COMPLAINT FOR DECLARATORY AND INJUNCTIVE RELIEF

Plaintiffs Florida State Conference of Branches and Youth Units of the NAACP, Equal Ground Education Fund, Voters of Tomorrow Action, Inc., Disability Rights Florida, Alianza for Progress, Alianza Center, UnidosUS, and Florida Alliance for Retired Americans file this Complaint for Declaratory and Injunctive Relief against Defendants CORD BYRD, in his official capacity as Florida Secretary of State, ASHLEY MOODY, in her official capacity as Florida Attorney General, and Florida's 67 supervisors of elections, each in their official capacities as supervisors for their respective counties. Plaintiffs allege as follows:

NATURE OF THE CASE

1. Since 2018, third-party voter registration organizations (“3PVROs”) have helped register roughly a quarter of a million voters in Florida.¹ These organizations are crucial to ensuring that every eligible voter in Florida has access to the electoral process. This case arises from Florida’s efforts to disrupt and discourage these organizations from continuing their important work, and to disenfranchise the voters they assist.

2. On May 24, 2023, Florida enacted Senate Bill 7050 (“SB 7050”), an omnibus election bill that imposes harsh new restrictions and penalties on 3PVROs engaging in voter registration and voter engagement activities and makes it harder for eligible Floridians—and in particular voters of color and voters with disabilities—to participate in the State’s elections.

3. SB 7050 largely targets 3PVROs in an attempt to chill their voter registration activities by imposing new and significant fines for late-returned voter registration applications, prohibiting noncitizen volunteers and those with certain felony histories from handling voter registration applications, and criminalizing routine voter information retention. In so doing, the bill threatens to severely curtail—and in some cases shut down altogether—these organizations’ ability to engage in core protected speech through voter registration activities.

4. There is no question which Floridians will be most affected by these efforts. 3PVROs serve communities that have been historically excluded from the franchise—in particular Black and Latinx populations. Indeed, people of color are five times more likely than white Floridians to register with the assistance of a 3PVRO. As Senator Thompson emphatically expressed on the Senate floor, “what the bill really is about” is voter suppression, aimed at ensuring that “only certain people vote[.]”

5. The burdens imposed on Floridians from marginalized communities are not limited to the bill’s 3PVRO restrictions. SB 7050 also harms voters with disabilities and non-English or limited-English speakers by cutting off their ability to seek assistance from individuals and organizations beyond their immediate families when requesting mail ballots.

6. Plaintiffs are 3PVROs and other organizations whose missions include expanding access to the franchise to Black, brown, young, and disabled voters. SB 7050 imposes significant burdens on Plaintiffs’ First Amendment rights and the voting rights of the marginalized populations they serve. SB 7050 serves no legitimate—let alone compelling—state interest that would justify these limitations on Plaintiffs’ fundamental freedom to engage voters in the political process.

7. This Court should declare the challenged provisions of SB 7050 unlawful and enjoin the Secretary of State, the Attorney General, and the Supervisors from enforcing them in future elections.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

8. Plaintiffs bring this action under 42 U.S.C. §§ 1983 and 1988 to redress the deprivation under color of state law of rights secured by the United States Constitution.

9. Plaintiffs also bring a claim under the Voting Rights Act, 52 U.S.C. § 10508.

10. This Court has original jurisdiction over the subject matter of this action under 28 U.S.C. §§ 1331 and 1343 because the matters in controversy arise under the Constitution and the laws of the United States.

11. This Court has personal jurisdiction over Defendants, who are sued in their official capacities.

12. Venue is proper in this Court under 28 U.S.C. § 1391(b)(1) because Defendants are residents of Florida and numerous Defendants reside in this judicial district. Venue is also proper under 28 U.S.C. § 1391(b)(2) because a substantial part of the events that give rise to Plaintiffs' claims occurred and will occur in this judicial district.

13. This Court has the authority to provide declaratory and injunctive relief under Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 57 and 65, as well as 28 U.S.C. §§ 2201 and 2202.

PARTIES

14. Plaintiff Florida State Conference of Branches and Youth Units of the NAACP (“Florida NAACP”) is a nonprofit, nonpartisan civil rights organization in Florida. Founded in 1909, Florida NAACP is the oldest civil rights organization in Florida and serves as the umbrella organization for local branch units throughout the State. Florida NAACP is headquartered in Fort Lauderdale, Florida, and its 12,000 members are predominantly Black and other minority individuals who reside in all 67 of Florida’s counties. Its mission is to ensure the political, social, educational, and economic equality of all persons and to eliminate race-based discrimination.

15. Florida NAACP is a registered 3PVRO. For decades, it has engaged in statewide voter registration, public education, and advocacy to encourage civic and electoral participation among its members and other voters. For example, Florida NAACP holds registration events in coordination with local partners such as the Divine-Nine Pan-Hellenic Council, the Links, Masonic Lodges, and others. Florida NAACP also works with churches and other faith-based organizations to register voters within the communities it serves. When Florida NAACP and its members and volunteers register voters, they communicate a pro-voting message about the importance of political participation.

16. Florida NAACP engages in other voting related advocacy as well, such as facilitating trainings to help its members understand election related bills, amendments, and other issues affecting the voting process. Florida NAACP also holds get-out-the vote (“GOTV”) events, such as “souls to the polls,” where Florida NAACP offers transportation from local churches to polling places. Outside of the electoral sphere, Florida NAACP also engages in advocacy work involving health care, criminal justice, the school-to-prison pipeline, education, environmental justice, climate change, and the economy.

17. SB 7050’s new and increased fines and criminal penalties threaten substantial economic harm to Florida NAACP—both from the penalties themselves and from the increased resources it will need to devote to avoiding those penalties—and will affect the magnitude and impact of Florida NAACP’s voter registration efforts.

18. Additionally, SB 7050’s new restrictions on the criminal history and citizenship status of 3PVRO volunteers will force Florida NAACP to expend its limited resources verifying and investigating volunteers’ backgrounds and will decrease the number of volunteers available to the organization, limiting its impact.

Every bit of money, time, and effort spent in one aspect of its mission necessarily detracts from the amount of resources that Florida NAACP can direct to others.

19. And by prohibiting Florida NAACP from retaining any information from voters whom they register to vote, SB 7050 limits Florida NAACP's ability to associate with these voters through further conversations aimed at encouraging the voters it registers to participate in the political process.

20. In addition to the direct harms to Florida NAACP as an organization, SB 7050 threatens to deny its members the opportunity to vote.

21. SB 7050's chilling effect on 3PVROs will result in fewer avenues and resources for Florida NAACP members to register to vote.

22. Additionally, under SB 7050, registered members may no longer rely on Florida NAACP, other community organizations, friends, caretakers, or non-immediate family members to help them apply for vote-by-mail ballots.

23. Plaintiff Equal Ground Education Fund ("Equal Ground") is a community-centered 501(c)(3) organization with a mission to register, educate, and increase political engagement among Black voters in Florida. Founded in 2019, Equal Ground focuses on ensuring access to democracy in underserved communities. Equal Ground's principal office is in Orlando, Florida, and the organization engages voters throughout the State.

24. Equal Ground is a registered 3PVRO. To achieve its mission, Equal Ground conducts extensive voter registration, voter education, and voter engagement work directly through its staff and in coordination with hundreds of faith-based partner groups throughout the State. Through these activities, Equal Ground communicates a pro-voting message to communities who have historically lacked access to the political process.

25. As a result of the increased risk of exorbitant fines imposed by SB 7050, Equal Ground expects to stop conducting third-party voter registration during the upcoming election cycle. To the extent Equal Ground is able to continue voter registration activities, SB 7050's new restrictions on the criminal history and citizenship status of 3PVRO volunteers will force Equal Ground to expend its limited resources verifying and investigating volunteers' backgrounds and will decrease the number of volunteers available to the organization, limiting its impact. SB 7050 also prohibits Equal Ground from retaining any voter information in its capacity as a 3PVRO, eliminating Equal Ground's ability to associate and engage with these voters through GOTV efforts.

26. Plaintiff Voters of Tomorrow Action, Inc. ("VOT") is a national, youth-led organization that focuses on building youth political power through advocacy, organizing on high school and college campuses, online organizing, and maintaining a nationwide network of young organizers and activists. A crucial part of its mission is educating, engaging, and representing young voters to make sure that they are taking an active part in democracy. VOT has a state board in Florida, which consists of members who are currently attending college in Florida and who benefit from, share in, and help guide the organization's priorities and activities. VOT also has high school members who conduct voter registration and voter advocacy within their respective schools and communities.

27. VOT's members work with 3PVROs in Florida to encourage young voters to register through voter registration drives, rallies, voter education campaigns, and other activities. Moreover, VOT's GOTV activities include texting and calling young voters and providing free buses and rideshares to the polls. VOT also organizes protests and lobbies against contraception bans, book bans, and other issues that are important to members and constituent supporters.

28. Prior to SB 7050's enactment, VOT intended to register as a 3PVRO in Florida ahead of the 2024 general election. SB 7050's new and increased fines and criminal penalties for violating SB 7050's 3PVRO regulations, however, have forced VOT to reassess its ability to do so. Some of VOT's members are noncitizens who would be barred from handling voter registration forms under SB 7050's citizenship requirement. VOT also relies upon a network of volunteers to assist with its organizing and engagement efforts, but volunteers are likely to reconsider their involvement with VOT if they are subject to increased scrutiny about their citizenship status and criminal history, or subject to criminal penalties if they retain voter information. This will reduce the scale and impact of VOT's GOTV efforts and will unduly burden VOT's speech and associational rights.

29. Plaintiff Disability Rights Florida, Inc. ("DRF") is an independent nonprofit corporation organized under the laws of the State of Florida, with a primary office in Tallahassee, Florida. DRF is a Protection and Advocacy system ("P&A"), as that term is defined under the Developmental Disabilities Assistance and Bill of Rights Act ("DD Act"), 42 U.S.C. § 15041 et seq., the Protection and Advocacy for Individuals with Mental Illness Act of 1986 ("PAIMI Act"), 42 U.S.C. § 10801 et seq., and the Protection and Advocacy of Individual Rights Act ("PAIR Act"), 29 U.S.C. § 794 et seq. In this capacity, DRF is authorized to pursue legal, administrative, and other appropriate remedies to ensure the protection of and advocacy for the rights of individuals with disabilities. 42 U.S.C. § 15043(a)(2)(A)(i).

30. DRF's mission is to ensure the safety, wellbeing, and success of people with disabilities. A significant part of DRF's work is to ensure that people with disabilities have equal access to the political process and to bring to light, and address through reform, the barriers imposed against voters with disabilities, including inaccessible polling sites and ballots, limited assistance with voting, and limited or non-existent supervised facility voting options for people with disabilities residing in residential facilities. DRF engages in legislative and public advocacy on these issues, and directly engages with and trains election officials and voters on expanding voting accessibility.

31. DRF is a registered 3PVRO. But DRF may have to reduce or cancel altogether its voter registration work based on the threat of significant fines and penalties imposed by SB 7050. In addition, SB 7050's new restrictions on the criminal history and citizenship status of 3PVRO workers will limit DRF's capacity to have staff assist in registration efforts, limiting its impact. SB 7050's restrictions on 3PVROs thus directly harm DRF's organizational mission.

32. DRF was also a member of a statewide accessible vote-by-mail task force devoted to proposing and evaluating recommendations to the State regarding its commitment, via settlement agreement, to provide accessible vote-by-mail in every county. SB 7050's restriction on who may assist voters in requesting vote-by-mail ballots runs counter to DRF's work on this taskforce and its overall mission. Before enactment of SB 7050, DRF actively engaged with its constituent voters to assist them in requesting and submitting vote-by-mail ballots. SB 7050 not only forecloses its ability to engage in this activity and thereby communicate its pro-voting message, it will also force DRF to divert its limited resources toward ensuring that its constituents are informed of and able to navigate the new restrictions on receiving assistance requesting vote-by-mail ballots.

33. DRF retains voter information for people it helps register to vote for future GOTV efforts and voter advocacy. SB 7050's provision banning voter information retention limits DRF's ability to associate with these voters and communicate a pro-voting message about the importance of participating in the electoral process.

34. Plaintiff Alianza for Progress is a nonpartisan political organization dedicated to uniting the Puerto Rican and Hispanic population in the State of Florida and developing leaders from within those communities that will support progressive policies. Alianza for Progress organizes within its communities through voter education, civic engagement, and issue advocacy. Alianza for Progress relies on its members' donations and grants, which are limited resources, to effectuate its mission. Alianza for Progress's members reside throughout Florida.

35. Plaintiff Alianza Center is a community-centered 501(c)(3) organization with a mission to register, educate, and increase political engagement and leadership within the Puerto Rican and Hispanic communities in Florida. In support of its mission, Alianza Center engages in extensive voter registration, voter education, and voter engagement work.

36. Alianza for Progress and Alianza Center (together, "Alianza Plaintiffs") are registered 3PVROs in Florida. In support of their mission, Alianza Plaintiffs organize and participate in voter registration drives, engage in community outreach to educate their constituents about the voting process and the importance of exercising the right to vote, and run digital organizing and communications campaigns directed at Florida's Puerto Rican and Latinx communities, who are at an increased risk of disenfranchisement because of language barriers, recent migration, economic disadvantage, and other structural barriers to effective political speech and association.

37. SB 7050's new provisions restricting and penalizing 3PVROs directly harm Alianza Plaintiffs' organizational goals and missions. The threat of significant fines for late applications and noncitizen volunteers makes acting as a 3PVRO cost prohibitive, as hundreds of thousands of dollars in fines would effectively defund these organizations. To the extent Alianza Plaintiffs are able to continue voter registration activities, SB 7050's restrictions limiting who may manage and collect voter registration applications and requiring 3PVROs to affirm their volunteers' criminal history and citizenship status will force Alianza Plaintiffs to divert their limited resources away from voter education and outreach efforts toward more stringent means of verifying and investigating canvassers' backgrounds, limiting their impact.

38. In addition, Alianza Plaintiffs will have to expend resources to find and train staff to replace their extremely robust and professional group of canvassers and volunteers who are no longer able to assist solely because of their citizenship status.

Many of Alianza Plaintiffs' canvassers and volunteers are legal resident noncitizens dedicated to advancing voting rights in Florida's Latinx communities. Without the help of these individuals, Alianza Plaintiffs would be unable to continue their operations at full capacity and their voter registration work would be severely diminished.

39. Alianza Plaintiffs maintain contact information for people they help register to vote, not only to ensure that their members, canvassers, and volunteers are providing excellent and effective assistance, but also for future GOTV efforts and voter advocacy. SB 7050's provision banning voter information retention limits Alianza Plaintiffs' ability to associate with these voters and communicate a pro-voting message about the importance of participating in the electoral process.

40. In addition to the direct harms to these organizations, Alianza Plaintiffs' members and canvassers are also harmed by SB 7050 because they include legal noncitizen residents who can no longer engage in voter registration efforts.

41. Additionally, Alianza Plaintiffs' members and constituents may no longer rely on the support of these organizations, community members, and volunteers to assist them in applying for vote-by-mail ballots—help which is often critical due to language barriers and a lack of immediate family in the State.

42. Plaintiff UnidosUS is a nonprofit, nonpartisan organization, and one of the largest Latino civil rights and advocacy organizations in the country. UnidosUS has offices in Florida and 18 member-affiliate organizations based or working in the State. UnidosUS's mission is to champion and elevate the Latino community through economic, political, and social empowerment.

43. UnidosUS is a registered 3PVRO in Florida that engages in extensive voter registration efforts, public education, and advocacy to encourage political participation among the communities it serves. UnidosUS conducts voter registration by community canvassing, placement of digital ads, mailers, and direct engagement with voters. And UnidosUS provides support and technical assistance to affiliated non-profit members it works with on voter registration. When UnidosUS and its canvassers and affiliate members register voters, they communicate a pro-voting message about the importance of participating in the electoral process. UnidosUS was responsible for approximately 370,013 voter registrations in Florida since 2008, including approximately 34,000 during the 2022 elections.

44. SB 7050's new restrictions on the criminal history and citizenship status of 3PVRO canvassers will force UnidosUS to expend its limited resources verifying and investigating canvassers' backgrounds and will significantly decrease the number of skilled canvassers available to the organization, limiting its impact. At least 80% of UnidosUS's canvassers are legal noncitizen residents. UnidosUS would have to rebuild its entire voter registration program if it is unable to rely on these canvassers.

45. The new and increased fines and criminal penalties for violations of SB 7050's 3PVRO regulations also threaten substantial economic harm to UnidosUS and will deter the organization from engaging in voter registration. What's more, the prohibition against retaining voter information limits UnidosUS's ability to associate with these voters through further conversations aimed at encouraging the voters it registers to participate in the political process.

46. In addition to the direct harms to UnidosUS as an organization, SB 7050 threatens to deny its citizen constituents the opportunity to vote. SB 7050's chilling effect on 3PVROs will result in fewer avenues and resources for UnidosUS's citizen constituents to register to vote.

47. Additionally, under SB 7050, Latino community members—many of whom are non-English or limited-English speakers—may no longer rely on UnidosUS, other community organizations, friends, caretakers, or non-immediate family members to help them apply for vote-by-mail ballots. And prohibiting noncitizens from handling voter registration directly harms UnidosUS's noncitizen canvassers who can no longer work on behalf of UnidosUS and engage in voter registration.

48. Plaintiff Florida Alliance for Retired Americans ("Florida Alliance") is a 501(c)(4) nonprofit, social welfare organization. It has 180,000 members throughout Florida's 67 counties, including retirees from public and private sector unions and community organizations, and is a chartered state affiliate of the Alliance for Retired Americans. Florida Alliance's mission is to ensure social and economic justice and full civil rights that retirees have earned after a lifetime of work.

49. SB 7050 limits who may assist a voter in requesting a vote-by-mail ballot, which directly harms Florida Alliance's members, many of whom are living with disabilities or do not speak or read English and who, as a result of SB 7050's new limitations on who may assist voters in requesting mail ballots, can no longer utilize the assistance of friends, neighbors, and caregivers in requesting their vote-by-mail ballots.

50. Enjoining SB 7050's new restrictions on 3PVROs would redress Plaintiffs' injuries because it would allow them to engage in protected speech by conducting important voter registration work, and to continue to associate with the voters they register, without the threat of significant financial and criminal penalties. And Plaintiffs will be able to reallocate their diverted resources to other projects in service of their missions.

51. Additionally, enjoining SB 7050's limitation on who may assist voters in requesting vote-by-mail ballots will restore the ability of Plaintiffs' members and constituents to seek help from organizations and individuals outside their immediate families in accessing Florida's vote-by-mail ballot system. And Plaintiffs will be able to reallocate their diverted resources away from aiding voters in requesting vote-by-mail ballots to other projects in service of their missions.

52. Because of Defendants' direct roles in enforcing SB 7050's provisions challenged in this lawsuit, the injuries to Plaintiffs and their members are directly traceable to Defendants and are redressable by an injunction against them.

53. Defendant CORD BYRD is sued in his official capacity as the Secretary of State of Florida. Pursuant to Fla. Stat. § 97.012, the Secretary is the chief elections officer of the State and responsible for the administration of state laws affecting voting. The Secretary's duties consist of, among other things, "[o]btain[ing] and maintain[ing] uniformity in the interpretation and implementation of the election laws." Id. § 97.012(1). The Secretary is also tasked with ensuring that county supervisors of elections perform their statutory duties, see id. § 97.012(14); is responsible for providing technical assistance to supervisors of elections on voter education, election personnel training services, and voting systems, see id. § 97.012(4)-(5); and is responsible for "[p]rovid[ing] written direction and opinions to the supervisors of elections on the performance of their official duties with respect to the Florida Election Code or rules adopted by the Department of State." Id. § 97.012(16).

54. The Secretary's duties also include overseeing the Office of Election Crimes and Security, a division within the Department of State, which is tasked with, among other things, assisting the Department in investigating and reporting allegations of election law violations, reporting findings to the Attorney General or state attorneys, and imposing fines on 3PVROs for violations of Florida's Election Code. Id. § 97.022.

55. Defendant ASHLEY MOODY is sued in her official capacity as the Attorney General of Florida. The Attorney General's authority includes overseeing the Office of the Florida Statewide Prosecutor, which has the responsibility to "[i]nvestigate and prosecute any crime involving . . . [v]oting in an election in which a candidate for a federal or state office is on the ballot" or "voter registration." Fla. Stat. § 16.56(1)(c)). The Attorney General is specifically tasked with enforcing the newly created and amended civil and criminal penalties against 3PVROs provided in SB 7050. See id. § 97.0575(8).

56. Defendants supervisors of elections, who are sued in their official capacities only, are responsible for administering elections in each of Florida's 67 counties. Their responsibilities include, but are not limited to, administering in-person voting and voting by mail, processing voter registration applications, notifying voters of the disposition of their applications, maintaining voter registration information, updating voter rolls, and canvassing and counting vote-by-mail ballots. See Fla. Stat. §§ 98.015, 102.012, 102.072. Defendants supervisors of elections are: KIM BARTON, in her official capacity as Supervisor of Elections for

Alachua County; CHRISTOPHER MILTON, in his official capacity as Supervisor of Elections for Baker County; MARK ANDERSEN, in his official capacity as Supervisor of Elections for Bay County; AMANDA SEYFANG, in her official capacity as Supervisor of Elections for Bradford County; TIM BOBANIC, in his official capacity as Supervisor of Elections for Brevard County; JOE SCOTT, in his official capacity as Supervisor of Elections for Broward County; SHARON CHASON, in her official capacity as Supervisor of Elections for Calhoun County; LEAH VALENTI, in her official capacity as Supervisor of Elections for Charlotte County; MAUREEN “MO” BAIRD, in her official capacity as Supervisor of Elections for Citrus County; CHRIS H. STATEMENT OF FACTS AND LAW

I. The challenged provisions infringe 3PVRO's First Amendment rights and unlawfully harm voters.

57. SB 7050 targets 3PVROs to chill their voter registration and GOTV efforts and scale back the political participation of the marginalized voter populations they serve. Each of the challenged 3PVRO restrictions limits 3PVROs' protected speech and associational activities, thereby reducing the number of voters they register and turn out to vote.

58. Additionally, SB 7050 unlawfully limits who voters may turn to for help requesting their vote-by-mail ballots. In particular, voters with disabilities and non-English or limited-English speakers may only seek help from immediate family members, in violation of their rights under federal law.

A. 3PVRO Restrictions

59. The challenged provisions infringe 3PVROs' First Amendment rights to engage in protected political speech and associational activities. First, SB 7050 unjustifiably prohibits lawful noncitizens and those with certain felony histories from conducting voter registration activities on behalf of 3PVROs. Second, it severely increases fines for late-returned voter registration applications and applications inadvertently submitted to the wrong county. Third, it criminalizes retention of voter information for any purpose other than registration, including GOTV efforts and other voter assistance efforts that afford 3PVROs the freedom to associate with the voters they register in service of their missions. These restrictions (together, "3PVRO Restrictions") individually and collectively harm Plaintiffs' ability to advance their missions and reduce the number of voters these organizations can register to vote and turn out—voters who are disproportionately Floridians of color.

1. 3PVRO Volunteer Restrictions

60. SB 7050 singles out two categories of individuals who may no longer handle voter registration applications on behalf of 3PVROs: (1) noncitizens (“Voter Registration Citizenship Requirement”) and (2) individuals convicted of certain felonies under the Election Code. Fla. Stat. § 97.0575(1)(e), (f) (together, “3PVRO Volunteer Restrictions”). A 3PVRO is liable for a $50,000 fine for each prohibited individual who handles applications on behalf of the 3PVRO. There is no limit on the amount of fines that may be imposed on a single 3PVRO for violating these provisions.

61. The 3PVRO Volunteer Restrictions severely harm Plaintiffs in at least two ways.

62. First, organizations such as Florida NAACP, Equal Ground, DRF, Alianza Plaintiffs, UnidosUS, and VOT who do or would deploy canvassers, volunteers, and staff to help register voters have no clear way of verifying that each of their volunteers is a citizen and has not been convicted of one of the enumerated felonies. As a result, these organizations will be compelled to rely on the representations of their volunteers. If their volunteers do not accurately disclose their citizenship status or relevant felonies, these organizations risk fines that could curtail or even foreclose their ability to engage in voter registration.

63. The Legislature failed to identify any work-around for 3PVROs acting in good faith. When asked how 3PVROs should ensure compliance with these provisions, SB 7050's sponsor stated that it "would be at the discretion and choice of the organization," but provided no further guidance.

64. Second, many organizations rely on noncitizen legal residents to assist with voter outreach, voter registration, and GOTV efforts in their communities. For example, Plaintiff Alianza Center mobilizes and registers Floridians with Latinx heritage and works with many noncitizen legal residents to do so. And UnidosUS estimates that at least 80% of its voter registration canvassers are noncitizen legal residents. By prohibiting these individuals from registering voters in their own communities, SB 7050 reduces the number of volunteers Plaintiffs and other community organizations can recruit and coordinate with to spread their pro-voting messages. Organizations like Plaintiff Alianza Center and UnidosUS, who rely primarily on noncitizens to help register voters, will be forced to severely curtail their work, and all 3PVROs will have to divert significant resources to attempt to verify the citizenship status of remaining volunteers. All of this will ultimately make it harder for the marginalized communities served by these 3PVROs to register to vote.

65. Similarly, VOT relies on legal noncitizen residents, both members and volunteers, to conduct voter outreach and advocacy, including voter registration with partner organizations. The 3PVRO Volunteer Restrictions deters VOT from registering as a 3PVRO, and prevents its members and volunteers who are noncitizens from working with other 3PVROs to engage young voters in the State.

66. Throughout the hearings on SB 7050, no legislator offered any policy rationale for the 3PVRO Volunteer Restrictions. Instead, when asked during a committee hearing for a justification for this provision, the bill's sponsor stated only that "[r]egarding noncitizens, there are certain rights in our country that only citizens get to enjoy."

67. At the Senate Session hearing on SB 7050, proponents of the bill stated only that it was a "policy call" despite repeated efforts by opponents to stress the absurdity of restricting legal noncitizen residents from handling voter registration applications, while allowing those same individuals the ability to work for the state of Florida, including for example, the Department of State, Division of Elections, and Department of Highway Safety. No evidence was presented of any noncitizen mishandling voter registration applications. In fact, no legitimate government interest justifies this prohibition.

2. 3PVRO Fines for Mistakes in Returning Applications

68. SB 7050 dramatically increases the penalties for late- and incorrectly-returned applications from 3PVROs: (1) $50 per each day late, up to $2,500, for each application received more than 10 (decreased from 14) days after the application was received by the 3PVRO, and $2,500 (up from $250) for each such application if the 3PVRO “acted willfully”; (2) $100 per each day late, up to $5,000, for each late returned application received after the voter registration deadline and an additional $5,000 fine (up from $500) per each such application if the 3PVRO “acted willfully”; and (3) a $5,000 fine (up from $1,000) for any application willfully not submitted to the right division or supervisor of elections. Fla. Stat. § 97.0575(5)(a) (“3PVRO Fines Provision”).

69. SB 7050’s 3PVRO Fines Provision also increases the aggregate fines that may be imposed on a single 3PVRO for late-returned applications from $50,000 to $250,000. SB 7050’s increase in fines follows significant increases in fines just two years ago. In 2021, Florida increased aggregate fines for late-returned applications from $1,000 to $50,000.

70. Due to the threat of hundreds of thousands of dollars in fines, 3PVROs—most of whom have highly limited resources—will be deterred from engaging in registration efforts and forced to divert resources to training and compliance, chilling their protected political speech and association activities.

71. As just one example, because of the 3PVRO Fines Provision, Plaintiff Equal Ground will likely be forced to cease its third-party voter registration activities in Florida, rendering it unable to engage in its core mission to register Black voters in Florida.

72. Similarly, other Plaintiff organizations will have to change their GOTV efforts and divert resources to avoid the risk of these significant penalties. For example, Plaintiff DRF has historically held events where voters from all over Florida may register to vote. As a result of the increased fines for applications returned to the wrong county, these organizations may be forced to limit events to registering only voters who reside in a single county. Similarly, Plaintiffs will have to divert multiple additional employees and volunteers to ensure no applications are returned late.

73. Proponents of this provision could not explain the policy purposes served by these significant increases in fines or any new developments over the past two years requiring additional increases. While SB 7050's supporters claimed the 3PVRO Fines Provision was "based on data and information that we have, um, in, in some of the feedback and we're uncovering with some bad actors," they repeatedly referenced only a single organization's failure to comply with existing regulations of 3PVROs. It was not until closing argument on the bill just before the Senate vote that any other evidence of 3PVRO issues was presented; and even then, the number increased from one 3PVRO to two. As Senator Thompson observed in opposing these provisions, the fines imposed on 3PVROs “are designed . . . to put them out of business, make them go away and those are the organizations that have helped increase participation in democracy.”

74. Proponents’ purported justifications at the Senate Session hearing similarly fell short. They argued that “some of the bad actors . . . look at these fines as ultimately the cost of doing business” and so the purpose of the increased fines is to let the organizations know that “we [the Legislature] are serious.” But 3PVROs are nonprofit organizations with limited resources, there was no evidence that these so-called “bad actors,” of which SB 7050’s proponents could identify only one or two, would be deterred from wrongdoing by increased fines, and most importantly, proponents failed to respond to concerns about the deterrent effect these fines would have on the majority of 3PVROs who follow the law.

75. During the House Session, proponents of the bill described the purpose of the 3PVRO Restrictions as “putting a priority on [] voters’ information” but failed to explain how increasing fines for late-returned applications achieves that goal.

76. As shown by the legislative debates on the 3PVRO Fines Provision, no legitimate state interest is served by the arbitrary and exorbitant increase in fines.

3. 3PVRO Voter Information Retention Ban

77. SB 7050 amends Fla. Stat. § 97.0575(7) (the “Information Retention Ban”) to prohibit 3PVROs from retaining any identifying information of the voters it registers for any purpose other than registration itself. Doing so is a felony of the third degree, punishable by up to 5 years in prison and up to $5,000 in fines.

78. By prohibiting 3PVROs from retaining this information, SB 7050 eliminates the protected speech 3PVROs would engage in with voters after they are registered to vote and inhibits 3PVROs’ ability to associate with those voters. Plaintiffs Florida NAACP, Equal Ground, DRF, Alianza Plaintiffs, and UnidosUS, for example, routinely retain voter information from registration forms to engage with the voters they register to, for example, encourage them to vote, provide polling place and other helpful information about upcoming election-related activities, or generally communicate their pro-voting message. And VOT is deterred from becoming a 3PVRO if they are unable to maintain voter information to be able to contact voters close to the election and encourage them to exercise their right to vote—follow-up that is especially important with young voters, who are often first-time voters and more likely to vote with encouragement from their peers.

79. There is no legitimate basis to prevent 3PVROs from retaining voter information—which is required to be publicly available under the National Voter Registration Act, 52 U.S.C. § 20507(i)(1)—for the purpose of engaging in protected speech with voters by encouraging and enabling them to vote.

B. Mail-In Ballot Request Assistance Restriction

80. SB 7050 amends the Florida Election Code to provide that supervisors of elections may accept requests for vote-by-mail ballots “only from a voter or, if directly instructed by the voter, a member of the voter’s immediate family or the voter’s legal guardian.” Fla. Stat. § 101.62(1)(a) (“The Mail-In Ballot Request Restriction”). Previously, Floridians could depend on trusted friends, neighbors, community organizations, and caregivers to request a vote-by-mail ballot.

81. Immediate family is defined as the voter’s spouse, parent, child, grandparent, or sibling, or the parent, child, grandparent, grandchild, or sibling of the voter’s spouse. Id. § 101.62(1)(b)(9)(d).

82. Voters who are blind, have a disability, non-English or limited-English speakers, or are unable to read or write are entitled under federal law to choose for themselves who may assist them with the voting process. 52 U.S.C. § 10508.

83. There are an estimated 2.6 million eligible voters with disabilities in Florida, including many of the Florida Alliance’s members and DRF’s constituents. Plaintiff DRF works directly with and on behalf of these individuals to ensure they are able to access the franchise, including Florida’s vote-by-mail system.

84. U.S. Census data estimates that 30% of Florida’s households, and nearly 3.9 million adults, speak languages other than English at home. Many of Alianza Plaintiffs and UnidosUS’s members, canvassers, and volunteers fall into this category, and Alianza Plaintiffs and UnidosUS have historically engaged with and assist voters who do not speak English, or who speak limited English to request vote-by-mail ballots.

85. These millions of Floridians may not have immediate family as defined under the provision available to assist. For example, partners who are not spouses, friends, roommates, and caregivers are excluded without justification. And Floridians with disabilities, including many of the Alliance’s members and DRF’s constituents, reside in nursing homes or assisted living facilities away from immediate family members.

86. The Mail-In Ballot Assistance Restriction prohibits these voters from seeking lawful assistance from the individual of their choice. Worse yet, the Legislature has articulated no policy goal served by this provision.

II. The challenged provisions were passed in the wake of two of Florida’s “most secure” and successful elections with high turnout.

87. SB 7050 was passed under the guise of “election integrity.” But the Legislature’s purported concerns about election integrity have no basis in actual instances of election fraud or security breaches in the State.

88. Governor Ron DeSantis has referred to the 2022 election as “one of the most secure” elections in Florida’s history. And in his 2021 State of the State address, Governor DeSantis said: “[W]e should take a moment to enjoy the fact that Florida ran perhaps the most transparent and efficient election in the nation in 2020.”

89. Florida legislators have similarly commented on the security of Florida’s elections. SB 7050’s sponsor stated that Florida is already “the gold standard for elections, and we should be proud of that.” And the sponsor of SB 7050’s companion bill in the House—HB 7005—commented on the impressive security of Florida’s elections.

90. Florida legislators have also observed that Florida’s elections have been marked by high voter turnout, emphasizing that Florida had its third-highest turnout in a midterm election in history in 2022. Turnout in the 2020 election was 77 percent—the highest turnout in 28 years in Florida and one of the highest turnout rates in the State’s history.

91. In the wake of elections that have seen robust voter participation without an accompanied increase in election fraud or other election security concerns, the Legislature’s “election integrity” justification for the harsh restrictions imposed by SB 7050 rings hollow.

92. The process by which SB 7050 was enacted further reflects the Legislature’s apparent determination to arrive at a predetermined outcome regardless of countervailing evidence and the well-recognized impact the bill would have on minority Floridians.

93. SB 7050 was introduced with just a few weeks remaining in the legislative session. To accommodate the late introduction, legislators moved the bill through the Senate and House simultaneously, rather than sequentially, as their typical protocol dictates.

94. When legislators first posted SB 7050 on March 30, 2023, it was just two sentences. By the time the first full version of the bill was posted, advocates, staff, and legislators had just 24 hours to review 98 new pages of text before the first public hearing on the bill. During committee hearings on SB 7050, legislators and the public lamented the fact that they had not had the opportunity to read and process the bill because only a few hours passed between the time that SB 7050's sponsors posted the bill and the time of the hearing. For example, as Senator Rosalind Osgood explained, she was forced to "read[] in the wee hours of th[e] morning."

95. The Senate rushed to complete the second and third reading on the same day so that it could quickly be referred to the House. The House voted to waive its rules in order to read the bill a third time and pass the legislation the same day. The House also limited discussion on the many meritorious amendments to the bill to only two minutes and forty seconds per amendment, which resulted in speakers continually being cut off as they attempted to fit introductions, questions, debate, and closing remarks into a less than three-minute period.

96. The SB 7050 hearings made clear that these provisions harm Floridians of color and Floridians with disabilities with no legitimate justification. For example, numerous speakers noted that minority communities, including Black and Latinx voters, are significantly more likely to register to vote through a 3PVRO. As one speaker explained, “[t]o be clear, eligible Black and Hispanic voters are roughly five times more likely than white voters to rely on community-based voter registration organizations like the ones targeted in this bill.”

97. In fact, just the day before the Legislature enacted SB 7050, the Eleventh Circuit recognized that Floridians of color disproportionately rely on 3PVROS. League of Women Voters of Fla. Inc. v. Fla. Sec’y of State, No. 22-11143, 2023 WL 3108161, at *18 (11th Cir. Apr. 27, 2023) (“[E]vidence in the record suggested that the registration-delivery provision imposed compliance costs on the third-party organizations. The finding that the registration-delivery provision will have a disparate impact on black voters is not clearly erroneous.”). When the Legislature passed SB 7050, they had ample, recent, and specific notice of the disproportionate impact of 3PVRO regulations on minorities, and nevertheless doubled down on these restrictions.

98. When asked during the Senate hearing whether there was evidence of noncitizens or persons with a criminal history mishandling voter registration, the bill's proponent identified only "a couple [] felons" that the State Department was investigating and identified no instances of noncitizens mishandling voter registration applications. Senator Hutson later commented that they wanted to make sure "illegal[s]" were not handling voter registration applications, but SB 7050 does not carve out an exception for legal noncitizens. When pressed for a justification, proponents stated only that it was a "policy call."

99. Following SB 7050's passage by the Legislature, House Democrats released a statement condemning the bill, noting that "we are moving backwards" and that the Legislature "[doesn't] even wait to see what last year's bill does before we propose the next set of changes." Representative Valdes stated: "[t]his bill targets our young voters, first-time voters, black and Hispanic voters, and organizations that work to get people registered to vote." And Representative Waldron confirmed Plaintiffs' concerns, noting that "changes to third-party voter registration organization laws will have a chilling effect on voter participation."

100. Senator Davis similarly lamented the bill's passage because "[t]he complete lack of bipartisanship on issues that are this complex and technical means that they never intended to pass this bill in good faith."

CLAIMS FOR RELIEF

COUNT I

Infringement of Free Speech U.S. Const. amends. I & XIV, 42 U.S.C. § 1983 (3PVRO Restrictions, Fla. Stat. § 97.0575)

101. Plaintiffs reallege and reincorporate by reference paragraphs 1-100 of this Complaint as though fully set forth herein.

102. The First Amendment protects against the promulgation of laws “prohibiting the free exercise [of] or abridg[ment] [of] freedom of speech.” U.S. Const. amend. I. The First Amendment applies to the states through the Fourteenth Amendment.

103. Political speech is one of the highest forms of protected speech. See League of Women Voters v. Hargett, 400 F. Supp. 3d 706, 722 (M.D. Tenn. 2019) (“[L]aws that govern the political process surrounding elections—and, in particular, election-related speech and association—go beyond merely the intersection between voting rights and election administration, veering instead into the area where ‘the First Amendment has its fullest and most urgent application.’”) (quoting Eu v. S.F. Cnty. Democratic Cent. Comm., 489 U.S. 214, 223 (1989)).

104. Voter registration activities are “the type of interactive communication concerning political change that is appropriately described as ‘core political speech.’” Meyer v. Grant, 486 U.S. 414, 421–22 (1988); see also League of Women Voters of Fla. v. Cobb, 447 F. Supp. 2d 1314, 1315 (S.D. Fla. 2006) (same); VoteAmerica v. Schwab, 576 F. Supp. 3d 862, 875 (D. Kan. 2021) (collecting cases).

105. When speakers “‘disclose,’ ‘publish,’ or ‘disseminate’ information, they engage in ‘speech.’” NetChoice v. Att’y Gen., Fla., 34 F.4th 1196, 1210 (11th Cir. 2022) (quoting Sorrell v. IMS Health Inc., 564 U.S. 552, 570 (2011)). Voter registration efforts—including encouraging individuals to register to vote, providing information about how to register to vote, and assisting with registration applications in person and online—are core political speech and a means by which Plaintiffs Florida NAACP, Equal Ground, DRF, Alianza Plaintiffs, UnidosUS, and VOT communicate their belief in the power and importance of participating in democratic elections.

106. SB 7050 regulates core protected political speech and other activity “sufficiently imbued with elements of communication.” Spence v. Washington, 418 U.S. 405, 409 (1974). The 3PVRO Restrictions—both individually and collectively—restrict and chill speech of 3PVROs such as Plaintiffs Florida NAACP, Equal Ground, DRF, Alianza Plaintiffs, UnidosUS, and VOT, and in some cases eliminate their speech via voter registration activities altogether.

107. Courts apply “exacting scrutiny” to review laws governing election-related speech. McIntyre v. Ohio Elections Comm’n, 514 U.S. 334, 345–46 (1995); Buckley v. Am. Const. L. Found., Inc., 525 U.S. 182, 207 (1999) (Thomas, J., concurring) (collecting cases and finding that laws that directly regulate core political speech are subject to strict scrutiny). Such “regulations of core political speech” do not require courts to “determine burden first” because “restrictions on core political speech so plainly impose a ‘severe burden.’” Buckley, 525 U.S. at 208.

108. Exacting scrutiny requires that Florida’s 3PVRO Restrictions be narrowly tailored to a compelling state interest. Ams. for Prosperity Found. v. Bonta, 141 S. Ct. 2373, 2383 (2021). None of the 3PVRO Restrictions is supported by a legitimate—let alone compelling—state interest sufficient to justify the resulting restrictions on the speech rights of Florida’s 3PVROs. And the law is not narrowly tailored to serve any hypothetical interest, as the new regulations dramatically change the status quo.

WHEREFORE, Plaintiffs respectfully request that this Court enter judgment:

- A. Declaring that the 3PVRO Restrictions violate the First and Fourteenth Amendments to the U.S. Constitution;
- B. Enjoining Defendants, their respective agents, officers, employees, and successors, and all persons acting in concert with each or any of them, from enforcing the challenged provisions;
- C. Awarding Plaintiffs their costs, expenses, and reasonable attorneys’ fees pursuant to, inter alia, 42 U.S.C. § 1988 and other applicable laws; and
- D. Granting such other and further relief as the Court deems just and proper.

COUNT II

Infringement of Associational Rights
U.S. Const. amends. I & XIV, 42 U.S.C. § 1983
(3PVRO Restrictions, Fla. Stat. § 97.0575)

109. Plaintiffs reallege and reincorporate by reference paragraphs 1-100 of this Complaint as though fully set forth herein.

110. The “freedom to engage in association for the advancement of beliefs and ideas is an inseparable aspect of the ‘liberty’ assured by the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment, which embraces freedom of speech.” NAACP v. Alabama, 357 U.S. 449, 460 (1958); see also Hadnott v. Amos, 394 U.S. 358, 364 (1969) (“First Amendment rights ‘include the right to band together for the advancement of political beliefs.’”).

111. When individuals or groups “wish to speak and act collectively with others,” it “implicat[es] the First Amendment right of association.” League of Women Voters of Fla. v. Browning, 863 F. Supp. 2d 1155, 1158 (N.D. Fla. 2012).

112. “An organization’s attempt to broaden the base of public participation in and support for its activities is conduct ‘undeniably central to the exercise of the right of association.’” Am. Ass’n of People with Disabilities v. Herrera, 690 F. Supp. 2d 1183, 1202 (D.N.M. 2010) (citing Tashjian v. Republican Party of Conn., 479 U.S. 208, 214–15 (1986)).

113. This right to associate encompasses “the right to choose how one associates with others.” VoteAmerica, 576 F. Supp. 3d at 875 (quoting Boy Scouts of Am. v. Dale, 530 U.S. 640, 653 (2000) (“As we give deference to an association’s assertions regarding the nature of its expression, we must also give deference to an association’s view of what would impair its expression.”))).

114. Plaintiffs Florida NAACP, Equal Ground, DRF, Alianza Plaintiffs, UnidosUS, and VOT “wish to speak and act collectively with others” by engaging in efforts to register more voters and garner support for their civic causes. They do so by assisting voters with the completion, collection, and submission of voter registration applications, as well as through GOTV activities following registration. See Am. Ass’n of People With Disabilities v. Herrera, 580 F. Supp. 2d 1195, 1229 (D.N.M. 2008) (“Organized voter-registration activities necessarily involve political association, both within the voter-registration organizations and with the citizens they seek to register.”).

115. The 3PVRO Restrictions restrict and chill Plaintiffs’ associational activities with voters, and in some cases eliminate their association via voter registration altogether. For example, the 3PVRO Volunteer Restrictions prohibit 3PVROs from associating with noncitizens to conduct their voter registration work, and the Information Retention Ban effectively prevents continued communication with voters that organizations engage. And the 3PVRO Fines Provision deters, and even prevents, 3PVROs from engaging in voter registration efforts, thereby limiting who they associate with.

116. Courts apply “exacting scrutiny” to review laws governing election-related association. McIntyre, 514 U.S. at 345–46; see also Hargett, 400 F. Supp. 3d at 722 (“[L]aws that govern the political process surrounding elections—and, in particular, election-related speech and association—go beyond merely the intersection between voting rights and election administration, veering instead into the area where ‘the First Amendment has its fullest and most urgent application.’”) (quoting Eu, 489 U.S. at 223).

117. Exacting scrutiny requires that Florida’s 3PVRO Restrictions be narrowly tailored to a compelling state interest. Bonta, 141 S. Ct. at 2383. None of the 3PVRO Restrictions is supported by a legitimate—let alone compelling—state interest sufficient to justify the resulting restrictions on the association rights of Florida’s 3PVROs. And the law is not narrowly tailored to serve any hypothetical interest, as the new regulations dramatically change the status quo.

WHEREFORE, Plaintiffs respectfully request that this Court enter judgment:

- A. Declaring that the 3PVRO Restrictions violate the First and Fourteenth Amendments to the U.S. Constitution;
- B. Enjoining Defendants, their respective agents, officers, employees, and successors, and all persons acting in concert with each or any of them, from enforcing the challenged provisions;

- C. Awarding Plaintiffs their costs, expenses, and reasonable attorneys' fees pursuant to, inter alia, 42 U.S.C. § 1988 and other applicable laws; and
- D. Granting such other and further relief as the Court deems just and proper.

COUNT III

Equal Protection Clause, U.S. Const. amend. XIV 42 U.S.C. § 1983

(Voter Registration Citizenship Requirement, Fla. Stat. § 97.0575(1)(e))

118. Plaintiffs reallege and incorporate by reference paragraphs 1-100 of this Complaint as though set forth fully herein.

119. The Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution provides that “[n]o State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any States deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.” U.S. Const. amend. XIV.

120. SB 7050 violates the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution by prohibiting noncitizens, including Alianza Plaintiffs, UnidosUS, and VOT’s members and canvassers, from handling voter registration applications without any legitimate justification for doing so, thus denying noncitizens equal protection of the law.

121. “Classifications based on alienage, like those based on nationality or race, are inherently suspect and subject to close judicial scrutiny. Aliens as a class are a prime example of a ‘discrete and insular’ minority . . . for whom such heightened judicial solicitude is appropriate.” Graham v. Richardson, 403 U.S. 365, 372 (1971).

122. A state law that delineates based on a suspect classification—like noncitizens—“bears a heavy burden of justification.” Appl. of Griffiths, 413 U.S. 717, 721 (1973). Where a state law adopts a suspect classification like this one, “a State must show that its purpose or interest is both constitutionally permissible and substantial, and that its use of the classification is necessary to the accomplishment of its purpose or the safeguarding of its interest.” Id. at 721–22 (alterations and footnotes omitted).

123. “Resident aliens, like citizens, pay taxes, support the economy, serve in the Armed Forces, and contribute in myriad other ways to our society. It is appropriate that a State bear a heavy burden when it deprives them of [] opportunities.” Id. at 722.

124. SB 7050’s Voter Registration Citizenship Requirement expressly singles out noncitizens and prohibit them from helping to register voters without any justification, apart from the circular reasoning that they are not citizens of the United States and, therefore, are not entitled to all of the privileges of citizens. This is a wholly insufficient reason to deprive them of the opportunity to engage in the political process through helping people register to vote.

125. That noncitizens are refused certain privileges has nothing to do with their right to associate and engage in protected speech. See United States v. Verdugo-Urquidez, 494 U.S. 259, 271 (1990) (noncitizen U.S. residents receive constitutional protections, including under the First Amendment). Nor does it justify infringing 3PVRs' associational and speech rights. Kleindienst v. Mandel, 408 U.S. 753, 765 (1972) (recognizing protected First Amendment right to associate with noncitizen).

126. Defendants cannot satisfy their heavy burden of explaining why excluding noncitizens from handling voter registration applications is narrowly tailored to further a sufficiently weighty state interest.

127. SB 7050's Voter Registration Citizenship Requirement separately violates the Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution because it was purposefully enacted, at least in part, with an intent to discriminate against noncitizens.

128. Village of Arlington Heights v. Metropolitan Housing Development Corp., 429 U.S. 252 (1977), and later case law require considering several factors about the law and its adoption to demonstrate discriminatory intent, including (1) the impact of the official action; (2) the historical background of the decision; (3) the specific sequence of events leading up to its passage; (4) departures from the normal procedural sequence; (5) the legislative history, including legislative statements; (6) the foreseeability of the disparate impact; (7) knowledge of intent; and (8) the availability of less discriminatory alternatives. League of Women Voters of Fla. Inc., 2023 WL 3108161, at *4.

129. Those factors are met here. SB 7050's Voter Registration Citizenship Requirement will exclude, without exception, noncitizens from handling voter registration applications. Many of Alianza Plaintiffs, UnidosUS, and VOT's members and canvassers will be impacted by this requirement. Proponents of the Voter Registration Citizenship Requirement did not shy away from expressing that the purpose of the provision was to exclude noncitizens. When asked during a committee hearing for a justification, the bill's sponsor stated "[r]egarding noncitizens, there are certain rights in our country that only citizens get to enjoy."

130. At the Senate Session hearing, proponents of the bill stated only that it was a "policy call" despite repeated efforts by opponents to stress the absurdity of restricting legal noncitizen residents from handling voter registration applications, while allowing those same individuals the ability to work for the state of Florida, including for example, the Department of State, Division of Elections, and Department of Highway Safety. No evidence was presented of any noncitizen mishandling voter registration applications.

131. The Legislature is therefore targeting noncitizens because of their status and nothing more.

WHEREFORE, Plaintiffs respectfully request that this Court enter judgment:

- A. Declaring that the Voter Registration Citizenship Requirement violates the Fourteenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution;
- B. Declaring that the Voter Registration Citizenship Requirement was enacted with discriminatory intent in violation of the Fourteenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution;
- C. Enjoining Defendants, their respective agents, officers, employees, and successors, and all persons acting in concert with each or any of them, from enforcing the challenged provision;
- D. Awarding Plaintiffs their costs, expenses, and reasonable attorneys' fees pursuant to, inter alia, 42 U.S.C. § 1988 and other applicable laws; and
- E. Granting such other and further relief as the Court deems just and proper.

COUNT IV

Equal Protection Clause, U.S. Const. amend. XIV
42 U.S.C. § 1983
(3PVRO Restrictions, Fla. Stat. § 97.0575)

132. Plaintiffs reallege and reincorporate by reference paragraphs 1-100 of this Complaint as though set forth fully herein.

133. The Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution provides that “[n]o State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any States deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws.”

134. The 3PVRO Restrictions violate the Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution because they were purposefully enacted, at least in part, with a racially discriminatory intent to discriminate against Black and Hispanic voters and have the effect individually and collectively of denying, abridging, or suppressing the right to vote of otherwise eligible voters on account of race, ethnicity, or color.

135. Village of Arlington Heights v. Metropolitan Housing Development Corp., 429 U.S. 252 (1977), and later case law require considering several factors about the law and its adoption to demonstrate discriminatory intent, including (1) the impact of the official action; (2) the historical background of the decision; (3) the specific sequence of events leading up to its passage; (4) departures from the normal procedural sequence; (5) the legislative history, including legislative statements; (6) the foreseeability of the disparate impact; (7) knowledge of intent; and (8) the availability of less discriminatory alternatives. League of Women Voters of Fla. Inc., 2023 WL 3108161, at *4.

136. Many of these factors are met here. SB 7050’s 3PVRO restrictions will impact Black and Hispanic Floridians with precision, particularly because 3PVROs are five times more likely to register Black and Hispanic voters than white voters, and legislators were well aware of this fact, see supra Part II. The legislature hastily introduced the bill, giving legislators and the public little time to digest its contents before hearings and depriving them the opportunity to make informed comments on and amendments to the bill. The legislature also waived its normal procedures to speed up the process. See supra Part II. Each of these facts, individually and collectively, supports a strong inference of discriminatory purpose in violation of the Fourteenth Amendment.

137. The feeble state justifications for SB 7050—election integrity and security—also raise an inference of discriminatory purpose in violation of the Fourteenth. There is no purpose to the harsh fines and fees levied against 3PVROs in SB 7050 except to stop 3PVROs from registering people who are disproportionately Floridians of color. For example, one speaker testified that “I think the fines that are being imposed on the third-party voter registration organizations are designed . . . to put them out of business, make them go away, and those are the organizations that have helped increase participation in democracy.” And as Senator Thomson explained: “What the bill really is about is elections outcome[s] . . . this really is suppression [] just like poll taxes . . . violence against people who wanted to vote . . . intimidation when you had the Ku Klux Klan march through certain communities before voting day, that was suppression and so is this. [] I see different characters but the same objective: [] to make sure only certain people vote.” Likewise, there is no reason to prohibit 3PVROs from retaining voter contact information other than to reduce the impact of these organizations. And because it is well known that Black and Hispanic people are significantly more likely to register through a 3PVRO, the clear impact of these provisions will be to reduce the number of Black and Hispanic voters in Florida.

138. The 3PVRO Restrictions are not narrowly tailored to serve a compelling state interest. Less discriminatory alternatives to the 3PVRO Restrictions are available, including, among others, maintaining the status quo; prohibiting solely the retention of sensitive voter information like social security numbers while allowing 3PVROs to maintain contact information used for voter engagement; increasing fines only for repeated violations of third-party voter registration laws; and/or limiting the Voter Registration Citizenship Requirement to non-citizens with certain criminal histories.

139. By enacting the 3PVRO Restrictions, the Legislature intentionally discriminates against Plaintiffs’ members, in violation of the Fourteenth Amendment.

WHEREFORE, Plaintiffs respectfully request that this Court enter judgment:

- A. Declaring that the 3PVRO Restrictions were enacted with discriminatory intent in violation of the Fourteenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution;

- B. Enjoining Defendants, their respective agents, officers, employees, and successors, and all persons acting in concert with each or any of them, from enforcing the challenged provisions;
- C. Awarding Plaintiffs their costs, expenses, and reasonable attorneys' fees pursuant to, inter alia, 42 U.S.C. § 1988 and other applicable laws; and
- D. Granting such other and further relief as the Court deems just and proper.

COUNT V

Section 208 of the Voting Rights Act 52 U.S.C. § 10508 (Mail-In Ballot Request Restriction, Fla. Stat. § 101.62)

140. Plaintiffs reallege and reincorporate by reference paragraphs 1-100 of this Complaint as though fully set forth herein.

141. Section 208 of the VRA provides that “[a]ny voter who requires assistance to vote by reason of blindness, disability, or inability to read or write may be given assistance by a person of the voter’s choice [with limited exceptions].” 52 U.S.C. § 10508.

142. The Voting Rights Act defines “vote” to include “all action necessary to make a vote effective in any primary, special, or general election, including, but not limited to, registration, listing pursuant to this chapter, or other action required by law prerequisite to voting, casting a ballot, and having such ballot counted properly.” Id. § 10310(c)(1). Thus, people who require assistance in the voting process, including assistance in requesting vote-by-mail ballots, are promised the freedom of choice for their assister.

143. DRF, Florida Alliance, UnidosUS, and Alianza Plaintiffs' members, canvassers, and constituents who are protected under Section 208 have a private right of action under Section 208. Fla. State Conf. of NAACP v. Lee, 576 F. Supp. 3d 974, 988–90 (N.D. Fla. 2021).

144. “In the absence of an express congressional command, state law is preempted if that law actually conflicts with federal law.” Cipollone v. Liggett Grp., Inc., 505 U.S. 504, 516 (1992).

145. The Mail-In Ballot Request Restriction unlawfully prevents individuals covered by Section 208 of the VRA, including DRF, Florida Alliance, UnidosUS, and Alianza Plaintiffs' members, canvassers, and constituents, from choosing their preferred assister and prohibits broad categories of individuals and organizations from providing assistance to eligible voters seeking to request a vote-by-mail ballot.

146. As such, SB 7050's Mail-In Ballot Request Restriction conflicts with federal law because it limits the right of protected voters from choosing who they want to assist them with the voting process.

147. The Mail-In Ballot Request Restriction is therefore preempted by federal law and must be declared invalid.

WHEREFORE, Plaintiffs respectfully request that this Court enter judgment:

- A. Declaring that the Mail-In Ballot Request Restriction violates Section 208 of the Voting Rights Act, 52 U.S.C. § 10508;
- B. Enjoining Defendants, their respective agents, officers, employees, and successors, and all persons acting in concert with each or any of them, from enforcing the challenged provisions;
- C. Awarding Plaintiffs their costs, expenses, and reasonable attorneys' fees pursuant to, inter alia, 42 U.S.C. § 1988 and other applicable laws; and
- D. Granting such other and further relief as the Court deems just and proper.
