1 ANDRES ALBA, aka "Doctor," 2 aka "Dre," NATIVIDAD GALVAN, 3 aka "Naty," LORENZO GALVAN, 4 aka "Lalo," and LORRAINE ROBLES, 5 6 Defendants. 7 The Grand Jury charges: 8 COUNT ONE 9 [18 U.S.C. § 1962(d)] 10 [DEFENDANTS MARTINEZ, AGUIRRE, ORTIZ, MEJIA, ALVARADO, 11 VASQUEZ, COOPER, GUARJARDO, R. MARTINEZ, CAMPOS, and CANALES] 12 GENERAL ALLEGATIONS Α. 13 At times relevant to this First Superseding Indictment: 14 The Orange County Mexican Mafia, also known as "La Eme" 1. 15 ("OC Mexican Mafia"), was a "gang of gangs" comprised mostly of 16 senior members of California Hispanic street gangs who came together 17 to control and profit from the activities of Hispanic gangs operating 18 in Southern California. La Eme was established in the 1950s by 19 Hispanic youth inmates at the Deuel Vocational Facility, but over 20 time had morphed into an international criminal organization. 21 Members and associates of the OC Mexican Mafia engaged in, among 22 other things, narcotics trafficking, witness intimidation and 23 retaliation, acts involving murder, and aggravated assault. The OC 24 25 3 26 27 28

Mexican Mafia operated in the Central District of California and 1 2 elsewhere. Members of the OC Mexican Mafia were referred to as 3 "Carnales" or "brothers." To become a brother, a gang member must have a distinguished reputation for "putting in work" on behalf of 4 5 the OC Mexican Mafia, meaning the gang member had murdered or assaulted enemies and rivals of the OC Mexican Mafia. Prospective 6 7 members were expected to provide financial assistance to OC Mexican 8 Mafia members, and to follow the OC Mexican Mafia's rules governing the streets and correctional institutions. 9 10 2. Members of Hispanic street gangs in Southern California were referred to as "Sureños" or "Southsiders." Sureños were 11 associates of the OC Mexican Mafia and fell under the control of the 12 OC Mexican Mafia's members. Members of the OC Mexican Mafia 13 considered Mexican nationals, often referred to as "Paisas," and 14 15 Hispanic-American citizens who were not members of a recognized gang, generally referred to as "Residents," fell under the OC Mexican 16 17 Mafia's control while in custody. Paisas and Residents who were 18 trusted by OC Mexican Mafia members could participate in and be given 19 positions in the OC Mexican Mafia's affairs. Sureños, whether in 20 custody or on the streets, operated as soldiers and workers for the 21 OC Mexican Mafia. Being loyal to the OC Mexican Mafia was an 22 integral part of being a Southern California Hispanic street gang member. It was understood that when individuals joined Southern 23 California gangs, they were joining an entity loyal to the OC Mexican Mafia. Members of such gangs were expected to, and were proud to, carry out the orders of the OC Mexican Mafia member in control of their neighborhood and custody facility, because "doing work" for the OC Mexican Mafia increased their status and reputation. Some gangs included in their name the number "13," denoting the letter "M," or "eme" in Spanish, in order to demonstrate their loyalty and allegiance to the OC Mexican Mafia.

7 3. The Mexican Mafia also aligned with Armenian Power, also 8 known as "AP," a Los Angeles street gang whose membership consisted 9 primarily of individuals of Armenian descent, as well as of other countries within the former Soviet bloc. The relationship between 10 11 the Mexican Mafia and Armenian Power was symbiotic: The Mexican Mafia, which has large numbers of incarcerated members and associates, provided protection and status to Armenian Power members and associates within prison. In exchange, Armenian Power members and associates assisted Mexican Mafia members and associates with criminal activities within and outside of prison. As a result, Armenian Power was considered akin to Southern Hispanic street gangs loyal to the Mexican Mafia, and AP members were treated like Sureños.

4. Members and associates of street gangs controlled by and affiliated with the OC Mexican Mafia were required to pay monthly "taxes," called "respects," to members of the OC Mexican Mafia, the payment of which allowed such street gangs to maintain control and exert influence over their territories, enabling them to distribute illicit drugs and engage in other criminal activity. These "taxes" also ensured the protection of the gang's members once they entered

prisons and jails. The "taxing" and control applied to activities both in and out of jails and prisons.

5. Members of the OC Mexican Mafia divided control of specific areas within Southern California and the Hispanic gangs in those areas. The OC Mexican Mafia brother who had the rights to a specific area controlled the sale of drugs and collection of taxes within the area, was entitled to a share of criminal proceeds from criminal activities committed in the area, and oversaw the maintenance of discipline over the various street gangs and members from that area.

6. Control over a specific area also included control over the prisons and jails within the area. Yards and other units within a jail and prison were considered by the OC Mexican Mafia to be territory just as much as a neighborhood on the street. By exercising control over inmates in the prison and jail systems in Orange County, primarily through violence and threats of violence, the OC Mexican Mafia was able to control the criminal activities both inside and outside of custodial facilities. In general, one member of the OC Mexican Mafia had control of and rights to a specific facility. That member, whether incarcerated in that facility or not, controlled the smuggling of drugs into the facility, the collection of taxes from the sale of those drugs, extortion within that facility, and the maintenance of discipline within the facility. At any time, one OC Mexican Mafia member might control the entire Orange County prison system; or alternatively, control of various facilities within the prison system might be divided among different members of the OC Mexican Mafia.

3 7. OC Mexican Mafia members carried out their criminal activities with the help of associates, often gang members living and 4 5 working in an OC Mexican Mafia member's area of control. Some of these trusted associates acted as "shot-callers" or "mouth-pieces," 6 7 that is, high-level associates who had been given the authority to conduct enterprise affairs, such as collecting extortionate taxes and drug-trafficking proceeds and enforcing discipline in their particular areas of control. Each shot-caller worked directly under the authority of the OC Mexican Mafia member who appointed him. The shot-caller coordinated the activities of the associates and was responsible for ensuring that the OC Mexican Mafia member's orders, whether in a neighborhood or jail or prison facility, were carried out. Shot-callers were located both inside and outside of jail and prison facilities. Shot-callers were oftentimes referred to as "Camaradas," the Spanish word for "comrades," by OC Mexican Mafia members. Shot-callers often referred to OC Mexican Mafia members as "Tio," the Spanish word for "uncle," or other terms of deference.

8. The OC Mexican Mafia member in control of a specific custodial facility put together a team of trusted associates to manage and facilitate the criminal activities within the facility. The OC Mexican Mafia's leadership within the prison or jail was known as a "Mesa." The Mesa was comprised of trusted associates chosen by the OC Mexican Mafia member in charge of the facility. The Mesa could include the shot-caller for that facility. If the shot-caller was not on the Mesa, the Mesa would report directly to the shotcaller acting on behalf of the OC Mexican Mafia brother.

9. OC Mexican Mafia members required inmates to pay respects on narcotics and other contraband, including cellphones smuggled into the correctional institution and sold within the facility. The money was generally collected by the "Mesa" or "shot-caller" and made to a secretary or facilitator outside of the facility, using Green Dot and other forms of electronic payment, who would then forward the money to the OC Mexican Mafia brother who controlled that facility. Another common method that OC Mexican Mafia members employed to make money was taxing Hispanic gang members and associates who violated enterprise rules, as well as those who wanted to engage in profitable criminal activities in areas controlled by the OC Mexican Mafia. Ιf the gang member or associate did not pay the demanded sum, or had violated OC Mexican Mafia rules, an OC Mexican Mafia leader commonly would order that the person be assaulted until that individual complied. Alternatively, if the non-compliant individual refused to pay, or if the enterprise was not able to punish the individual, the OC Mexican Mafia could extort or punish family members, close associates, members of that person's gang, or others related to the If a person or gang did not meet the OC Mexican Mafia's person. payment demands, they were subjected to violence until they complied.

The OC Mexican Mafia profited from others selling narcotics 10. 1 2 within the territory of the enterprise by working together to collect 3 a portion of the proceeds of drug trafficking conducted by street gang members and others in and around Orange County and the Orange 4 5 County prison system. On the streets, profiting from drug trafficking was done by taxing drug dealers. All drug dealers who 6 7 operated in an area controlled by the OC Mexican Mafia were required 8 to pay a percentage of their profits from the sale of drugs to the enterprise. If the drug dealer did not pay, he would not be allowed 9 10 to sell drugs in that area, under threat of assault and even death.

The OC Mexican Mafia had self-imposed rules handed down by 11. the OC Mexican Mafia members to the shot-callers who facilitated the imposition of the rules using Sureños. These rules, referred to as "reglas," were imposed to maintain fear and compliance among Sureños, among other reasons. Two of the more important rules were: (1) the requirement that all associates carry out a request from the OC Mexican Mafia member in control; and (2) the prohibition on cooperating with law enforcement. Should a gang member break one of these rules, discipline would be imposed by the OC Mexican Mafia brother in control or his designated shot-caller. Discipline was frequently imposed in the form of a fine or an assault. The most serious form of discipline was being put on the "green light" list, also known as being "greenlighted." Being placed on the green light list meant that every Sureño was obligated to severely assault the greenlighted person if they saw him, even if death was likely to result. Only members of the OC Mexican Mafia were able to put a 1 2 person, group, or entire gang on the green light list. Those who were put on a green light list could be removed by the payment of a 3 4 significant fine or an agreement to put in work for the enterprise, 5 such as committing a violent act. Failure to pay monthly respects could result in a whole gang receiving a greenlight, meaning that all 6 7 members of the gang were subjected to assaults by OC Mexican Mafia 8 members and associates, until the respects were paid.

9 12. Communicating with Orange County street gangs and other OC 10 Mexican Mafia members and associates, both inside and outside of jail 11 and prison facilities, was necessary to facilitate the criminal 12 enterprise. Messages, including instructions and orders, were sent 13 in a variety of ways to avoid law enforcement detection. OC Mexican Mafia members used contraband cellphones, prison system e-mails, 14 15 letters, "kites" (notes smuggled by prisoners), "verbals" (a verbal 16 message, typically of a sensitive nature, passed from one inmate to 17 another), and messages conveyed to jail and prison visitors in order 18 to communicate directions and instructions to, and to discuss OC 19 Mexican Mafia business with, persons in other facilities and on the 20 streets. OC Mexican Mafia members and associates often used coded 21 language to conceal the true nature of their discussions with and 22 instructions to criminal associates. OC Mexican Mafia members and associates relied on associates, often female, known as 23 24 "secretaries," to communicate with incarcerated OC Mexican Mafia 25 members and associates, and relay their instructions to others.

Secretaries were treated as respected criminal figures by members of street gangs controlled by and affiliated with the OC Mexican Mafia.

13. Members of the OC Mexican Mafia and their designated subordinates, including secretaries and shot-callers, disseminated instructions to OC Mexican Mafia associates relating to the distribution of controlled substances, the collection of proceeds from the sale of controlled substances and extortions, the taxing of drug dealers, and the commission of acts of violence against persons who violated the OC Mexican Mafia's rules.

14. From in or around 2016, and continuing to at least in or around April 2022, defendants JOHNNY MARTINEZ, also known as ("aka") "Crow," aka "Gumdrop" ("MARTINEZ"), ROBERT AGUIRRE, aka "Rob" ("AGUIRRE"), and DENNIS ORTIZ, aka "Woody," aka "Socrates" ("ORTIZ"), were the OC Mexican Mafia brothers in charge of criminal activities in Orange County and within Orange County jail and prison facilities. Defendants OMAR MEJIA, aka "Cruz," aka "Rascal" ("MEJIA"), MIGUEL JOSE ALVARADO, aka "Grumpy" ("ALVARADO"), LUIS HERIBERTO VASQUEZ, aka "Moss," aka "Little Shooter," aka "Shooter" ("VASQUEZ"), MICHAEL COOPER, aka "Shaqqy" ("COOPER"), and ABRAHAM GUARJARDO, aka "Abe," aka "Grumpy" ("GUARJARDO"), held the positions of shot-callers or mouthpieces for defendants MARTINEZ, AGUIRRE, and ORTIZ. Defendant ROBERT MARTINEZ, aka "Lil Rob," aka "Blacky" ("R. MARTINEZ"), held a position on the Orange County Jail Mesa representing defendant MARTINEZ. Defendant BRENDA VANESSA CAMPOS MARTINEZ, aka "Miss V," aka "Vanessa" ("CAMPOS"), served as a secretary for defendant

MEANS AND METHODS OF THE ENTERPRISE

17. The means and methods by which members and associates of the OC Mexican Mafia conducted and participated in the conduct of the affairs of the Enterprise included, but were not limited to, the following:

a. To generate income, members and associates of the Enterprise engaged in illegal activities under the protection of the Enterprise, including drug trafficking within Orange County correctional facilities and in Orange County neighborhoods, taxing drug dealers operating in neighborhoods controlled by the Enterprise, extorting inmates by taxing in-custody criminal activity, collecting respects from Hispanic street gangs under the control of the Enterprise, and other criminal conduct.

b. To enforce discipline within the Enterprise, members and associates of the Enterprise punished errant members and associates for violations of the OC Mexican Mafia's rules.
Discipline ranged from a fine or an assault to being placed on the "green light" list, whereupon the "greenlighted" individual could be murdered on behalf of the Enterprise.

c. To identify persons in bad standing, coordinate the movement of drugs and communications in prison, and conduct other Enterprise business, members and associates of the OC Mexican Mafia kept track of Southern California Hispanic gang members through lists known as "roll calls," which were made to keep track of every Sureño in a particular module or dorm of a jail or prison. Such lists often included the Sureño's name, booking number, next court date, gang, and/or moniker.

d. To facilitate and maintain control of criminal activities in areas controlled by the Enterprise, both inside and outside of correctional facilities, members and associates of the Enterprise communicated directions, instructions, and orders to, and 1 2 discussed OC Mexican Mafia business with, persons in other facilities 3 or on the streets via contraband cellphones, prison system e-mails, letters, "kites," "verbals," and messages conveyed to jail and prison 4 5 visitors.

Members and associates of the Enterprise hid, е. misrepresented, concealed, and caused to be hidden, misrepresented, and concealed, the acts done in furtherance of the conspiracy, and used coded language and other surreptitious means of communication to avoid detection and apprehension by law enforcement.

f. To perpetuate the Enterprise and to maintain and extend their power, members and associates of the Enterprise committed, attempted to commit, conspired to commit, and threatened to commit acts involving murder, kidnapping, robbery, intimidation, and assault against individuals who posed a threat to the Enterprise or jeopardized its operations, including rival gang members, Enterprise members and associates who violated the OC Mexican Mafia's rules or otherwise showed disrespect to the Enterprise, and witnesses to illegal activities of the Enterprise.

20 To promote a climate of fear and discourage q. cooperation with law enforcement, members and associates of the Enterprise committed, attempted to commit, conspired to commit, and threatened to commit acts of violence against rival gang members, Hispanic gang members, Paisas, and potential witnesses to the Enterprise's criminal conduct.

a. Multiple acts involving murder, in violation of California Penal Code Sections 21a, 31, 182, 187, 189, and 664;

b. Multiple acts involving extortion, in violation of California Penal Code Sections 21a, 31, 182, 518, 519, 524, and 664;

e. Multiple acts indictable under Title 18, United States Code, Section 1951 (relating to interfering with commerce by robbery and extortion).

It was further part of the conspiracy that each defendant agreed that a conspirator would commit at least two acts of racketeering activity in the conduct of the affairs of the enterprise.

F. OVERT ACTS

19. In furtherance of the conspiracy, and to achieve the object thereof, the Defendants, and others known and unknown to the Grand Jury, committed and caused to be committed various acts within the Central District of California, and elsewhere, including, but not limited to, the following:

Overt Act No. 8: On or about March 28, 2017, defendant MARTINEZ ordered that OC Mexican Mafia Enterprise member Munoz be removed from his position as a shot-caller with the OC Mexican Mafia Enterprise.

Overt Act No. 9: On or about March 28, 2017, as a result of defendant MARTINEZ's order, OC Mexican Mafia Enterprise associates known to the Grand Jury assaulted OC Mexican Mafia Enterprise member Munoz while he was in custody in Calipatria State Prison, causing bodily injury to Munoz.

Overt Act No. 10: On or about April 6, 2017, OC Mexican Mafia Enterprise associates known to the Grand Jury used handmade weapons to assault OC Mexican Mafia Enterprise member Munoz while he was in custody in Calipatria State Prison, causing serious bodily injury to Munoz's head and ear. Overt Act No. 11: Between on or about April 17, 2017 through on or about April 25, 2017, defendants MARTINEZ and GUARJARDO, and others known to the Grand Jury, discussed and agreed to sell approximately three ounces of heroin for $2,000.

Overt Act No. 12: On or about April 17, 2017, defendant GUARJARDO contacted a person he believed to be a methamphetamine buyer, but who was in fact a confidential informant working with law enforcement ("CI-1"), to set up a sale of three ounces of heroin for $2,000.

Overt Act No. 14: On or about April 21, 2017, defendant GUARJARDO contacted CI-1 to advise that defendant MARTINEZ texted that the heroin deal would proceed. Several minutes later, CI-1 received a telephone call from OC Mexican Mafia Enterprise associate Lorraine Robles ("Robles") to arrange a meeting location for the heroin deal.

Overt Act No. 15: On or about April 21, 2017, OC Mexican Mafia Enterprise associate Robles, acting on behalf of an individual known to the Grand Jury, sold approximately 46.6 grams of a mixture and substance containing a detectable amount of heroin to CI-1 in exchange for $1,400.

Overt Act No. 16: During the heroin deal on April 21, 2017, defendant GUARJARDO spoke with OC Mexican Mafia Enterprise associate Robles via telephone to advise that defendant MARTINEZ had arranged for three ounces of heroin, not two.

Overt Act No. 17: Between on or about April 21, 2017 through on or about May 13, 2017, defendants MARTINEZ, GUARJARDO, and CAMPOS, and others known to the Grand Jury, attempted to extort $800 in the form of "respects" and "taxes" from CI-1, whom the defendants
