INTRODUCTION

2 1. This case challenges the Trump Administration’s sweeping and unprecedented 3 campaign to re-arrest and re-detain noncitizens living in the community—many for years—4 without any individualized determination that they now pose a flight risk or danger.

5 2. Federal immigration officials have the authority to release apprehended 6 noncitizens pending ongoing removal proceedings. Any decision to release a noncitizen—whether 7 on parole, bond, other supervision conditions, or their own recognizance—necessitates a finding 8 that the specific individual poses no flight risk or danger to the community that warrants detention.
9 For decades, federal immigration officials have adhered to a policy of not re-arresting and re-10 detaining noncitizens previously released from federal custody, absent an individualized 11 determination that there had been a material change in their circumstances that rendered them a 12 danger or flight risk. This longstanding policy reflects a fundamental due process principle: When 13 the government conditionally releases an individual, it makes “an implicit promise” that their 14 liberty will not be revoked unless they fail to satisfy their conditions of release. See Morrissey v.
15 Brewer, 408 U.S. 471, 482 (1972). It also conforms with the Fourth Amendment’s prohibition on 16 repeated seizures based on the same probable cause without a material change in circumstances.

17 3. Countless noncitizens have relied on this implicit promise to build their lives.
18 While their removal proceedings remain ongoing, they have pursued relief from removal, grown 19 their families, paid taxes, invested in their education, and developed extensive community and 20 family ties. The government’s policy assured these individuals that they would retain their liberty 21 while they litigated their claims for immigration relief, so long as they continued to pose no danger 22 or flight risk, i.e., avoided criminal activity and complied with their obligations under the 23 immigration laws.

24 4. This all changed around May 2025, when Defendants initiated an aggressive new 25 campaign targeting noncitizens living in the community for re-arrest and re-detention. Most 26 visibly, Defendants have sent Immigration and Customs Enforcement (“ICE”) officers to 27 immigration courts, including San Francisco, Concord, and Sacramento Immigration Courts, to 28 arrest and detain people after they exit their immigration hearings. In addition, ICE has been re-

1 arresting noncitizens when they attend required check-ins with ICE, its co-agencies within DHS,
2 and its contractors. In other words, this campaign specifically targets noncitizens who are doing 3 exactly what the government told them to do.

4 5. These arrests and detentions continue to occur at immigration courts as well as at 5 required check-ins with ICE (including check-ins through the Intensive Supervision Appearance 6 Program, or ISAP) notwithstanding the current lapse in government appropriations.

7 6. These enforcement actions arise from a new policy (the “Re-Detention Policy”), 8 which has drastically overturned longstanding federal policies and practices by authorizing re-9 arrest and re-detention of noncitizens untethered from any basis in—or individualized assessment 10 of—their flight risk or danger to the community.

11 7. Defendants’ implementation of this policy in ICE’s San Francisco Area of 12 Responsibility has torn apart families, interfered with people’s ability to access counsel and to 13 pursue eligible claims for relief, caused trepidation and reluctance in noncitizens who otherwise 14 want to comply with their legal obligations to appear for court hearings and supervision check-ins, 15 and sown fear in immigrant communities throughout Northern and Central California.

16 8. The Re-Detention Policy is unlawful. It radically upends longstanding federal 17 policy and practice without any reasoned explanation or consideration of the relevant factors—18 including the reliance interests of those who have been released, fundamental due process 19 principles requiring an individualized determination of flight risk and danger to the community 20 prior to re-detention, and the Fourth Amendment’s prohibition on unreasonable seizures. The 21 policy also cannot be reconciled with Defendants’ statutory authority to arrest and detain 22 noncitizens under the Immigration and Nationality Act. The policy is therefore contrary to law and 23 arbitrary and capricious in violation of the Administrative Procedure Act.

24 9. Plaintiffs/Petitioners now seek to represent a class of noncitizens, and one 25 subclass, who have been or will be harmed by this agency policy and practice. The class includes 26 all noncitizens in the jurisdiction of the San Francisco ICE Field Office who (1) entered or will 27 enter the United States without inspection; (2) have been or will be charged with inadmissibility 28 under 8 U.S.C. § 1182 and have been or will be released from DHS custody; and who (3) are in

1 removal proceedings under 8 U.S.C § 1229a, including any § 1229a proceedings that have been 2 dismissed where the dismissal is not administratively final; and (4) are not subject to detention 3 under 8 U.S.C. §1226(c) (the “Class”). The subclass includes all members of the Class whose 4 release from DHS custody was or will be on bond, conditional parole, or on their own 5 recognizance under 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a) and/or 8 C.F.R. § 236.1(c)(8) (the “Bond/RoR Subclass”).

6 10. Plaintiffs/Petitioners, the Class and Bond/RoR Subclass ask the Court to vacate the 7 Re-Detention Policy because it violates the Administrative Procedure Act.

8 11. Plaintiffs/Petitioners further ask the Court to exercise its habeas authority and 9 enjoin Defendants from re-detaining them in violation of the Due Process Clause and Fourth 10 Amendment.

11 JURISDICTION AND VENUE

12 12. This Court has jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 2241 (writ of habeas corpus) and 28
13 U.S.C. § 1331 (federal question) because this action arises under the Administrative Procedure Act
14 (“APA”), 5 U.S.C. § 701 et seq., and the United States Constitution. Because this suit seeks relief 15 other than money damages and challenges Defendants’ unlawful actions, the United States has 16 waived sovereign immunity from this suit under the APA. 5 U.S.C. § 702.

17 13. Venue is proper in the Northern District of California under 28 U.S.C.
18 § 1391(e)(1) because at least one Plaintiff resides in this judicial district; each Defendant is an 19 agency of the United States or an officer of the United States sued in their official capacity; and a 20 substantial part of the events giving rise to the claims in this action took place in this District.

21 PARTIES

22 Plaintiffs/Petitioners

23 14. Plaintiff/Petitioner Frescia Anthuane Garro Pinchi is a 27-year-old woman who is 24 a resident of Hayward, California. After entering the country without inspection in 2023, she was 25 placed in removal proceedings under 8 U.S.C. § 1229a and charged with inadmissibility under 8
26 U.S.C. § 1182. Thereafter, DHS released her on her own recognizance pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §
27 1226(a) and 8 C.F.R. § 236.1(c)(8). Since that time, she has been working in the gig economy, 28 studying English, and caring for her household as well as sending money to her mother and

1 daughter in Peru. She has fully complied with the conditions of her release. She has no criminal 2 history and is pursuing asylum based on her fear of persecution in Peru. If her application for 3 asylum is granted, she will continue on the path to permanent residency and, eventually, U.S.
4 citizenship.

5 15. Plaintiff/Petitioner Juany Galo Santos is a 42-year-old woman who resides in San 6 Mateo, California. After entering the country without inspection in December 2023, she was 7 placed in removal proceedings under 8 U.S.C. § 1229a and charged with inadmissibility under 8
8 U.S.C. § 1182. Thereafter, DHS released her on her own recognizance pursuant to 8 U.S.C. §
9 1226(a) and 8 C.F.R. § 236.1(c)(8). Since that time, she has built a life in the United States for 10 herself and two of her daughters. Ms. Galo Santos is the sole caregiver and provider for her 11 daughters, one of whom has complex medical needs that require significant ongoing care. She has 12 fully complied with the conditions of her release and has no criminal history. Ms. Galo Santos is 13 currently pursuing asylum based on her fear of violence and persecution in Honduras. If her 14 application for asylum is granted, she will continue on the path to permanent residency and, 15 eventually, U.S. citizenship.

16 16. Plaintiff/Petitioner Jose Waldemar Teletor Sente is a 37-year-old man who resides 17 in San Francisco, California. After entering the country without inspection in 2019, Mr. Teletor 18 Sente was placed in removal proceedings under 8 U.S.C. § 1229a and charged with inadmissibility
19 under 8 U.S.C. § 1182. Thereafter, DHS released him on his own recognizance pursuant to 8 20 U.S.C. § 1226(a) and 8 C.F.R. § 236.1(c)(8). Since 2019, Mr. Teletor Sente has built a life in the 21 United States with his son. Mr. Teletor Sente received a work permit and began working in 22 construction to support his son and the members of his family who remained in Guatemala. Mr.
23 Teletor Sente has fully complied with the conditions of his release. He has no criminal history and 24 has filed an application for asylum based on his fear of violence in Guatemala. If his application 25 for asylum is granted, he will continue on the path to permanent residency, and eventually U.S.
26 citizenship.

27 Defendants

28 17. Defendant Sergio Albarran, sued in his official capacity, is the Field Office

1 Director of the San Francisco ICE Field Office. In this capacity, he is responsible for the 2 administration of immigration laws and the execution of immigration enforcement and detention 3 policy within ICE’s San Francisco Area of Responsibility, including the previous re-arrest and re-4 detention of Plaintiff/Petitioner Garro Pinchi. Defendant Albarran maintains an office and 5 regularly conducts business in this District.

6 18. Defendant Kristi Noem, sued in her official capacity, is the Secretary of Homeland
7 Security. As the highest-ranking officer for DHS, Defendant Noem has ultimate statutory authority 8 over all of the policies challenged in this action. See 6 U.S.C. § 557 (transferring functions from 9 the Attorney General).

10 19. Defendant U.S. Department of Homeland Security is a cabinet-level department of 11 the Executive Branch of the federal government and is an “agency” within the meaning of 5 12 U.S.C. § 551(1). DHS includes various component agencies, including Immigration and Customs 13 Enforcement and Customs and Border Patrol. DHS, together with all of its component agencies, is 14 responsible for administering and enforcing all of the policies challenged in this action.

15 20. Defendant Todd M. Lyons, sued in his official capacity, is the Acting Director of 16 U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement. As the highest-ranking officer for ICE, Defendant 17 Lyons has authority over all of the policies challenged in this action.

18 21. Defendant U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement is a component agency of 19 DHS. ICE is an “agency” within the meaning of 5 U.S.C. § 551(1). ICE’s mission includes the 20 enforcement of civil laws related to immigration. Among other things, ICE is responsible for arrest 21 and detention related to civil immigration charges in the interior of the United States and is 22 responsible for administering and enforcing the policies challenged in this action.

23 LEGAL BACKGROUND

24 22. Two mutually exclusive provisions of the Immigration and Nationality Act 25 (“INA”) govern ICE’s authority to detain noncitizens who do not have administratively final 26 orders of removal.

27 23. 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b) sets forth DHS’s detention authority related to the “inspection” 28 process. The first subsection, § 1225(b)(1), governs the detention of noncitizens placed in

1 “expedited removal” proceedings, a fast-track form of removal that historically has applied only at 2 the border and ports of entry. The second subsection, 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2), governs the detention 3 of noncitizens who are “applicant[s] for admission,” are actively “seeking admission,” and are 4 “not clearly and beyond a doubt entitled to be admitted,” but who are placed in removal 5 proceedings before an immigration judge (also known as “Section 240 proceedings” or 6 proceedings under 8 U.S.C. § 1229a rather than expedited removal).

7 24. In contrast, 8 U.S.C. § 1226 governs the detention of noncitizens “already in the 8 country pending the outcome of removal proceedings.” Jennings v. Rodriguez, 583 U.S. 281, 289 9 (2018). When Congress enacted § 1226, it issued an interim regulation making clear that the 10 statute applies to the subset of “applicants for admission” not covered by § 1225(b)(2): those “who 11 are present without having been admitted or paroled.” In other words, § 1226 applies to 12 noncitizens who “entered [the U.S.] without inspection” between ports of entry. 62 Fed. Reg.
13 10312, 10323 (Mar. 6, 1997). Section 1226(a) creates a “default rule,” which authorizes, but does 14 not require, DHS to detain noncitizens in Section 240 proceedings. A narrower subsection, 15 § 1226(c), mandates detention for certain noncitizens based on criminal conduct or terrorist 16 activity that subjects them to removability or inadmissibility. This year, Congress amended 17 § 1226(c) to also mandate the detention of noncitizens who are inadmissible not only because they 18 entered without inspection, but who also have been arrested for or convicted of certain property 19 crimes. See Laken Riley Act, Pub. L. No. 119-1, 139 Stat. 3 (2025); 8 U.S.C. § 1226(c)(1)(E).

20 25. The source of DHS’s authority to release noncitizens from custody depends on 21 which detention statute applies. Section 1226(c) is the most restrictive provision and authorizes 22 release only when necessary under federal witness protection statutes. See 8 U.S.C. § 1226(c)(4).
23 On its face, § 1225 also offers few paths to release. Noncitizens subject to either subsection of § 24 1225 are not statutorily eligible for bond—whether by DHS or an immigration judge—or release
25 on their own recognizance. However, DHS can release them on humanitarian parole under 8
26 U.S.C. § 1182(d)(5)(A). Section 1226(a) is broader in scope. Under § 1226(a), DHS can release 27 noncitizens on bond, on their own recognizance (formally called “conditional parole”), or on 28 humanitarian parole. See 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a)(2); 8 C.F.R. § 236.1(8). Noncitizens who are subject

1 to § 1226(a) are also entitled to a bond hearing before an immigration judge.

2 26. Regardless of the statutory vehicle for release, a DHS officer may not release a 3 noncitizen unless the individual does not pose a risk of flight or danger to the community. See 4 8 C.F.R. §§ 236.1(c)(8), 1236.1(c)(8) (noncitizen must “demonstrate to the satisfaction of the 5 officer that such release would not pose a danger to property or persons, and that the [noncitizen]
6 is likely to appear for any future proceeding”); see also 8 C.F.R. § 212.5 (humanitarian parole 7 available only when “the [noncitizens] present neither a security risk nor a risk of absconding”).

8 27. Similarly, in deciding whether to release a noncitizen on bond or their own 9 recognizance, immigration judges consider whether the individual poses a danger to the 10 community and whether they are likely to appear for future proceedings. 8 C.F.R. § 1003.19(h)(3); 11 Matter of Guerra, 24 I. & N. Dec. 37, 40 (BIA 2006).

12 28. As a result, any “[r]elease” of a noncitizen “reflects a determination by the 13 government that the noncitizen is not a danger to the community or a flight risk.” Saravia v.
14 Sessions, 280 F. Supp. 3d 1168, 1176 (N.D. Cal. 2017), aff’d sub nom. Saravia for A.H. v.
15 Sessions, 905 F.3d 1137 (9th Cir. 2018).

16 29. Statutory and regulatory provisions governing re-arrest also depend on the manner 17 of release. Under the text of the INA and federal regulations, certain DHS officials “at any time 18 may revoke a bond or [conditional] parole authorized under [§ 1226(a)], rearrest the [noncitizen]
19 under the original warrant, and detain the [noncitizen].” 8 U.S.C. § 1226(b); see 8 C.F.R. § 20 236.1(c)(9). Certain DHS officials may terminate humanitarian parole upon written notice when 21 they determine that the purpose for parole has been “accomplish[ed]” or when “neither 22 humanitarian reasons nor public benefit warrants the [noncitizen’s] continued presence . . . in the 23 United States[.]” 8 C.F.R. § 212.5(e)(2)(i). For decades, however, DHS has had a consistent policy 24 and practice of re-detaining noncitizens in removal proceedings only when the individual 25 circumstances related to their flight risk or danger to the community had materially changed.

26 30. DHS has placed explicit limits on re-detention under 8 U.S.C. § 1226(b) by 27 requiring authorization from a high-level official within the field office. By regulation, such 28 revocations of release from custody may only be carried out in the “discretion of the district

1 director, acting district director, deputy director, assistant district director for investigations, 2 assistant district director for detention and deportation, or officer in charge (except foreign).”
3 8 C.F.R. § 236.1(c)(9).

4 31. Additionally, despite “the breadth of [the] statutory language” in 8 U.S.C.
5 § 1226(b), the federal government’s authority is subject to “an important implicit limitation”: It 6 cannot lawfully re-arrest or re-detain someone without “a material change in circumstances.”
7 Saravia, 280 F. Supp. 3d at 1197; see also, e.g., Matter of Sugay, 17 I. & N. Dec. 637, 640 (B.I.A.
8 1981).

9 32. In the immigration context, this limitation means that a person who immigration 10 authorities released from initial custody cannot be re-arrested “solely on the ground that he is 11 subject to removal proceedings[,]” without some new, intervening cause. Saravia, 280 F. Supp. at 12 1196. Indeed, the Fourth Amendment, which applies to seizures by immigration authorities, 13 prohibits such re-arrests, which courts have long held could result in “harassment by continual 14 rearrests.” United States v. Holmes, 452 F.2d 249, 261 (7th Cir. 1971) (Stevens, J.) (prohibiting re-15 arrest without change in circumstances in criminal context); see also U.S. v. Brignoni-Ponce, 422 16 U.S. 873, 884 (1975) (applying Fourth Amendment principles from criminal context to “limit” 17 scope of immigration agents’ seizure authority); Gonzalez v. United States Immigr. & Customs 18 Enf’t, 975 F.3d 788, 817 (9th Cir. 2020) (Fourth Amendment limits apply equally to seizures in 19 criminal and civil immigration context). The same applies here.

20 33. This prohibition also derives from fundamental constitutional principles enshrined 21 in the Due Process Clause of the Fifth Amendment. “Freedom from imprisonment—from 22 government custody, detention, or other forms of physical restraint—lies at the heart of the liberty 23 that [the Due Process] Clause protects.” Zadvydas v. Davis, 533 U.S. 678, 690 (2001). And those 24 due process protections extend to “all ‘persons’ within the United States, including [noncitizens], 25 whether their presence here is lawful, unlawful, temporary, or permanent.” Hernandez v. Sessions, 26 872 F.3d 976, 990 (9th Cir. 2017) (quoting Zadvydas, 533 U.S. at 693).

27 34. “The touchstone of due process is protection of the individual against arbitrary 28 action of government,” Wolff v. McDonnell, 418 U.S. 539, 558 (1974), including “the exercise of 1 power without any reasonable justification in the service of a legitimate government objective,” 2 Cnty. of Sacramento v. Lewis, 523 U.S. 833, 846 (1998). Due process requires that all forms of 3 civil detention—including immigration detention—bear a “reasonable relation” to a non-punitive 4 purpose. See Jackson v. Indiana, 406 U.S. 715, 738 (1972).

5 35. The Supreme Court has recognized only two permissible non-punitive purposes 6 for immigration detention: ensuring a noncitizen’s appearance at immigration proceedings (or, in 7 the case of a removal order, at removal); and preventing danger to the community. Zadvydas, 533 8 U.S. at 690-92; see Demore v. Kim, 538 U.S. 510, 519-20, 527–28, 531 (2003). It has also held 9 that, in general, these purposes may not be assessed on a blanket or categorical basis. Instead, 10 immigration custody decisions generally must be based on an “individualized determination” of 11 flight risk and danger to the community. See INS v. Nat’l Ctr. for Immigrants’ Rts., Inc., 502 U.S.
12 183, 194 (1991); see also Zadvydas, 533 U.S. at 690; R.I.L.-R v. Johnson, 80 F. Supp. 3d 164, 188
13 (D.D.C. 2015).

14 36. Moreover, individuals who are released from government custody have a protected 15 liberty interest in remaining out of custody. The government’s decision to release an individual 16 from custody creates “an implicit promise” that their liberty “will be revoked only if [they] fail[] 17 to live up to the . . . conditions [of release].” Morrissey, 408 U.S. at 482.

18 37. Accordingly, in the criminal context, the Supreme Court has repeatedly recognized 19 that re-detention after some form of conditional release requires a pre-deprivation hearing. Young 20 v. Harper, 520 U.S. 143, 152 (1997) (re-detention after pre-parole conditional supervision); 21 Gagnon v. Scarpelli, 411 U.S. 778, 782 (1973) (same, in probation context); Morrissey v. Brewer, 22 408 U.S. 471 (1972) (same, in parole context).

23 38. These principles apply with at least equal force to people released from civil 24 immigration detention. After all, noncitizens living in the United States have a protected liberty 25 interest in their ongoing freedom from confinement. See Zadvydas, 533 U.S. at 690. And, “[g]iven 26 the civil context [of immigration detention], [the] liberty interest [of noncitizens released from 27 custody] is arguably greater than the interest of parolees.” Ortega v. Bonnar, 415 F. Supp. 3d 963, 28 970 (N.D. Cal. 2019).

1 39. Thus, if 8 U.S.C. § 1226(b) were construed as allowing ICE to re-arrest and re-2 detain noncitizens for any reason—or no reason at all—it would raise serious constitutional 3 questions under both the Fourth Amendment and the Due Process Clause.

4 40. Until around May 2025, Defendants’ policy and practice was consistent with this 5 construction.

6 FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS

7 I. For decades, Defendants required a material change in circumstances before 8 invoking 1226(b)’s re-detention authority.

9 41. For decades, federal immigration officials have adhered to a policy of not re-10 arresting and re-detaining noncitizens who have been released pending removal proceedings, 11 absent an individualized determination that there has been a material change with respect to 12 whether a particular person poses a flight risk or danger to the community.

13 42. As far back as 1981, the Board of Immigration Appeals made clear that the 14 government could not re-arrest and re-detain a noncitizen released by an immigration judge on 15 bond “absent a change of circumstance” warranting detention. Matter of Sugay, 17 I. & N. Dec.
16 637, 640 (BIA 1981); see also Panosyan v. Mayorkas, 854 F. App’x 787, 788 (9th Cir. 2021).

17 43. Federal immigration officials reiterated this policy on numerous occasions. For 18 example, the head of the Immigration and Naturalization Service (ICE’s predecessor agency)
19 stated in a 1995 memorandum that: “[w]hen a[] [noncitizen] has been released from INS custody 20 under bond, such bond can be revoked by the district director . . . but only based upon ‘a change of 21 circumstances.’ . . . As such, INS must be able to justify any revocation decision, future detention 22 or release condition.” Demore v. Kim, 2002 WL 34705774 (U.S. Aug. 29, 2002), (No. 01-1491), 23 Joint Appendix at 57.

24 44. As a matter of policy and longstanding practice, DHS and its predecessor agencies 25 applied the same rule to release decisions made by federal immigration officers, including ICE 26 officers. As DHS previously represented to a court in this District, the government historically re-27 arrested previously released noncitizens only after “a material change in circumstances” as to 28 whether they are a flight risk or dangerous. Saravia, 280 F. Supp. 3d at 1197; Federal Defendants’
Supplemental Brief at 1, Saravia v. Sessions, No. 3:17-cv-03615-VC, (N.D. Cal. Nov. 3, 2017),

1 Dkt. No. 90. Since then, courts in this District and nationwide have repeatedly acknowledged the 2 existence of DHS’s prior policy and practice. See, e.g., U.S. v. Cisneros, No. 19-CR-00280-RS-5, 3 2021 WL 5908407, at *3-4 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 14, 2021); Rosado v. Figueroa, No. CV-25-02157-
4 PHX-DLR (CDB), 2025 WL 2337099, (D. Ariz. Aug. 11, 2025); Dos Santos v. Noem, No. 1:25-5 CV-12052-JEK, 2025 WL 2370988, at *9 (D. Mass. Aug. 14, 2025).

6 45. Under DHS’s prior policy and practice, and across presidential administrations, 7 ICE officers in the San Francisco Area of Responsibility generally would not re-arrest or re-detain 8 a non-detained noncitizen in removal proceedings without conducting an individualized 9 assessment and determining that their flight risk or danger to the community had materially 10 changed since their release or their last check-in appointment. This policy and practice applied 11 regardless of whether a noncitizen had previously been released on bond, conditional parole, or 12 humanitarian parole.

13 46. For example, if a noncitizen became involved with the criminal justice system, 14 violated a condition of ICE supervision, or violated a condition of the Intensive Supervision 15 Appearance Program (ISAP), which is run by a private contractor, ICE generally would set an 16 appointment and interview the non-citizen about the changed circumstance before making an 17 individualized decision as to whether re-detention was warranted. If the noncitizen affirmatively 18 sought to remedy the violation or returned to compliance, ICE often would not re-detain the 19 noncitizen.

20 47. Countless noncitizens released pending removal proceedings have relied on the 21 government’s policy against indiscriminate re-arrest and re-detention to plan their lives. So long as 22 they complied with their legal obligations to attend immigration proceedings and avoid criminal 23 activity, noncitizens could confidently assume they would be able to litigate their right to remain 24 in the United States while living in the community and with their families, rather than from 25 detention. This meant they could access and consult with legal representatives, enter into leases for 26 residential housing, seek work authorization and lawful employment, invest in their education, 27 develop community ties, participate in religious life, and grow and take care of their families 28 (including U.S. citizen family members).

1 II. Around May 2025, Defendants adopted and implemented the Re-Detention
2 Policy, which abandoned their longstanding policy and practice.

3 48. In or around May 2025, Defendants reversed this longstanding policy and adopted
4 the Re-Detention Policy, which authorizes re-arrest and re-detention of previously released 5 noncitizens without any individualized assessment of a person’s flight risk or danger—indeed, 6 without any individualized justification at all.

7 49. The Re-Detention Policy does away with the previous policy’s requirement that, 8 before a person previously released from immigration custody on recognizance, parole, or bond 9 can be re-arrested and re-detained, DHS must conduct an individualized determination of 10 materially changed circumstances (e.g., danger to the community and/or flight risk) to justify the 11 re-arrest and re-detention. In fact, the government has admitted in some cases that there was no
12 change in circumstance justifying re-detention. See, e.g., Maklad v. Murray, No. 1:25-cv-00946, 13 2025 WL 2299376, at *3 (E.D. Cal. Aug. 8, 2025) (“[T]he government conceded that [prior to her 14 re-detention] there were no changes in circumstances since the original determination that Ms.
15 Maklad does not pose a flight risk or a danger to the community[.]”).

16 50. ICE has implemented its new policy in an unprecedented campaign of re-arrests at 17 immigration courthouses, ICE offices, and myriad other locations within this District, the broader 18 region, and nationwide. These re-arrests have targeted individuals who have not had any material 19 change in circumstances with respect to whether they posed a flight risk or danger to the 20 community since their release from DHS custody. On the contrary, these individuals complied 21 with the requirements that the government imposed on them, including attending immigration 22 court hearings and ICE supervision check-ins.

23 51. This campaign substantially materialized in the form of aggressive enforcement 24 actions at immigration courts, including the San Francisco, Concord, and Sacramento Immigration 25 Courts. Since May 2025, ICE has arrested noncitizens who are in removal proceedings as they 26 leave routine immigration court hearings. Generally, DHS attorneys make an oral motion to 27 dismiss the proceedings—without any notice to the affected individual—in advance of a re-arrest.
28 Although DHS regulations do not permit such motions to dismiss absent a showing that the “[c]ircumstances of the case have changed,” 8 C.F.R. § 239.2(a)(7), (c), DHS attorneys do not

1 conduct any case-specific analysis of changed circumstances before filing these motions to dismiss 2 or offer case-specific reasons for dismissal. ICE agents then re-arrest noncitizens, often as they 3 leave the courtroom, regardless of whether the immigration judge grants the motion.

4 52. This “coordinated operation” is “aimed at dramatically accelerating deportations” 5 by re-arresting people, many of whom have pending applications for asylum or other relief, while 6 they are attending immigration court hearings in their cases.¹ In addition, Defendants’ sweeping 7 re-arrest and re-detention campaign has expanded past its initial targeting of people at or near 8 immigration courthouses to sweep up people at numerous other locations. For example, many 9 noncitizens have regularly attended “check-in” appointments with ICE or its contractor ISAP for 10 months or years while they pursue their immigration cases. Like immigration court hearings, these 11 previously routine appointments have become hotbeds for re-arrest and re-detention. When 12 noncitizens arrive at their local ICE Field Office or ISAP office, rather than conducting the regular 13 “check-in,” Defendants instead have begun to re-arrest and re-detain them. Like the re-arrests at 14 immigration courthouses, Defendants conduct arrests at these check-in appointments without 15 requiring or considering any change in the individualized circumstances of the noncitizen.

16 53. Additionally, on information and belief, the Re-Detention Policy allows the re-17 arrest and re-detention of non-citizens released pursuant to 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a) without the 18 authorization of “the district director, acting district director, deputy district director, assistant 19 district director for investigations, assistant district director for detention and deportation, or 20 officer in charge,” as is required by 8 C.F.R. § 236.1(c)(9).

21 54. Defendants adopted and implemented the Re-Detention Policy amid a nationwide 22 push to dramatically increase immigration arrests and detention, regardless of the individual 23 circumstances of the people arrested and detained.

1 55. For example, in late May 2025, the White House and the Department of Homeland
2 Security imposed a “goal” on federal immigration agencies of 3,000 immigration-related arrests
3 per day—with “consequences for not hitting arrest targets.”²

4 56. In order to reach these targets, White House Deputy Chief of Staff Stephen Miller
5 directed high-level officials to change their approach to stops and arrests in the field. Agents and 6 officers, according to him, should no longer conduct targeted operations based on investigations.
7 Instead, they should “just go out there and arrest [unauthorized noncitizens]” by rounding up
8 people in public spaces like “Home Depot” and “7-Eleven” convenience stores.³ Agents received 9 instructions that arrests were “all about the numbers, not the level of criminality.”⁴

10 57. In a May 28, 2025 interview with Fox News, Mr. Miller stated that “Under 11 President Trump’s leadership, we are looking to set a goal of a minimum of 3,000 arrests for ICE 12 every day, and President Trump is going to keep pushing to get that number up higher each and 13 every single day.”⁵

14 58. Re-arrests and re-detentions without any individualized assessment of changed 15 circumstances related to flight risk or danger have skyrocketed because of these enforcement 16 operations. Since May 2025, dozens of people, including Plaintiff/Petitioner Garro Pinchi, have 17 been detained at the San Francisco Immigration Court following their routine immigration 18 hearings and without any assertion that an individualized material change in circumstances

1 justified their detention.⁶ In addition to these courthouse arrests, dozens more have been detained
 2 since May 2025 at ICE and ISAP check-ins without any assertion of materially changed
 3 circumstances. These arrests have extended to other Northern California immigration courthouses 4 too, including at least several dozen arrests at the Sacramento Immigration Court⁷ and, at 5 minimum, four more arrests within a single day at the Concord Immigration Court.⁸ On 6 information and belief, ICE arrests at these immigration courts and at ICE and ISAP check-ins in 7 the San Francisco Area of Responsibility have increased by more than 500% since May 2025.
 8 These re-arrests and re-detentions would not have been permissible under DHS’s prior policy.

9 59. These same trends have materialized nationwide. In New York City, for example, 10 “ICE agents [] apprehended so many people showing up for routine appointments . . . that the 11 facilities” were “overcrowded[,]” with “[h]undreds of migrants . . . sle[eping] on the floor or 12 sitting upright, sometimes for days[.]”⁹

13 60. Indeed, in part because of these operations, ICE’s arrests nationwide of noncitizens

 2 weekly non-custodial arrests involved people with no criminal convictions, up 23 percentage
 3 points from January.¹¹ ICE arrests in total have increased 123 percent since 2024.¹²

4 61. At the same time as it has increased immigration arrests, the Administration has 5 moved forward with radically increasing immigration detention capacity nationwide.

6 62. On July 4, 2025, President Trump signed the “Big Beautiful Bill” into law. The 7 legislation makes U.S Immigration and Customs and Enforcement the largest federal law 8 enforcement agency, giving it $45 billion for building new detention centers in addition to $14 9 billion for deportation operations. In addition, the legislation includes $3.5 billion for 10 reimbursements to state and local governments for costs related to immigration-related 11 enforcement and detention.¹³

12 63. In explaining the need for the legislation, “border czar” Tom Homan told reporters 13 that the bill needed to pass so the federal government could buy more detention beds because “the 14 more beds we have, the more bad guys we arrest.”¹⁴ The Trump administration has already opened 15 new immigration detention facilities, such as the South Florida Detention Facility—nicknamed 16 Alligator Alcatraz.¹⁵ In California, the administration has repurposed a former state prison in

1 California City as an ICE detention center.¹⁶ California City Detention Facility is now the largest 2 immigration detention center in the state, with over 2,500 beds.¹⁷

3 64. Government officials have also suggested their motivation in their massive 4 detention efforts is to pressure individuals to give up their right to contest removal and agree to 5 deportation, rather than either of the two constitutionally permissible bases for detention: 6 preventing flight risk or danger to the community. For instance, Secretary Noem in discussing how 7 the administration has opened detention facilities in seemingly treacherous locations, indicated the 8 administration’s goal of ensuring that people know “if they are detained, they [wi]ll be removed” 9 and offered that detention is an effective strategy to encourage people, including those with 10 meritorious claims for immigration relief, to deport themselves “voluntarily.”¹⁸

11 III. Plaintiffs/Petitioners and members of the proposed class who pose no flight 12 risk or danger to the community now face re-detention under Defendants’ 13 unlawful Re-Detention Policy.

14 65. The Re-Detention Policy has resulted in the sudden, no-notice re-detention of 15 countless noncitizens whom the government has already determined are neither dangerous nor 16 flight risks, without any individualized consideration of whether any new facts exist to justify a 17 different determination. Indeed, the facts show that the people caught up in the new policy 18 overwhelmingly lack any criminal history and have a proven record of compliance with 19 immigration check-ins and court appearances. Through their conduct, they have shown that the 20 government’s initial assessment of them was accurate—they are neither dangerous nor flight risks.
 21 Nevertheless, they now face arbitrary re-arrest and indefinite re-detention. Plaintiffs’/Petitioners’ 22 cases illustrate these very concerns.

23 66. Plaintiff/Petitioner Garro Pinchi, for example, is an asylum seeker who fled Peru

1 and entered the United States without inspection on or around April 14, 2023. After entering the 2 country, she encountered federal agents and turned herself in. The agents briefly detained her, 3 determined that she was subject to discretionary detention under 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a) and that she 4 was not a flight risk or danger to the community, and released her on her own recognizance
5 pursuant to 8 C.F.R. § 236.1(c)(8), with a notice to appear for removal proceedings in the San 6 Francisco immigration court. On the Notice to Appear, DHS classified her as “an alien present in 7 the United States who has not been admitted or paroled” and did not classify her as an “arriving 8 alien.” DHS charged her as inadmissible only under 8 U.S.C. § 1182(a)(6)(A)(i), which applies to 9 noncitizens physically present in the country without admission or parole.

10 67. DHS agents issued Ms. Garro Pinchi an “Order of Release on Recognizance” 11 using a standard DHS form, setting forth the conditions of Ms. Garro Pinchi’s conditional parole.
12 Among other requirements, the form stated that Ms. Garro Pinchi must attend “any hearing or 13 interview” required by DHS or the immigration court, comply with state and federal laws, and 14 report to supervision appointments. The order also states that Ms. Garro Pinchi would remain 15 released on her own recognizance as long as she “compl[ied]” with the listed conditions. The order 16 states that “[f]ailure to comply with the conditions of this order may result in revocation of your 17 release and your arrest and detention by [DHS],” but includes no other possible reasons for which 18 Ms. Garro Pinchi could have been re-detained.

19 68. Ms. Garro Pinchi relocated to Hayward, California and built her life there. After 20 her initial release from custody, she did everything immigration authorities required her to do—all 21 without the assistance of counsel. She updated her address with the immigration court as required, 22 and in April 2024, she filed an application for asylum, withholding of removal, and protection 23 under the Convention Against Torture with the immigration court, which remains pending. She 24 has no criminal history.

25 69. On July 3, 2025, Ms. Garro Pinchi attended a master calendar hearing at the San 26 Francisco Immigration Court. Without any warning, the DHS attorney orally moved to dismiss her 27 case.

28 70. The immigration judge gave Ms. Garro Pinchi time to file a response and

1 continued the hearing until July 31, 2025. Although the immigration judge had continued the 2 hearing, he told Ms. Garro Pinchi “I probably won’t see you then”—suggesting that he expected 3 that she would be arrested pursuant to DHS’s new policy.

4 71. ICE officers arrested her minutes after she exited the courtroom. The government 5 then detained her without any individualized basis or claim that her re-detention was justified to 6 prevent flight risk or danger to the community. Absent this Court’s orders mandating her release, 7 she would have remained in detention, and she remains at risk of re-detention absent final court
8 intervention. Dkt. Nos. 6, 33.

9 72. In connection with her re-arrest, ICE issued a Form I-200 “Warrant for Arrest of 10 Alien” purporting to authorize her arrest under 8 U.S.C. § 1226 and 8 U.S.C. § 1357. The 11 document is dated July 3, 2025. The sole basis for arrest identified on the warrant is “the pendency 12 of ongoing removal proceedings” against Ms. Garro Pinchi. In the space for a signature from an 13 “Authorized Immigration Officer,” the warrant bears the signature of “S 3602 RILI – SDDO.”
14 “SDDO” stands for “Supervisory Detention and Deportation Officer.”

15 73. Following her release from custody pursuant to this Court’s Order, ICE agents 16 required Ms. Garro Pinchi to attend a check-in the next day. ICE imposed conditions of release, 17 including an annual check-in with ICE and in-person check-ins with ISAP, a private contractor.
18 Ms. Garro Pinchi has complied with all conditions of release. Soon after her initial check-in, ICE 19 de-escalated her supervision from in-person check-ins to weekly monitoring by phone. She has 20 continued to comply with every requirement. After her release from custody, Ms. Garro Pinchi 21 secured counsel for her removal proceedings and filed a written opposition to the government’s 22 motion to dismiss. The immigration judge denied the motion to dismiss, and her removal 23 proceedings are ongoing.

24 74. Defendants detained Ms. Garro Pinchi pursuant to the unlawful Re-Detention 25 Policy despite her posing no danger or flight risk – the two principal justifications for immigration 26 detention recognized by the Supreme Court. See Zadvydas, 533 U.S. at 690-92; Demore, 538 U.S.
27 at 519-20, 527-28, 531. The government previously released Ms. Garro Pinchi on her own 28 recognizance because she did not pose sufficient risk of flight or danger to the community to 1 warrant detention.

2 75. None of that has changed. Ms. Garro Pinchi has no criminal record, and there is no
3 basis to believe that she poses any public-safety risk. Nor is Ms. Garro Pinchi, who was arrested
4 while appearing in court for her immigration case, conceivably a flight risk. Ms. Garro Pinchi's 5 detention is not related to any permissible purpose under these circumstances and deprived her of a 6 protected interest in her ongoing liberty without sufficient procedural protections.

7 76. Plaintiff/Petitioner Juany Galo Santos is an asylum seeker who fled Honduras in 8 2023. Immigration agents apprehended Ms. Galo Santos and her two young daughters after they 9 crossed the border and detained them overnight. The next day, after determining that Ms. Santos 10 was not a flight risk or a danger to the community, agents released her on her own recognizance 11 under 8 C.F.R. § 236.1(c)(8). The agents also fitted her with an ankle monitor.

12 77. Ms. Galo Santos attended her first check-in with ICE in January 2024, at which 13 time her ankle monitor was removed. Since that time, Ms. Galo Santos has complied with all 14 reporting, supervision, and immigration court requirements, including in-person check-ins and 15 updating ICE and the immigration court with her correct address. She has no criminal history.
16 Since settling in San Mateo, California, Ms. Galo Santos has built a life for herself and her two 17 daughters. She has an upcoming ICE check-in on January 16, 2026, and a master calendar hearing 18 at the San Francisco Immigration Court on February 19, 2026. Under Defendants' prior policy, 19 Ms. Galo Santos could attend her hearing and future supervision appointments confident that she 20 would not be re-detained, based on her compliance with her terms of release and lack of any 21 criminal history. But under Defendants' Re-Detention Policy, she now risks being ripped from her 22 daughters, leaving them with no one to care for them or provide for them, for no reason.

23 78. The government previously released Ms. Galo Santos after finding that she did not 24 pose a flight risk or danger to the community. Her conduct since she was released has only 25 reinforced the accuracy of that determination. Her re-detention under Defendants' unlawful Re-26 Detention Policy would deprive her of her protected interest in her ongoing liberty without any 27 procedural protections.

28 79. Plaintiff/Petitioner Jose Waldemar Teletor Sente is an asylum seeker who fled

1 Guatemala in 2019 and entered the United States without inspection in 2019. Mr. Teletor Sente
2 and his then-nine-year-old son were apprehended by border patrol agents and were briefly
3 detained before being released on their own recognizance under 8 C.F.R. § 236.1(c)(8).

4 80. Mr. Teletor Sente moved to San Francisco, California and built a life there for 5 himself and his son. After receiving his work permit, he began working in construction, rented an 6 apartment, and enrolled his son in school. At first, Mr. Teletor Sente was required to report to the 7 ICE office in person once a month. He has since been enrolled in a remote monitoring program 8 that requires him to check-in through the SmartLink application weekly. Mr. Teletor Sente has 9 complied with all reporting, supervision, and immigration court requirements, both in person and 10 remote. Mr. Teletor Sente has no criminal history.

11 81. Mr. Teletor Sente has an upcoming master calendar hearing at the San Francisco 12 Immigration Court in November 2025. Concerned that he might be re-detained at his hearing 13 under Defendants' Re-Detention Policy, Mr. Teletor Sente requested to appear via video instead of 14 in person. Judge Ila Deiss granted Mr. Teletor Sente's request. However, Mr. Teletor Sente was 15 subsequently notified that his hearing date had moved by several weeks to November 18, 2025, in 16 front of a different immigration judge (Judge Elisa Brasil), and that he would need to appear in 17 person. This in-person requirement may be due to the fact that Judge Brasil was recently fired, 18 and, on information and belief, an attorney from the Armed Forces' Judge Advocate General's 19 (JAG) Corps will be replacing her.

20 82. Under Defendants' prior policy, Mr. Teletor Sente could attend his upcoming 21 hearing without worrying that he would be re-detained, based on his compliance with his terms of 22 release and lack of any criminal history. But under Defendants' Re-Detention Policy, he now risks 23 re-detention, which would upend the life he has built here, leaving his son with no one to care for 24 him, and losing his apartment, car, and the ability to support his family in Guatemala.

25 83. The government previously released Mr. Teletor Sente after finding that he did not 26 pose a flight risk or danger to the community. Since that time, he has complied with all his 27 immigration requirements and given the government no reason to question that determination. His 28 re-detention under Defendants' unlawful Re-Detention Policy would deprive him of his protected

1 interest in his ongoing liberty without any procedural protections.

2 84. On information and belief, more than 100 other noncitizens in the San Francisco 3 Area of Responsibility with similar facts and circumstances have had the same experience as 4 Plaintiffs/Petitioners.

5 85. For example, Salam Maklad is a 28-year-old asylum seeker who entered the 6 United States without inspection in 2022. Ms. Maklad was briefly detained, during which time
7 immigration officials interviewed her before releasing her in September 2022 under humanitarian 8 parole. For the next three years, Ms. Maklad remained out of custody. She obtained a valid work
9 permit and enrolled in school to improve her employment opportunities. Ms. Maklad met her now 10 husband in the United States, and she is actively involved in her community, including attending 11 church regularly. Despite no change in circumstances that would warrant taking her into custody, 12 in July 2025, Ms. Maklad was arrested by ICE while appearing for her scheduled check-in at the 13 San Francisco ICE Office. Ms. Maklad was kept in a holding cell for the entire day before being 14 transported, in chains and handcuffs, to a detention center in Bakersfield, California. Ms. Maklad 15 remained in the detention center for almost a month, during which time she lived with nearly one 16 hundred women in a dormitory. For the majority of her detention, Ms. Maklad did not receive her 17 medication, which exacerbated her chronic medical conditions. Like Ms. Garro Pinchi, Ms.
18 Maklad was released only after filing a habeas petition to challenge her arbitrary re-detention.

19 86. As another example, Gabriela Vargas Plasencia is a 21-year-old asylum seeker 20 who entered the U.S. without inspection in 2024. In her home country of Peru, she had been an 21 engineering student. Ms. Vargas Plasencia also was briefly detained before immigration officials 22 released her on her own recognizance, with conditions including that she attend her immigration 23 court hearings and avoid criminal conduct. As Ms. Vargas Plasencia understood it, she could be 24 re-detained while her immigration case was pending if she violated those conditions, but not if she 25 complied. Ms. Vargas Plasencia settled in Oakland, California and has built her life there. She 26 took English classes at Berkeley Adult School. She filed an asylum application within her first 27 year in the United States, received employment authorization, and secured two jobs, often working 28 over 50 hours a week. Ms. Vargas Plasencia attended her first immigration court hearing in San

1 Francisco on April 3, 2025, without incident. She attended her second hearing on September 4, 2 2025. The immigration judge continued her case to October. Although Ms. Vargas Plasencia did 3 not violate her conditions of release, had no change in circumstances, and had ongoing removal
4 proceedings, immigration agents re-arrested her as she was leaving the courtroom. Agents 5 shackled her, briefly detained her in San Francisco, and transported her to a detention center in 6 Bakersfield, California. After a few days there, Ms. Vargas Plasencia, too, was released only 7 because of a federal court order. When she returned to San Francisco, she had to pay tow fees and 8 parking fines for her car, which had been parked at the immigration court. She had also missed 9 work, and despite previously having consistent attendance, received a warning from one of her 10 employers that future absences could result in termination.

11 IV. DHS has offered no reasoned explanation for its dramatic change in policy.

12 87. When it adopted the Re-Detention Policy, DHS provided no explanation for why it 13 reversed course from decades of not re-arresting and re-detaining people absent an individualized 14 assessment of flight risk or danger, and certainly not one that considered the reliance, due process, 15 and Fourth Amendment interests at stake.

16 88. Instead, the government merely asserted in opposition to numerous individual 17 habeas cases challenging arbitrary re-detentions that it has the categorical authority under the INA 18 to re-arrest and re-detain any individual in pending removal proceedings because of its general 19 policy preferences and available bed space in detention facilities, without consideration of any 20 facts specific to the individual being re-detained. See, e.g., Singh v. Andrews, No. 1:25-cv-00801-21 KES-SKO (HC), 2025 WL 1918679, at *7 (E.D. Cal. July 11, 2025) (summarizing the 22 government's position that it has the authority to re-detain noncitizens without any procedural 23 protections or evaluation of a noncitizen's individual circumstances). These arguments generally 24 failed, and courts repeatedly ordered the release of the noncitizens DHS had detained. See, e.g., 25 Dkt. 33; Valdez v. Joyce, No. 25 Civ. 4627 (GBD), 2025 WL 1707737, at *3 n.6 (S.D.N.Y. June 26 18, 2025); Singh, 2025 WL 1918679, at *7.

27 89. DHS attorneys then spent much of the summer attempting to persuade district
28 courts to adopt various explanations for DHS's onslaught of re-arrests of people in Section 240

1 proceedings, despite often appearing unsure of the explanation themselves. See, e.g., Singh, 2025
2 WL 1918679 at *4 (noting “uncertain basis” for petitioner’s detention); Martinez v. Hyde, No. CV
3 25-11613-BEM, 2025 WL 2084238, at *1 (D. Mass. July 24, 2025) (describing government’s 4 inability to identify documents substantiating detention where authority was “plainly uncertain”); 5 Hernandez v. Wofford, No. 1:25-cv-00986-KES-CDB, 2025 WL 2420390, at *4 (E.D. Cal. Aug.
6 21, 2025) (arguing that re-detention was justified under § 1225(b)(1) although dismissal of 7 removal proceedings was not yet final).

8 90. Starting in late July or early August, DHS attorneys began providing a new post 9 hoc explanation: that—contrary to 30 years of statutory interpretation—§ 1225(b)(2), and not 10 § 1226(a)—applies to noncitizens in removal proceedings who entered without inspection, even 11 those whom DHS itself had previously released from custody under the release mechanisms 12 exclusive to § 1226(a). DHS attorneys have gone on to argue that § 1225(b)(2) has always 13 required the mandatory detention of noncitizens within the scope of this subsection.

14 91. DHS’s new interpretation of § 1225(b)(2) appears to stem from two 15 pronouncements. First, in arguing for this new rationale, DHS attorneys have urged courts to 16 adopt and extend Matter of Q. Li, a May 2025 BIA decision holding that a noncitizen who entered 17 the country without inspection, was issued humanitarian parole after a brief initial detention, and 18 whose parole was terminated when she was placed in removal proceedings years later, was subject 19 to mandatory detention under § 1225(b)(2). Matter of Q. Li, 29 I. & N. Dec. 66 (BIA 2025).
20 Although the reasoning in Matter of Q. Li applies only to noncitizens released on humanitarian 21 parole, DHS has relied on the case to argue that all noncitizens apprehended near the United States 22 border have always been subject to § 1225(b)(2)—regardless of their manner of entry, the basis for 23 their release from custody, how long they have been at liberty in the United States, and whether 24 they are in removal proceedings.

25 92. Second, on July 8, 2025, DHS adopted and promulgated its own even more 26 expansive interpretation of § 1225(b)(2). In an internal document emailed to ICE employees called 27 Interim Guidance Regarding Detention Authority for Applicants for Admission (the “July 8 28 Memo”), DHS took the position that § 1225(b)(2), and not § 1226(a), applies to all noncitizens

1 present in the United States without admission or parole, including all noncitizens who have ever
2 entered without inspection. The July 8 Memo stated that “[t]his change in legal interpretation may 3 ... warrant re-detention of a previously released [noncitizen] in a given case.”

4 93. Throughout the late summer and fall, DHS has offered its new interpretation of 5 § 1225(b)(2)—and relegation of § 1226(a)—as its justification for re-detaining any noncitizen who 6 entered the country without inspection, generally conceding that the agency did not consider an 7 individual’s changed circumstances before deciding to re-detain them. DHS has made this 8 argument even in cases where its agents had—only days or weeks before—issued an 9 administrative arrest warrant under § 1226. See, e.g., Artiga v. Genalo, No. 25-CV-5208 (OEM), 10 2025 WL 2829434, at *6 (E.D.N.Y. Oct. 5, 2025) (administrative warrant for re-arrest issued on 11 September 15, 2025 under § 1226(a)); Oliveros v. Kaiser, No. 25-CV-07117-BLF, 2025 WL 12 2677125, at *2 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 18, 2025) (warrant for re-arrest in 2025 issued pursuant to § 13 1226(a)); Ramirez Clavijo v. Kaiser, No. 25-CV-06248-BLF, 2025 WL 2419263, at *4 (N.D. Cal.
14 Aug. 21, 2025) (administrative warrant for re-arrest issued July 24, 2025 under § 1226(a)).

15 94. In the nearly 30 years in which § 1226(a) and § 1225(b)(2) have co-existed in the 16 INA’s statutory scheme, DHS has consistently deemed noncitizens who entered the country 17 without inspection and were placed in Section 240 proceedings to be subject to § 1226(a). When 18 the agency released someone who entered without inspection, it generally did so under 19 § 1226(a)(2) and 8 C.F.R. § 236.1(b)(8). By definition, DHS released the members of the 20 Bond/RoR subclass—which includes Ms. Garro Pinchi, Ms. Galo Santos, and Mr. Teletor Sente
21 —pursuant to its authority under § 1226(a) and its accompanying regulations. The documents 22 DHS issued them during their initial detention repeatedly cite § 1226(a) as the statute governing 23 their detention and classify them as already “present” in the country, rather than “arriving.” They 24 were at liberty in the interior of the country and in removal proceedings with DHS’s explicit 25 permission.

26 95. DHS has also never revisited the interim regulation it issued in 1997 under 27 § 1226(a), which clarified that the statute applied to the subset of “applicants for admission” who 28 entered the U.S. without inspection. See 62 Fed. Reg. 10312, 10323 (Mar. 6, 1997). That subset of

1 applicants for admission is categorically different from those covered by § 1225(b)(2), who are 2 “seeking” admission—i.e., actively attempting to effect a lawful entry into the country. Indeed, 3 when Congress amended § 1226(a)’s companion provision, § 1226(c), this year, it included 4 noncitizens who entered without inspection as subject to the new mandatory detention 5 provisions—which would not have been necessary if they were already covered by § 1225(b)(2), 6 as DHS now contends. See Laken Riley Act, Pub. L. No. 119-1, 139 Stat. 3 (2025); 8 U.S.C. §
7 1226(c)(1)(E).

8 96. The results of DHS’s about-face have been chaotic, cruel, and untethered from 9 DHS’s prior consideration of an individual’s flight risk or danger to the community to justify re-10 detention. This government conduct has dismantled decades of settled expectations. On 11 information and belief, Defendants’ Re-Detention Policy has resulted in the arbitrary re-detention 12 of more than 100 non-citizens in the San Francisco Area of Responsibility, including 13 Plaintiff/Petitioner Garro Pinchi. Plaintiff/Petitioner Galo Santos and Plaintiff/Petitioner Teletor 14 Sente fear the same will happen to them at their upcoming immigration court hearings. These 15 individuals have done everything the law requires of them: They have attended immigration court 16 hearings and supervision check-ins and complied with various immigration administrative 17 requirements. Yet they were re-arrested and re-detained, or face imminent re-arrest or re-detention.

18 V. Defendants’ Re-Detention Policy will impose extraordinary and 19 irreparable harm on Plaintiffs/Petitioners and the proposed class 20 members.

21 97. Plaintiffs/Petitioners and proposed class members face the immediate threat of 22 being re-arrested and re-detained indefinitely the next time they appear for a scheduled 23 immigration court hearing or arrive at an ICE or ISAP office for a scheduled appointment. They 24 face the terror of losing their liberty, of potentially being locked up for weeks, months, or even 25 years in detention facilities thousands of miles away from their loved ones, homes, and 26 immigration attorneys, and the witnesses and documents that are key to their immigration cases.

27 98. Plaintiffs/Petitioners and proposed class members risk separation from their homes 28 and faith communities if and when they are re-detained. They risk losing gainful employment and having their schooling interrupted. They may lose their homes as the loss of their income makes it

1 impossible for them or their loved ones to pay rent or mortgage payments. Indeed, proposed class
2 members who have already been re-detained under the Re-Detention Policy have lost employment, 3 housing, and healthcare.

4 99. Plaintiffs/Petitioners and proposed class members further face the trauma of being 5 indefinitely separated from their loved ones, including minor children. The lasting effects of the 6 trauma of family separation on detained noncitizens, as well as their free loved ones, are well 7 documented, as are the effects of the trauma of family detention. Plaintiffs/Petitioners and 8 proposed class members, fearing detention and/or family separation, are experiencing deep 9 emotional and psychological harm because of Defendants' new policy. They are experiencing 10 extreme anxiety, insomnia, fear, and depression as they face the prospect of being ripped away 11 from their families and losing their liberty as a consequence of attending an immigration court 12 hearing, going to a scheduled ICE or ISAP appointment, and otherwise complying with their 13 conditions of release or parole.

14 100. For example, detention caused Ms. Garro Pinchi significant harm. She suffers 15 from serious medical conditions for which she requires frequent medication. When she was re-16 detained, she did not have access to her medication and experienced withdrawal symptoms, 17 including shakes and shortness of breath. Before she was re-detained, she underwent an operation, 18 which continues to be monitored and requires medication to prevent recurrence. She also has a 19 medical condition that requires her to follow a strict dietary regimen prescribed by a doctor, and 20 had an appendectomy last year. All of these serious conditions require care and monitoring that 21 were unavailable to her while detained.

22 101. The risk that Defendants will again re-detain Ms. Garro Pinchi under the Re-
23 Detention Policy causes her extreme mental distress. She remains afraid to leave the house 24 because she fears being arrested by ICE again. She experiences intrusive memories of being 25 detained and feels flooded with terror, making it hard to sleep or concentrate. She feels panicked 26 when she has to check in with ICE and ISAP.

27 102. Likewise, the risk that Defendants will re-detain Ms. Galo Santos at her upcoming 28 ICE check-in and immigration court hearing causes her extreme anxiety and fear. Ms. Galo Santos

1 fears that if she is re-detained, she will be ripped away from her young daughters, for whom she is 2 the sole caregiver and provider. Ms. Galo Santos fears that any separation from her daughters
3 would cause them significant trauma. In particular, one of Ms. Galo Santos' daughters suffers 4 from severe cerebral palsy. As a result of her medical condition, she is almost totally paralyzed, is 5 confined to a wheelchair, cannot speak, and requires assistance with critical daily tasks. Because 6 Ms. Galo Santos is the sole caregiver for her daughter, she fears that any separation from her 7 daughter would lead to a lapse in her medical care and cause her health to suffer.

8 103. Similarly, Mr. Teletor Sente is experiencing extreme anxiety and fear at the risk 9 that he will be re-detained at his upcoming in-person hearing in November. Mr. Teletor Sente fears 10 that if he is re-detained, his minor son would be left with no one to care for him or provide for 11 him. If Mr. Teletor Sente is re-detained, he will lose his apartment, which means that his minor 12 son will be left with nowhere to live and will be forced to drop out of school and work in order to 13 survive. Mr. Teletor Sente also fears that his son could be re-detained with him, subjecting him to 14 the traumas of detention and disrupting his education.

15 CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS

16 104. Plaintiffs/Petitioners bring this class action under Rule 23(a) and (b)(2) of the 17 Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

18 105. Plaintiffs/Petitioners seek certification of the following proposed Class and 19 Subclass:

20 Class: All noncitizens in the jurisdiction of the San Francisco ICE Field Office 21 who (1) entered or will enter the United States without inspection; (2) have been 22 or will be charged with inadmissibility under 8 U.S.C. § 1182 and have been or 23 will be released from DHS custody; and who (3) are in removal proceedings under 8 U.S.C. § 1229a, including any § 1229a proceedings that have been dismissed where the dismissal is not administratively final; and (4) are not subject to detention under 8 U.S.C. § 1226(c).

24 Bond/RoR Subclass: All members of the Class whose release from 25 DHS custody was or will be on bond, conditional parole, or their own recognizance under 8 U.S.C. § 1226(a) and/or 8 C.F.R. § 236.1(c)(8).

26 106. The proposed Class and Subclass satisfy Rule 23(a)(1) because they are so 27 numerous that joinder of all members is impracticable. On information and belief, Defendants 28 have subjected more than 100 people within the San Francisco Area of Responsibility to unlawful re-arrests and re-detentions under the Re-Detention Policy and will continue to do so on a

1 widescale basis until and unless a court order prevents them from doing so.

2 107. The proposed Class and Subclass satisfy Rule 23(a)(2) because there are multiple 3 questions of law and fact common to all members of the proposed classes. Those common 4 questions include, but are not limited to:

- 5 a. Whether the Re-Detention Policy is arbitrary and capricious under the APA 6 because Defendants failed to provide a reasoned explanation for the reversal of 7 longstanding agency policy against re-arresting and re-detaining noncitizens 8 absent an individualized and material change of circumstances, and failed to 9 adequately consider important factors relevant to this decision, such as the 10 reliance interest of individuals released from detention and the due process and 11 Fourth Amendment implications of the new policy;
- 12 b. Whether the Re-Detention Policy is arbitrary and capricious under the APA 13 because it was adopted and implemented for an improper purpose;
- 14 c. Whether the Re-Detention Policy is unlawful under the APA as “contrary to a 15 constitutional right” because it violates the Fourth Amendment’s guarantee 16 against unreasonable seizures.

17 108. In addition to these questions common to the entire class, the Bond/RoR Subclass 18 presents an additional question capable of resolution for all members of that Subclass:

- 19 a. Whether Defendants’ Re-Detention Policy violates the INA and exceeds their 20 statutory authority under 8 U.S.C. § 1226(b).

21 109. The proposed Class and Subclass satisfy Rule 23(a)(3) because the Named 22 Plaintiffs’/Petitioners’ claims are typical of the claims of the class. Each class member’s claims 23 arise from Defendants’ adoption of the challenged policy, and each class member has experienced 24 or will experience the same primary injuries.

25 110. The proposed Class and Subclass satisfy Rule 23(a)(4) because the proposed class 26 representatives are committed to fairly and adequately defending the rights of all proposed class 27 members. Named Plaintiffs/Petitioners seek the same relief as all members of the class, and their 28 interests are not in conflict with the interests of the class. They have obtained counsel from the

1 ACLU Foundation; ACLU Foundation of Northern California; Centro Legal de la Raza; and 2 Keeker, Van Nest & Peters LLP, who have substantial experience litigating class action lawsuits 3 and other complex federal litigation on behalf of noncitizens.

4 111. The proposed Class and Subclass also satisfy Rule 23(b)(2) because Defendants 5 have acted on grounds that apply generally to the class so that the relief sought is appropriate as to 6 the class as a whole.

7 CLAIMS FOR RELIEF

8 FIRST CLAIM FOR RELIEF

9 Violation of the Administrative Procedure Act, 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(A)

10 The Re-Detention Policy is Arbitrary and Capricious
Plaintiffs/Petitioners, Class, and Bond/RoR Subclass

11 112. Plaintiffs/Petitioners repeat and re-allege the allegations contained in all preceding 12 paragraphs of this Complaint as if fully set forth herein.

13 113. The Administrative Procedure Act provides that courts “shall . . . hold unlawful 14 and set aside agency action” that is “arbitrary [and] capricious, . . . or otherwise not in accordance 15 with law[.]” 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(A).

16 114. The Re-Detention Policy is a reviewable final agency action because it is neither 17 tentative nor interlocutory, and legal consequences flow from the policy for Plaintiffs/Petitioners 18 and the proposed Class and Subclass, who have been re-detained under the Re-Detention Policy or 19 who live in fear of being re-detained under the policy in the future.

20 115. The Re-Detention Policy departs from longstanding agency precedent, policy, and 21 practice.

22 116. In adopting the Re-Detention Policy, Defendants provided no reasoned or adequate 23 explanation for the policy, which is a dramatic shift from recent and longstanding agency policies, 24 and which results in the costly and arbitrary re-detention of individuals who had serious reliance 25 interests in those past policies. See Encino Motorcars, LLC v. Navarro, 579 U.S. 211, 222 (2016).

26 117. Moreover, in adopting the Re-Detention Policy, Defendants failed to adequately 27 consider important aspects of the problem and all relevant factors, including the constitutional 28 limitations on the government’s authority to re-arrest and re-detain, and the reliance interests of

1 the proposed Class. Defendants instead considered the improper purpose of pressuring noncitizens 2 to abandon their claims for relief and self-deport.

3 118. The Re-Detention Policy is therefore arbitrary and capricious in violation of the 4 Administrative Procedure Act.

5 SECOND CLAIM FOR RELIEF

6 Violation of the Administrative Procedure Act, 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)
7 The Re-Detention Policy Violates the INA
8 Plaintiffs/Petitioners and Bond/RoR Subclass

9 119. Plaintiffs/Petitioners repeat and re-allege the allegations contained in all preceding 10 paragraphs of this Complaint as if fully set forth herein.

11 120. The Re-Detention Policy violates 8 U.S.C. § 1226(b) because the statute does not 12 authorize re-detention without a material change in circumstances with respect to a noncitizen’s 13 flight risk or danger to the community based on an individualized determination. Further, 14 Defendants’ re-interpretation of 8 U.S.C. § 1225(b)(2) and § 1226(a) is contrary to law and is not a 15 valid legal basis for the Re-Detention Policy.

16 121. The Re-Detention Policy violates the Administrative Procedure Act because it is 17 “not in accordance with law” and “in excess of statutory jurisdiction, authority, or limitations.” 5 18 U.S.C. § 706(2)(A), (C), (D).

19 THIRD CLAIM FOR RELIEF

20 Administrative Procedure Act, 5 U.S.C. § 706(2) – *Accardi Doctrine
21 Unlawful Failure to Follow/Effective Rescission of 8 C.F.R. § 236.1(c)(8)
22 Plaintiffs/Petitioners and Bond/RoR Subclass

23 122. Plaintiffs/Petitioners repeat and re-allege the allegations contained in the preceding 24 paragraphs of this Petition as if fully set forth herein.

25 123. The APA provides that courts “shall . . . hold unlawful and set aside agency 26 action” that is “without observance of procedure required by law.” 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(D).

27 124. The Accardi doctrine holds that “government agencies are bound to follow their 28 own rules, even self-imposed procedural rules that limit otherwise discretionary decisions.” See U.S. ex rel. Accardi v. Shaughnessy, 347 U.S. 260 (1954).

125. DHS regulations implementing 8 U.S.C. § 1226(b) authorize revocations of release

1 from custody under the statute only in the “discretion of the district director, acting district 2 director, deputy director, assistant district director for investigations, assistant district director for 3 detention and deportation, or officer in charge (except foreign).” 8 C.F.R. § 1236.1(c)(9).

4 126. The Re-Detention Policy permits the revocation of prior custody determinations by 5 government officials not authorized by law to make this determination in violation of the APA and 6 in violation of the Accardi doctrine’s requirement that agencies comply with their own regulations.

7 FOURTH CLAIM FOR RELIEF

8 Violation of the Administrative Procedure Act, 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(B) 9 The Re-Detention Policy is Contrary to Constitutional Right 10 Plaintiffs/Petitioners, Class, and Bond/RoR Subclass

11 127. Plaintiffs/Petitioners repeat and re-allege the allegations contained in the preceding 12 paragraphs of this Petition as if fully set forth herein.

13 128. The APA provides that courts “shall . . . hold unlawful and set aside agency 14 action” that is “contrary to constitutional right.” 5 U.S.C. § 706(2)(B).

15 129. The Fourth Amendment protects the right of all persons present in the United 16 States to be free from unreasonable seizures by government officials. Plaintiffs/Petitioners and 17 members of the proposed class therefore have the right to be free from unreasonable seizures.

18 130. As a corollary to that right, the Fourth Amendment prohibits re-arrest on the same 19 charges/probable cause without a material change in circumstances.

20 131. The Re-Detention Policy violates the Fourth Amendment because it authorizes 21 immigration agents to undertake unreasonable seizures by re-arresting Plaintiffs/Petitioners and 22 the proposed class members for the same civil immigration charges as their initial arrest without a 23 material change in circumstances.

24 FIFTH CLAIM FOR RELIEF

25 Violation of the Fifth Amendment to the United States Constitution 26 Plaintiffs’/Petitioners’ Detention Violates Substantive Due Process 27 Plaintiffs/Petitioners Garro Pinchi, Galo Santos, and Teletor Sente

28 132. Plaintiffs/Petitioners repeat and re-allege the allegations contained in the preceding paragraphs of this Petition as if fully set forth herein.

133. The Due Process Clause of the Fifth Amendment protects all “person[s]” from

1 deprivation of liberty “without due process of law.” U.S. Const. amend. V. “Freedom from 2 imprisonment—from government custody, detention, or other forms of physical restraint—lies at 3 the heart of the liberty that [the Due Process] clause protects.” Zadvydas, 533 U.S. at 690.

4 134. Immigration detention is constitutionally permissible only when it furthers the 5 government’s legitimate goals of ensuring a noncitizen’s appearance during removal proceedings 6 and preventing danger to the community.

7 135. Ms. Garro Pinchi, Ms. Galo Santos, and Mr. Teletor Sente were previously 8 released on their own recognizance (“conditional parole”) by Defendants. These previous releases 9 constituted a determination by Defendants that they were neither dangerous to the community nor 10 flight risks.

11 136. None of Ms. Garro Pinchi, Ms. Galo Santos, or Mr. Teletor Sente have become a 12 danger or flight risk since their release from custody. Their re-detention thus does not serve a 13 legitimate goal. Accordingly, their re-detention would violate the Due Process Clause.

14 SIXTH CLAIM FOR RELIEF

15 Violation of the Fifth Amendment to the United States Constitution
16 Plaintiffs’/Petitioners’ Detention Violates Procedural Due Process
17 Plaintiffs/Petitioners Garro Pinchi, Galo Santos, and Teletor Sente

18 137. Plaintiffs/Petitioners repeat and re-allege the allegations contained in the preceding 19 paragraphs of this Petition as if fully set forth herein.

20 138. The Fifth Amendment guarantees noncitizens present in the country with due 21 process rights, including the right to not be deprived of a liberty or property interest without notice 22 and a hearing before a neutral decision-maker.

23 139. Ms. Garro Pinchi, Ms. Galo Santos, and Mr. Teletor Sente have already been 24 determined not to pose a flight risk or danger to the community. They have a protected liberty 25 interest in their continued freedom from detention and are entitled to due process before the 26 government can deprive them of their liberty by re-detaining them. The Due Process Clause 27 prohibits Plaintiffs’/Petitioners’ re-detention without a pre-deprivation hearing before a neutral 28 decision-maker in which the government bears the burden of demonstrating that a Plaintiff/Petitioner poses a flight risk or danger to the community.

1 SEVENTH CLAIM FOR RELIEF

2 Violation of the Fourth Amendment to the United States Constitution
3 Plaintiffs'/Petitioners' Re-Arrest Constitutes an Unreasonable Seizure
4 Plaintiffs'/Petitioners Garro Pinchi, Galo Santos, and Teletor Sente

5 140. Plaintiffs/Petitioners repeat and re-allege the allegations contained in the preceding 6 paragraphs of this Petition as if fully set forth herein.

7 141. The Fourth Amendment protects the right of all persons present in the United
8 States to be free from unreasonable seizures by government officials. Plaintiffs/Petitioners 9 therefore have the right to be free from unreasonable seizures.

10 142. As a corollary to that right, the Fourth Amendment prohibits re-arrest on the same 11 charge without a material change in circumstances.

12 143. Ms. Garro Pinchi was re-arrested on the same charge without a material change in 13 circumstances. Her re-arrest violated the Fourth Amendment.

14 144. The circumstances related to Ms. Galo Santos's flight risk or danger to the 15 community have not changed since her prior release from custody. Re-arresting her would violate 16 the Fourth Amendment.

17 145. The circumstances related to Mr. Teletor Sente's flight risk or danger to the 18 community have not changed since his prior release from custody. Re-arresting him would violate 19 the Fourth Amendment.

20 PRAYER FOR RELIEF

21 Plaintiffs/Petitioners, on behalf of themselves and the members of the proposed classes, 22 respectfully request that the Court grant the following relief:

- 23 a. Issue an order pursuant to the All Writs Act, 28 U.S.C. § 1651, to protect this Court's 24 jurisdiction over the litigation by barring Defendants from deporting any 25 Plaintiffs/Petitioners or transferring any Plaintiffs/Petitioners to a jurisdiction different 26 from the one in which they are presently detained, pending the duration of these 27 proceedings;
- 28 b. Grant class certification of the proposed Class and Subclass;
- c. Exercise the Court's authority under 5 U.S.C. § 705 to provide relief pending review

- of the Re-Detention Policy;
- d. Issue writs of habeas corpus prohibiting Defendants from re-arresting or re-detaining Plaintiffs/Petitioners unless their re-detention is ordered at a custody hearing before a neutral arbiter in which the government bears the burden of proving, by clear and convincing evidence, that a Plaintiff/Petitioner is a flight risk or danger to the community;
- e. Declare that the Re-Detention Policy is arbitrary and capricious, in excess of statutory authority, contrary to law, and contrary to constitutional right;
- f. Vacate and set aside the Re-Detention Policy;
- g. Award Plaintiffs/Petitioners reasonable attorney’s fees and costs; and
- h. Grant any other and further relief as the Court deems just and equitable, including individual injunctions when requested as necessary to secure the rights of class members.
