a retired judge to examine the underlying facts and give our petition a fair shake.

Sincerely and respectfully,

Kathleen Vigil, District Court Clerk
New Mexico First Judicial District Court
225 Montezuma Avenue
Santa Fe, New Mexico 87501

Dear Clerk Vigil,

I am writing from Courthouse News Service to request that your office provide traditional access to new civil complaints when they are filed. In the paper past, in your office, we had access to new civil actions as soon as they crossed the counter.

The federal courts, including the U.S. District of New Mexico, and an increasingly long list of state courts now provide traditional access in the electronic context. They do so by giving either the press or the press and public access to new public complaints when they cross the electronic counter – just as they gave access to new paper cases when they crossed the physical counter.

The vendor used by the courts of New Mexico, Tyler Technologies, has installed a Press Review Queue -- that provides pre-processing, on-receipt access -- in a number of courts in California, Nevada and Georgia. So have other vendors including Journal Technologies, Tybera, Granicus and OLIS, as well as home-grown systems in Hawaii, Washington, Connecticut and New York. These are in addition to the PACER system used by the federal courts.

To be frank, I have made the same request of the Administrative Office of the Courts, and that request has been rejected for unstated reasons. But as you are custodian of the record, I am respectfully asking you for pre-processing access through a press review queue.

At a statewide level in New Mexico, I have been waiting quite some time in an effort to resolve this access issue through letters, conversations and meetings. So I would ask that you let me know within two weeks if you are willing to accommodate this respectful request.

Thank you,

EXHIBIT B

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE DISTRICT OF NEW MEXICO

COURTHOUSE NEWS SERVICE, Plaintiff, v. NEW MEXICO ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICE OF THE COURTS; ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICE DIRECTOR ARTHUR W. PEPIN; NEW MEXICO FIRST JUDICIAL DISTRICT COURT CLERK'S OFFICE; and the FIRST JUDICIAL DISTRICT COURT CLERK KATHLEEN VIGIL Defendants.	)	Civil Action No. _____

DECLARATION OF VICTORIA PRIESKOP IN SUPPORT OF PLAINTIFF COURTHOUSE NEWS SERVICE'S MOTION FOR PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION

I, Victoria Prieskop, declare and state as follows:

1. I make this declaration in support of the Motion for Preliminary Injunction filed by Courthouse News Service ("Courthouse News") in the above entitled action. I have personal knowledge of the following facts and would and could testify to them if called as a witness.

2. I started working for Courthouse News in 2008 as a substitute reporter and then became a primary reporter in June 2014. From the start, my duties included covering new civil actions filed in Santa Fe County District Court, Bernalillo County District Court, Valencia County District Court and Sandoval County District Court.

3. I currently work as the New Mexico reporter for Courthouse News, reporting on the courts as well as general news from New Mexico, including political and environmental matters. My duties include writing a daily report on new civil litigation filed in the federal and state courts of New Mexico.

4. In that coverage, in all those courts, I was allowed to go behind the counter into the work spaces of the clerk's staff prior to implementation of electronic filing ("e-filing") in order to review and subsequently report on newsworthy civil complaints. I was sometimes joined by other news reporters. Below, I explain the access that existed before e-filing, when the complaints were still in paper form.

5. In Santa Fe County District Court, I would signal an intake clerk when I arrived at the court and the clerk would open the door for me to go into the work area of the clerk's office, which consisted of a large, open room. I had access to two sets of newly filed complaints. One set was held in a rolling cart, like a moveable book shelf. Those cases had been docketed and placed in manila, legal-size case folders with the case number affixed to one edge of the folder. I also had access to a second set of cases kept in a stack of temporary folders in a shallow cardboard container, like the lid to a box for reams of paper on top of a file cabinet. These cases had not been docketed, and they included cases filed that same day. In Santa Fe, these complaints were kept in plain manila folders, while in Albuquerque, they were in blue folders.

6. Before I left for the day, I went up to the intake clerks at the counter and asked for any new complaints. They would hand me cases that had just been filed and set aside in their work space at the counter and I would review them, before they were put in the stack of cases still to be docketed.

7. In Bernalillo County District Court in Albuquerque, I would also be let in behind the counter by a clerk at the intake counter. I would proceed to a half-cubicle within a farm of cubicles behind the counter where the new complaints were kept in two sets. One set was in a rack of cases that had been docketed and placed in permanent folders with case numbers. At the other end of the cubicle was a stack of new cases in temporary, blue folders that had just been filed and not yet docketed. During the afternoon, intake clerks would occasionally supplement the stack of newly filed complaints. Before I left at the end of the day, around 5:00 p.m., I would make the rounds of the docketing clerks to see if they had any new cases I had not seen.

8. In Valencia County District Court in Los Lunas, I would arrive and the intake clerks recognized me as a reporter and one would jump up from their chair at the counter and let me into the area behind the counter. The reporters' work space was among stacks of cases but I would walk out to the counter and see the cases that were not yet placed in the stacks, but were in permanent folders, on a table behind the counter. I asked the clerks for permission to review them, which they always allowed and would then review the new cases at the workspace in the stacks. I would then return those cases to the table behind the intake counter.

9. At the Sandoval County District Court in the town of Bernalillo, I was recognized as a reporter by the intake clerks when I arrived. One of the clerks would rise from his or her chair and let me into the area behind the counter. This was a low-volume court, and I only went there once every two weeks. I would pick up the cases from a long work table about ten feet behind the intake counter where I would review the new cases that had been put in folders in various trays on the work table. I would arrive in the morning but I recall seeing cases that had been filed that same morning and that I was able to review.

10. On one occasion, I recall that another newspaper reporter, whose name I did not learn, came to the clerk's office and he too was recognized as a reporter. He was provided with the file he was searching for, reviewed it, and then left.

11. I also covered U.S. District Court in New Mexico through the courthouse in Albuquerque. I would visit the court in the afternoon and ask the intake clerk for the new cases. She would hand me a stack of new cases in blank folders that I would review at a small table in the public area near the intake counter. I saw cases filed that day, and I understand that the cases had not yet been docketed. In U.S. District Court, my understanding is that two copies of all new complaints were submitted in paper form by the filer, and I was reviewing one of those copies.

12. After the implementation of e-filing, I now see the new complaints that are e-filed in U.S. District Court in New Mexico as soon as they are received. I know that because I can see cases that are filed after hours when I check the PACER site after 5:00 p.m. in the afternoon, and I can view cases filed on weekends when I check PACER on weekends.

13. In the state courts of New Mexico, after they switched over to mandatory e-filing, I could no longer see the new complaints as they were received. Instead, I was required to wait until the new complaints were processed and a docket entry appeared on computer terminals at the courthouse. When I saw a new docket entry, I would then click on the case number, which served as a link taking me to that case's docket page. I then clicked on the word "complaint," which took me to the full document, in order to do my review and reporting.

14. Subsequently, I was allowed to see the complaints online as well as at the courthouse. But, I can only see the cases after they are processed by the clerk. I routinely see cases on a delayed basis, a day or two after they were filed. I check every week day until after 5:00 p.m. so I can see the last cases processed that day. This way, I know if a case filed on a given day has been delayed because I check on that given day until after the clerk's office has closed and the staff has stopped processing new complaints.

15. In February of this year, 2021, my bureau chief Jamie Ross asked me to begin tracking the delays in access in the courts of New Mexico. Since then, I have logged each general civil case filed in the courts of New Mexico, noting when the case was filed based on its file date and when it was available for review. I base the date when it was available for review on checking every week day until approximately 6:00 p.m., well after the staff has stopped processing cases for the day. A true and correct copy of the spreadsheet log that I created and have maintained to track access delays for newly filed complaints in New Mexico state courts is attached hereto as Exhibit B-1 and incorporated herein by reference. A true and correct copy of the spreadsheet log that I created and have maintained to track access delays for newly filed complaints in the Santa Fe County District Court is attached hereto as Exhibit B-2 and incorporated herein by reference.

16. The spreadsheet where I enter the data for filing date and date available for review automatically calculates the delay between those two dates. The tracking sheet where I have entered the data shows that, overall. the courts of New Mexico delayed 30% of the new cases until one or more days after the filing of the complaint between February and June of this year. See Exhibit B-1. For the cases filed in Santa Fe County District Court, my tracking shows that access was delayed for 59% of the new cases until one or more days after the filing date of the complaint during this same time period, representing 506 new complaints. See Exhibit B-2.

17. The total number of cases held back past the day of filing in New Mexico state courts between February 23 and June 30 is 2,342 new complaints. They include two complaints that were highly newsworthy. One was a new complaint filed by the Department of Environmental Affairs in New Mexico against the Los Alamos National Laboratory over the cleanup of toxic materials. The case was filed on February 24, 2021, but I was not able to see it because it had not been processed until a day later. By then, the Associated Press had already learned of the suit and distributed a news story on the case. Additionally, on May 26, 2021, a complaint was filed by a journalist against the sheriff of Rio Arriba County, who alleged that the sheriff had harassed her and excluded her from press briefings after she reported on the shooting death of a special education student. I was not able to see that case when it was filed because it had not been processed, and I am not allowed to see cases before they are processed. By the time I was able to get review the case, it was stale news and I was not able to report on it.

18. I have covered stories for the Courthouse News website that include coverage of budget issues affecting the Mew Mexico courts. As part of that coverage, I telephoned Defendant Pepin, who could not comment for the record but who was helpful in referring me to a court official who could. The story was titled "New Mexico Court Crisis Averted, for Now" and the lead paragraph said, "SANTA FE, N.M. (CN) — Facing a possible shutdown of jury trials, the New Mexico State Board of Finance voted Wednesday to give nearly $700,000 from emergency funds to the state's embattled court system." A true and correct copy of the article is attached hereto as Exhibit B-3 and incorporated herein by reference.

19. I have also written stories for the Courthouse News website on jaguar territory loss in New Mexico, the New Mexico Supreme Court's decision upholding a COVID ban on indoor dining, another New Mexico Supreme Court decision upholding fines levied against businesses that stayed open during the Covid crisis, New Mexico's legal pursuit of armed paramilitary groups, and many more stories on a wide range of topics.

20. I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United States that the foregoing is true and correct.

Executed in Albuquerque, New Mexico on this 22nd day of July, 2021.

New Mexico Court Crisis Averted, for Now

Facing a possible shutdown of jury trials, the New Mexico State Board of Finance voted Wednesday to give nearly $700,000 from emergency funds to the state's embattled court system.

VICTORIA PRIESKOP / February 9, 2017

SANTA FE, N.M. (CN) — Facing a possible shutdown of jury trials, the New Mexico State Board of Finance voted Wednesday to give nearly $700,000 from emergency funds to the state's embattled court system.

The courts had warned that without the money, they could not afford to hold jury trials.

State Supreme Court Justice Judith Nakamura laid out the problem for the board, saying bluntly: "I'm not here to add to the drama or make sound bites, just tell you what is needed."

Gov. Susana Martinez and Lt. Gov. John Sanchez both attended the special meeting in the governor's cabinet room.

New Mexico's court system has been underfunded for years, Nakamura said, cutting spending wherever possible and borrowing against future appropriations to make up shortfalls. With the Legislature in session but no budget published, the court system has no way to cover a shortfall projected at $1.6 million for the rest of the 2016-2017 fiscal year.

The justice laid out the numbers for the board: that the state supreme court's $3.3 million budget had been nearly $100,000 short from the outset, before the Legislature cut another 3 percent from it in a special session in October.

Nakamura told the board that judicial employees are delaying or avoiding submitting mileage reports because they know the court would struggle to pay them. She herself, Nakamura said, had bought supplies at Staples to keep the offices running.

"Everyone in the court is cognizant of the problem," she told the board. "Everyone is trying to help."

The board voted to approve the $82,000 requested by the supreme court to keep the offices open and avoid employee furloughs. Then they turned to the $600,000 requested for the Jury and Witness Fee Fund. Without that money, Nakamura said, the state would no longer be able to schedule jury trials, starting March 1.

Board member Robert J. Aragon expressed concern with the way that the cessation of jury trials is perceived. He cited legislative leaders who had said: "'Inaction will lead to bad guys walking the streets.' That's a very provocative statement, because it has the possibility to incite. Not necessarily to incite action, but to incite fear," Aragon said.

Nakamura assured the board that "judges aren't just going to open up the jails."

But she warned that by rescheduling and pushing back jury trials, the state could be accused of violating the right to a speedy trial.

The board approved the $600,000 for the Jury and Witness Fee Fund — but called it and the $82,000 for the supreme court a loan, should the Legislature pass bills to supply the money. If not, the money will become a grant from the state.

The board encouraged Nakamura to keep working with the Legislature on appropriations that will pay the courts' bills without going into the red.

"It is the constitutional responsibility of the Legislature to fund the courts," Lt. Gov. Sanchez said.
